Class 1: Synastry

Lesson 1: Harmonious Connections in Synastry

When you want to get a gauge on compatibility with someone, you use synastry, which is comparing your chart to the chart of someone else's. Comparing the two charts can give you an idea of what kind of compatibility you have with each other.

The Sun rules your true identity, the Moon rules your emotional self, and the Ascendant rules your outer self, and this trio is the astrological triad in your natal chart. You will often find that you're drawn to people who link to your Sun, Moon, or Ascendant sign in their own Sun, Moon, or Ascendant sign, and this can be excellent for compatibility. This trio is so closely linked to who we are, the building blocks for our entire personality, so having this link shows an innate understanding of who each of you are.

A classic - and crazy strong! - example of the importance of the triad connections is Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward. They were married for decades and seen as one of the most successful Hollywood marriages. Their triad? Both were Capricorn Risings, his Sun was Aquarius and her Moon was Aquarius, and her Sun was Pisces and his Moon was Pisces. Oddly, Joanne said that the two didn't have many common interests and gave each other a lot of space, but their triad connections were so strong, they just fit right together.

You can compare each faster planet (Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Ceres) in your natal chart to the same planet in their chart, and get a quick idea of how harmonious or challenging whatever that planet rules is between the two of you. It can be considered harmonious when they're in the same sign or the same element. Signs of the same element have natural harmony. The elements are:

Fire: Aries, Leo, Sagittarius

Earth: Taurus, Virgo, Capricorn

Air: Gemini, Libra, Aquarius

Water: Cancer, Scorpio, Pisces

You can also have a harmonious pairing when one person has a planet in a sign, and the other person has the natural ruler of that sign conjunct their planet (so say, you have Venus in Sagittarius and they have Venus conjunct Jupiter, the natural ruler of Sagittarius). When you have a planet conjunct another in your chart, they each bring their own natural energy to the other, almost making it like the planet is in the sign the other planet rules rather than the sign it's actually in. So in the example, if you have Venus conjunct Jupiter, Venus will feel like Venus in Sagittarius at times and Jupiter will feel like Jupiter in Taurus or Libra at times. The natural rulers of the signs are:

Sun: Leo

Moon: Cancer

Mercury: Gemini, Virgo

Venus: Taurus, Libra

Mars: Aries

Jupiter: Sagittarius

Saturn: Capricorn

Uranus: Aquarius

Neptune: Pisces

Pluto: Scorpio

(also note that Ceres is debated to rule Taurus; I also link Chiron to Virgo)

Another option for a harmonious connection is through the houses. Each sign pairs up naturally with one house, and this can bring compatibility that may not seem obvious via the signs. The sign-house pairings are:

Aries - 1st house

Taurus - 2nd house

Gemini - 3rd house

Cancer - 4th house

Leo - 5th house

Virgo - 6th house

Libra - 7th house

Scorpio - 8th house

Sagittarius - 9th house

Capricorn - 10th house

Aquarius - 11th house

Pisces - 12th house

So, let's say one person has Sun in Gemini and the other person has Sun in Scorpio. These would not seem compatible by the signs, but if the Gemini has Sun in the 8th house, or the Scorpio has Sun in the 3rd house, this can provide a powerful link. You can make the same kind of link with any of the planets.

Planets that are in the 1st house can make someone seem like they have the sign that planet rules as their Rising, and this can also provide a strong link (so say you have Uranus in the 1st house in Scorpio; you could connect with someone through the Scorpio energy or through Aquarius, the sign Uranus rules).

Lesson 2: Mercury Through Pluto Connections in Synastry

Mercury is the planet of communication, so having harmonious Mercurys helps with your ability to communicate with one another and see eye-to-eye. If you don't have harmonious Mercurys, communication may be difficult at times. If one person's Mercury conjuncts another person's planet, this can also impact communication: conjunct the Sun or Moon can make communication much easier and free-flowing; conjunct Venus can make communications pleasant between you and stimulate affection, conjunct Mars can make you super engaging; conjunct Ceres can help each of you express support and encouragement; conjunct Jupiter can help you enjoy communication; conjunct Saturn can make communication difficult and you may not open up as much; conjunct Uranus can make communication a little erratic and one of you may think the other is brilliant or cuckoo; conjunct Neptune can bring misunderstandings and one of you may feel a bit drowned out by the other, but it can help with subconscious understanding; and conjunct Pluto, communication can be intense but sometimes one may try to dominate the other mentally.

Venus is the planet of love and relationships, so having harmonious Venuses is suuuper helpful for compatibility. It shows you both have the same approach and want the same things naturally in love and relationships. If one person's Venus conjuncts another person's planet, this can impact the love: conjunct the Sun or Moon is excellent, and you can have strong loving feelings between you; conjunct Ceres can bring a great amount of affection and adoration, and you can nurture each other easily; conjunct Mars can bring a lot of passion and sizzle; conjunct Jupiter can bring great affection and genuine connection; conjunct Saturn can make it difficult to express affection, and you may not want to share; conjunct Uranus can bring some erratic energy into the relationship overall, and it may be a connection that starts fast and ends faster; conjunct Neptune can show a spiritual connection on the positive side, but can also make it difficult to be open with feelings; and conjunct Pluto can show intense passion, but also some fighting over power and control in the relationship.

Mars is the planet of energy and drive, so having harmonious Mars shows you both can be motivated by the same things and take action in similar ways. If one person's Mars conjuncts the other's Sun or Moon, this can be a pairing that energizes and spurs action; conjunct Ceres can help you both to nurture and support each other and the relationship, and you may feel driven to do so and enthusiastic about it; conjunct Jupiter can bring a little luck in the pairing and you can create big things together; conjunct Saturn can stifle energy, but can also help you to be more productive together (and good for business pairings); conjunct Uranus can help you respect each other's individuality, but also bring out impulsive behavior; conjunct Neptune can bring more spiritual connection; and conjunct Pluto can create a powerful pairing, but you may have to work on managing strong energy that can quickly become destructive.

Ceres is a dwarf planet ruling nourishment, support, and resources, so having harmonious Ceres connections in synastry can help you to nurture each other, the relationship, get and give support, and feel the relationship contributes to your lives. If one person's Ceres conjuncts the other's Sun or Moon, this can be a pairing that is significantly nurturing, and you may care for each other a great deal (this is also idea for a caregiver type of relationship); conjunct Jupiter can help you both feel super supported, as well as help you both expand on your resources; conjunct Saturn can tamp down support, so you may have difficulty expressing nourishing energy, but you can create something that lasts and nurtures long-term (so this may be good for business relationships); conjunct Uranus can help you find new, different, unconventional ways of getting and giving support to each other, though it can also make for unpredictability that makes you both insecure; conjunct Neptune can show a great spiritual connection, and you can support each other quietly, however there is a greater chance one of you takes advantage of the other and boundaries can be crucial; and conjunct Pluto can show transforming how you get and give support, amassing a tremendous amount of resources and money together, but also potential to fight over nurturing energy, what you have together, and one may dominate the other at times.

Jupiter is the happy planet, and Jupiter connections in synastry can show a genuine like between you. This is a great thing to see for any relationship where you really need to get along, and it's one of my favorite things to see. Saturn is the planet of restriction, so Saturn connections can bring some challenges as one person may feel stifled and limited by the other. It can be good for professional connections though since Saturn is the natural ruler of goals and ambitions. Saturn can also be helpful for commitment, so you may take a relationship with someone more seriously if you have a Saturn connection, and can stick with it through hard times (though sometimes it means you stick with it even when it's terrible and you should leave). Though I tend to find that many people struggle with someone who connects to their Saturn, and you just may not like them at all (unlike with Jupiter). This tends to be more often with a conjunction to Saturn.

Uranus connections can bring out a feeling of instability and inability to count on each other or the relationship; since Uranus is the natural ruler of friendships, this can be a good link with a friend since you're more likely to give each other space and respect each other's individual expression. Uranus also can be in play with a connection that is unusual in some way. Neptune connections can show you have a spiritual connection, and this may come from past lives (if you believe in past lives) or be karmic in nature. There can be extra empathy and compassion, but care needs to be taken that boundaries remain solid and healthy so one doesn't take advantage of the other, which can happen all too often. Pluto connections can bring on power struggles and control issues as one wants to dominate and control the other. There is capability for great transformations and great passion, but you need to respect each other and not try to take power away from each other.

The Lunar Nodes are the points in the Moon's orbit where the Moon crosses the ecliptic, and are spiritual/karmic in nature. There's a North Node and a South Node, and they exactly oppose one another. Having a North Node connection can show you two are meant to come together for a reason, to help one another grow and find your potential. It can feel uncomfortable at times though, because this is unfamiliar energy that we can resist if we're not ready. You may run from someone you have a North Node connection with if you're not ready (Sun-Moon-Rising and Jupiter connections can help). Having a South Node connection can help you feel like you've known each other before (or did in a past life, if you believe in past lives). There is familiarity that helps you to feel at ease with each other, but you can outgrow each other with the South Node because it represents the past. If you have a South Node connection, you generally also want to have a North Node connection and other strong connections to lower the chances that you will outgrow each other.

Chiron is an asteroid representing our greatest wounds and how to heal from them. Having a Chiron connection can show you either help each other to heal or hurt each other and cause more wounds. Chiron doesn't move very fast, so having Chiron in the same or compatible signs is pretty normal (unless you have a massive age difference), so you're mostly going to look at Chiron aspects to the faster planets, Jupiter, Saturn, and the Lunar Nodes. Hard aspects (squares and oppositions) can bring out greater ability to wound, while easy aspects (sextiles and trines) can bring out greater ability to heal. Conjunct the Sun or Moon can go either way; conjunct Mercury, Venus, Ceres, or Jupiter tends to be more positive, while conjunct Mars, Saturn, or Pluto tends to be more challenging.

Lesson 3: The Houses in Synastry

Then we have chart overlay. To overlay the chart means to take the planets and house cusps from one person's chart and see where they fall in the other person's chart. This shows what you (your chart) does to them (their chart) in a more direct way. It's helpful to think of it as what I (my planet) do to you (your house) and what you (your planet) do to me (my house).

Where your Sun falls, you shine a light and bring attention in their life; where your Moon falls, you bring out emotion and stimulate their needs; where your Mercury falls, you generate lots of activity and a desire for variety; where your Venus falls, you bring out the love; where your Mars falls, you motivate and inspire; where your Ceres falls, you support and nurture; where your Jupiter falls, you help them expand; where your Saturn falls, you restrict them; where your Uranus falls, you bring change and push outside of their comfort zone; where your Neptune falls, you bring a little cloud haziness and need for intuitive guidance; and where your Pluto falls, you bring intensity and fight them for power.

In romantic relationships, it's helpful to have planets falling in the 5th house of love and 7th house of relationship; planets in the 12th house can be challenging, especially one of the faster planets as it can cause you or your partner to hide your true self (Sun), your emotions (Moon), your opinions (Mercury), your affections (Venus), your desires (Mars), or your support (Ceres). Friendships are ruled by the 11th house, so it's helpful to have planets fall in the 11th house with a friend (3rd house is also helpful for friendships; 11th house can also help with the foundation of friendship in a romantic relationship). The professional houses are the 2nd (money), 6th (work), and 10th (career) houses, so planets falling in these houses can be helpful for professional relationships; the 8th house rules mutually beneficial relationships, so business partnerships can benefit from planets falling in the 8th house. Family relationships can benefit from planets falling in the 4th house of home and family. I also often find with siblings that are close that you'll have 3rd and/or 4th houses or rulers aligned.

One thing I love to see is overlay between the 5th, 7th, or 8th houses in romantic relationships. The 5th house rules love, the 7th house rules relationships, and the 8th house rules intimacy, so when your 5th, 7th, or 8th house overlaps with your partner's 5th, 7th, or 8th house, this means that when a transit (moving) planet is going through your house, it's going through theirs at the same time, and this naturally brings both of your attentions to your relationship and each other. No forcing, no having to try consciously, it just happens. The only downside is when it's Saturn touring them at the same time - that can signal a difficult period!

Lesson 4: Extra Synastry Notes

I want to list the things that I look for in synastry most for strong connections:

Triad connections (Sun-Moon-Rising)

Venus conjunct the Sun, Moon, or angle (1st, 4th, 7th, or 10th house cusp)

Jupiter conjunct the Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Ceres, or an angle

North Node conjunct a the Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Ceres or Jupiter

The Sun, Moon, Venus, Mars, or Ceres falling in the 7th house

Overlap of the 5th-7th-8th houses

And these are connections that can prove challenging or show red flags:

Mars conjunct, square, or opposite Pluto

Venus conjunct, square, or opposite Saturn, Uranus, Neptune, or Pluto

Saturn conjunct, square or opposite Sun, Moon, Venus, Mars, or an angle

Planets in the 12th house

Chiron square the faster planets, conjunct one of the Lunar Nodes, or square the Lunar Nodes

One extra little quirky thing you can assess is asteroid connections.

There are love asteroids you can look up and if one of their personal planets or Jupiter is conjunct (or one of your personal planets or Jupiter is conjunct one of their love asteroids), that can be helpful (but orbs are small with asteroids, so under 3 degrees, and many believe under 2 degrees). Love asteroids you can check: Amor (number 1221), Juno (number 3), Cupido (number 763), Valentine (number 447), Aphrodite (number 1388), Lust (number 4386), Sappho (number 80), and Nymphe (number 875). Asteroids Juno, Amor, and Cupido are covered in Class 5 in the natal and composite charts, in transit, and in synastry.

Since there are so many asteroids (thousands of them), you can also usually find an asteroid for each of your names (first, middle, or last, and if not spelled exactly, then sounds alike). You can look up the asteroid of each other's names and see where their name falls in your natal chart, your name falls in their natal chart, and compare to each other's charts. I find that when set off by transit planets or by progressions, this can trigger the person coming into your life (so if you dig back to around when you met and look at transits and progressions, you'll usually find the name asteroids involved at the time being aspected in the natal or progressed charts, or making aspects as transit asteroids).

A few other asteroid connections you can evaluate:

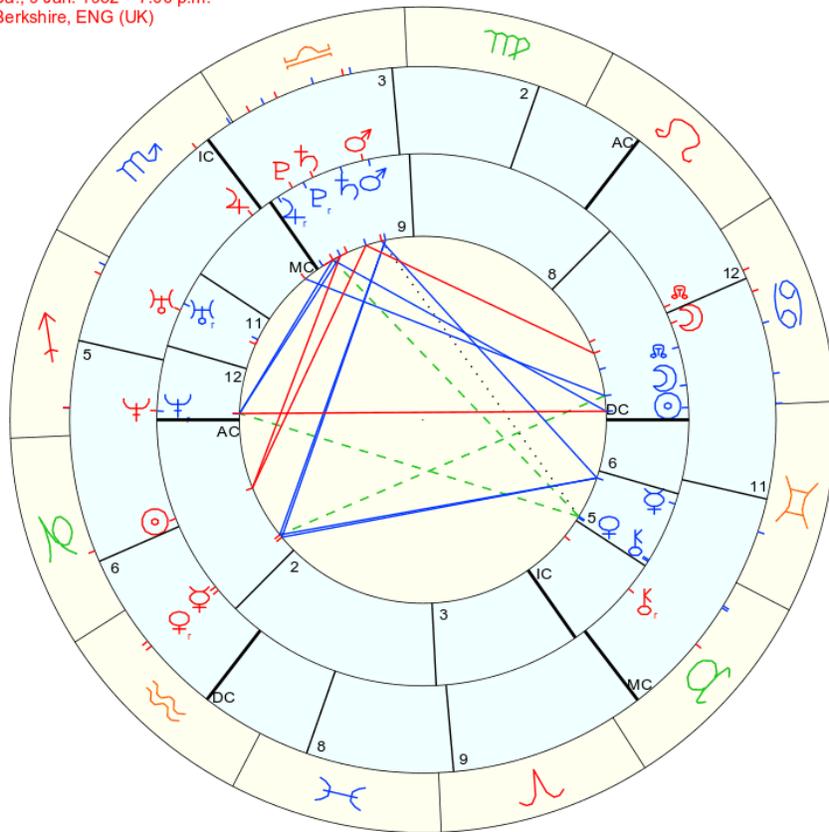

- Asteroid Nemesis (number 128) connections can show you're essentially enemies in some way, at odds to one another, or one of you may view the other as your nemesis
- Asteroid Pandora (number 55) connections can show someone who gets under your skin, who may annoy you but you're still drawn to them for some reason, or who points out the things you don't want to see (or you do that for them)
- Asteroid Nessus (number 7066) is the asteroid of abuse, so Nessus connections may be red flags to avoid, especially close conjunctions
- Asteroid Achilles (number 588) connections can show someone who is your Achilles heel, or you are theirs

Lesson 5: Synastry Examples

Let's break down a real-life couple's synastry, the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge, Prince William and Kate Middleton. Here is their synastry chart:

Both William and Kate are Cancer Moons, so they connect strongly emotionally. Both of their Moons are conjunct the North Node, and both were born on an eclipse! William was born on a solar eclipse in Cancer while Kate was born on a lunar eclipse in Capricorn. Talk about a power couple, they're an eclipse power couple!

Add to that William has Jupiter conjunct his Midheaven while Kate has Jupiter conjunct her Immum Coeli; the Midheaven and Immum Coeli are on an axis representing the foundation of our lives. So they come together on solid ground, and are seen as being a super grounded coupling.

William is a Sagittarius Rising while Kate is a Leo Rising, so they're both fire sign Risings. They both have Mars in Libra along with Saturn and Pluto, so they're driven in similar ways. Libra rules relationships, so they likely feel they can do more together than apart.

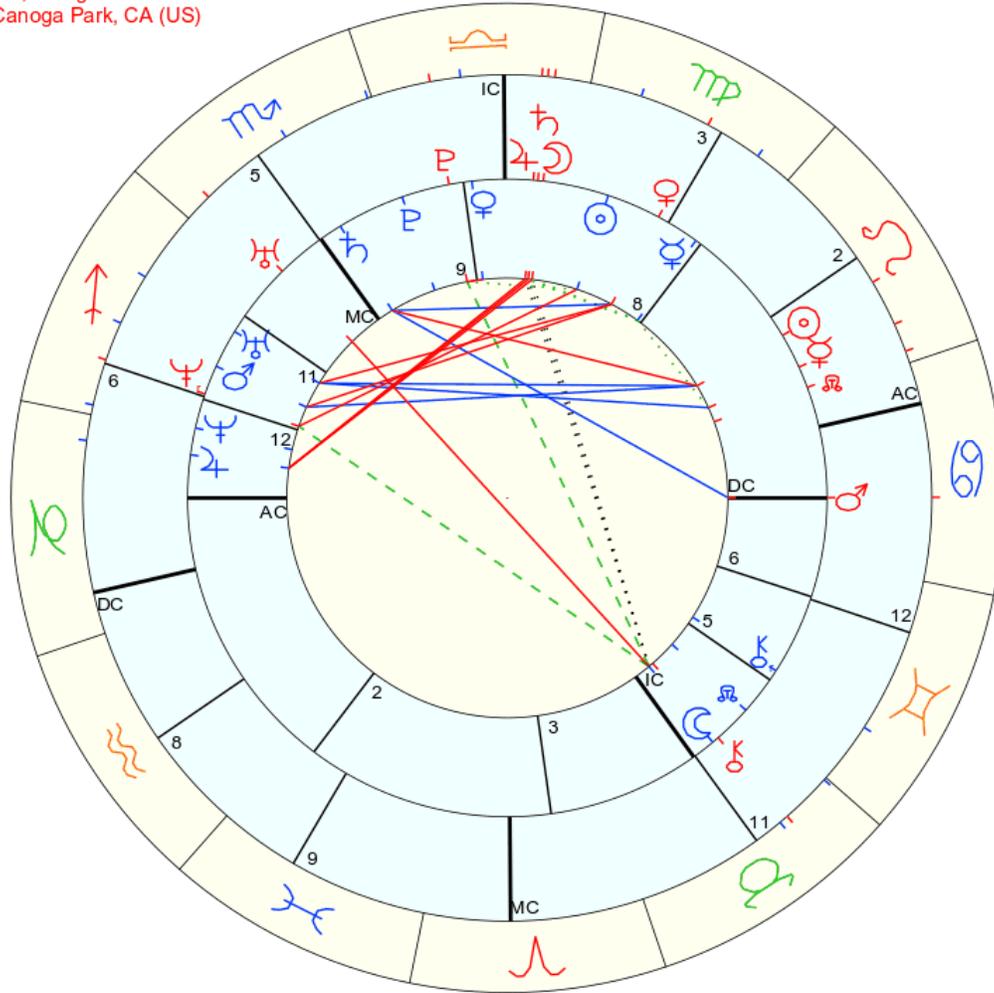

Kate has her Moon and North Node conjunct the 12th house cusp; the 12th house is naturally ruled by Neptune, and William has his Neptune conjunct his Ascendant. They both have an air sign Mercury (Gemini for William, Aquarius for Kate) that is not in the same sign as their Suns (Cancer for William, Capricorn for Kate), so they both likely express themselves differently outwardly and understand that about each other.

They both also have a challenged Venus. William has Venus conjunct Chiron and Kate has Venus retrograde (and conjunct Mercury; both conjunctions are less than 1 degree so super close). William's is no big shock since we all know how we lost his mother; in Kate's case, I think she was considered a "tomboy" if I remember right, so perhaps she didn't learn to embrace her femininity until later (actually, probably not fully until she became a mother with Moon on the North Node).

So how about the other royal couple, the Duke and Duchess of Sussex aka Prince Harry and Meghan Markle? Their synastry chart:

Harry is a Virgo Sun, Taurus Moon, and Capricorn Rising - talk about earth! That is quite the earthy royal. His Moon is conjunct the 4th house cusp (which naturally links to Cancer) and the North Node (so he actually has a very strong link to William and Kate), and his Sun is in the 8th house, which naturally links to Scorpio.

Meghan's Sun is in Leo and the 1st house, which seems to stand out in this group (so not too shocking she does as the outlier American, biracial, and former actress - standing out indeed!). But her Rising is in Cancer (with his Moon conjunct the 4th house cusp), and her Moon is conjunct Saturn, who naturally rules Capricorn, Harry's Rising.

Meghan's Moon is in Libra and conjunct commitment-minded Saturn and happy Jupiter; they go with Harry's Venus in Libra, so no surprise she's the one who got him to "settle down". His Jupiter is in Capricorn, her Descendant sign, so they have Jupiter connections both ways, which seems to say they genuinely do like each other.

Now, she's pretty different for the royals, so what made Harry opt for someone so out of the main? I'd guess his Mars, who is conjunct unconventional Uranus in the house Uranus naturally rules, the 11th house. So as traditionally-minded as all of his earth energy makes him, there is a strain of a rebel inside that he let out with her (and was probably always going to at some point once it was triggered).

Class 2: Composites

Lesson 1: Composite Chart Parts

Composites is a reference to the composite chart, which combines your chart with someone else's and creates a new chart that is the chart of your relationship itself. Your relationship is viewed as its own being, and composites can help explain the people who seem really different on the outside coming together in a way that works. It can also help explain the people who seem like they should fit together well end up not being good together at all.

You can analyze the positions in the composite chart similarly to analyzing a natal chart. A composite planet in a sign, house, and the aspects it makes will operate like they would in a natal chart, except instead of showing a portion of a person's personality and life, it shows a portion of the relationship.

The composite Sun is the identity of your relationship itself, just like it's your true identity in the natal chart. The house location of the composite Sun can often show the biggest focus within the relationship. You usually want to see a good Sun in the composite chart that's not making too many hard aspects, otherwise there can be some core issues. The composite Moon is the emotions within the relationship, how you express emotions together and how the relationship impacts you both emotionally.

Composite Mercury represents communication in the relationship, and how you engage with one another. Composite Venus is the love and affection in the relationship when it's any kind of love relationship (romantic, family, friend); in a business relationship, it may focus more on money. You generally want to see a good composite Venus, like with the Sun, for love relationships. Composite Mars can show where the energy of your relationship is located, and how you take action together. Composite Ceres can show how, what, and where you nurture together, and what the relationship needs to be supported.

Composite Jupiter can show where you can expand together, explore together, and where there is happy energy in the relationship. Composite Saturn can show where you experience struggles, feel restricted together, or have lessons to learn together. Composite Uranus can show where you can experience sudden changes, where the relationship may experience instability, or where you may need things to be different in the relationship. Composite Neptune can show where you may struggle with seeing reality in the relationship, have difficulty grasping, or require a spiritual connection. Composite Pluto can show where you may need to transform together, where you may fight over power/control, or where you may need to dig deeper.

The composite 1st house represents the outward face of the relationship; the 2nd house represents finances and values in the relationship; the 3rd house represents communication (with Mercury); the 4th house represents the core of the relationship (and the home/family life you have together in a romantic or family relationship); the 5th house represents the love/affection between you; the 6th house represents the details of the relationship, the mundane aspects; the 7th house represents the others you encounter together; the 8th house represents the things you may push away in the relationship; the 9th house represents where you may need space; the 10th house represents the peak of your relationship, what you can aspire for together; the 11th house represents how you come together as peers and the future of the relationship; and the 12th house represents what's hidden in the relationship along with subconscious/karmic baggage.

The North Node represents what you can grow into together to manifest the potential of the relationship, while the South Node represents emotional baggage and bad habits you can fall into together. Chiron can show where healing may need to occur together in order to grow.

You can also compare the composite chart to each of your natal charts and perform a little synastry for each of you with the chart of the relationship itself. This can give you an idea of how the relationship itself influences each of you individually, since most relationships impact the people in them differently. It can also help explain why one person in a relationship may be happy with it while the other is not (transits can also explain that too).

Lesson 2: What to Look For in a Composite Chart

So what are some things that stand out in a composite chart? The first thing is going to be overabundance, having many planets in one sign or house. This can stifle the focus of the relationship, putting too much emphasis on just one area, or it can be a point of great energy. In business relationships, this can be helpful if in the 2nd, 6th, or 10th houses (the professional houses) or Taurus, Virgo, or Capricorn (the professional signs); this can be helpful in a romantic relationship if in the 1st or 5th houses. It can be super challenging if in the 4th, 8th, or 12th houses, Cancer, Scorpio, or Pisces, in part because these are water houses/signs, which are emotional, so the emotional aspect of the relationship can be greatly heightened. In Cancer/the 4th house, there can be issues at the core of the relationship that run deep; in Scorpio/the 8th house, you both may feel like avoiding problems, yet can be prone to major battles and there can be major inequality between you; and Pisces/the 12th house can be most challenging since it hides energy, is subconscious, and the 12th house is the house of being your own worst enemy, so sometimes the relationship can sort of eat itself and you're barely aware. Romantic relationships can really struggle with 12th house energy unless you both have strong 12th house energy in your natal charts (so you're comfortable with the energy).

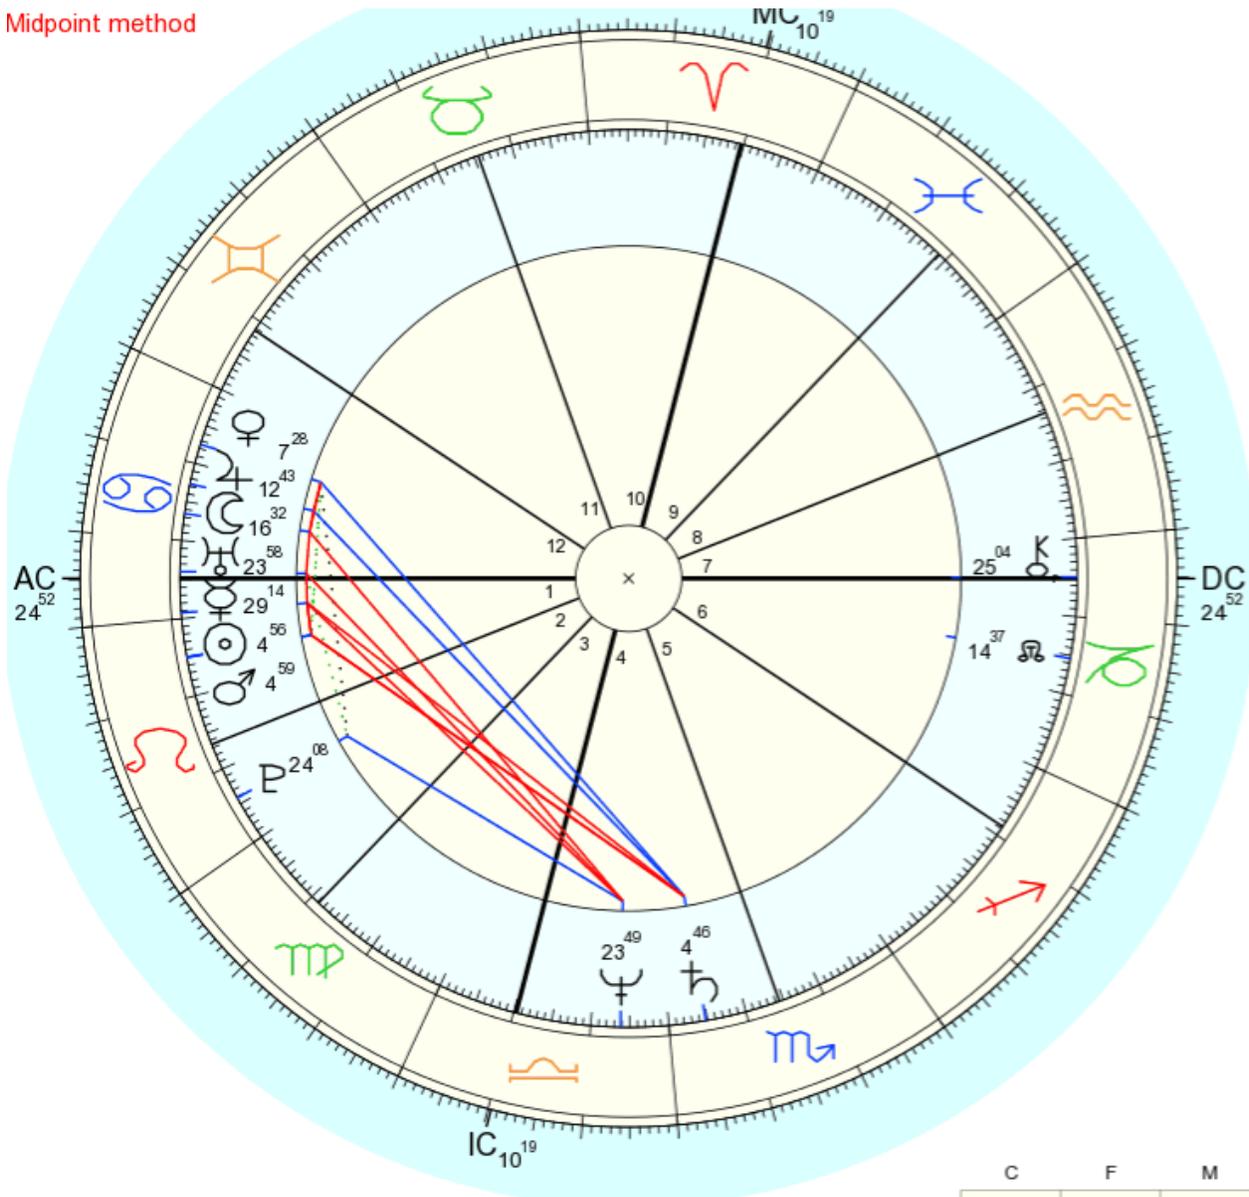

It can be great to have planets conjunct one of the angles in the composite chart, except for Saturn (unless Saturn is conjunct the 10th house cusp since Saturn naturally rules the 10th house). Planets on the angles have greater importance and their energy is stronger in the relationship (so since Saturn is restrictive, you generally don't want Saturn on the 1st, 4th, or 7th house cusps in the composite chart, though like in synastry, Saturn can create strong commitment to one another).

In general, you want to avoid interceptions in a composite chart. An intercepted planet is cut off, contained energy that is difficult to access, and it's especially difficult if it's one of the composite personal planets (Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars) or the composite 1st house ruler (note that interceptions aren't a possibility in some house systems, including Whole Sign and Equal). If a planet in the composite chart is a singleton, the energy of that planet is elevated in the chart, which can be beneficial once you master the energy together, and challenging until you do.

Lesson 3: Composite Chart Examples

Sometimes you can just look at a chart and see something striking in the layout. Take a look at the Zodiac wheel for this composite chart:

Midpoint method

What you should see is all of those planets around the 1st house cusp (AC). 7 of the 10 planets surround the 1st house cusp! (8 if you count Pluto) Which tells you that the couple is suuuuper focused on one another and their relationship. And when they met, it was in fact an instant coupling, and they spent every single day together from the day they met for years. The first time I looked at this chart, I felt like those 7 planets were enveloping the 1st house cusp like a hug, and when I asked, sure enough, my client said they were extremely affectionate and always holding hands, kissing, hugging, etc. So this is an instance where the 12th house energy is alright because the planets in the 12th house aren't focused solely on the 12th house, they're really focused on the 1st house cusp. Any time you see planets surrounding a house cusp, that house cusp gets the main attention.

You see Chiron is on an angle in that chart, conjunct the 7th house cusp - both people in the couple were widows, and their relationship helped each other to heal from losing their spouses. The only difficulty in the relationship was with their children - Pluto in Leo (natural ruler of children), Saturn and Neptune in the 4th house (of family). The husband's children in particular were hostile to the relationship at first, fearful of losing some of their inheritance to the second wife - Pluto, ruler of power struggles as well as legacies, in the 2nd house of money; paranoid Neptune in the 4th house of family; restrictive Saturn in the 4th and Scorpio, the sign Pluto naturally rules.

The Ascendant is in Libra and Jupiter is in the 1st house, which is nice. Gives focus on the relationship and some easy energy. But Jupiter is opposing Mars in Aries and the 7th house. They did seem to have a back-and-forth kind of thing for a while.

The Sun is closely conjunct Mercury in the 8th house, opposing the natural ruler of the 8th house, Pluto. Getting the sense that while there may have been a lot of chemistry, it was also quite volatile. The 8th house energy, the Mars and Pluto oppositions, generally can be volatile and aggressive.

The composite Venus is at 0 degrees Gemini. 0 degrees Gemini is the location of a group of fixed stars called Pleiades, the seven sisters, also called the weeping sisters. It's a position that can be tied to pain, loss - heartbreak! (seems like maybe more her than him given her natal Mercury is retrograde conjunct Venus and Chiron, and well, we've seen what played out)

I wanted to touch on one that wasn't romantic to show how it can work in a different relationship, so we'll look at one for a famous friendship (and professional relationship, actually). This is the composite chart for Matt Damon and Ben Affleck:

You should see 6 planets in the 5th and 6th houses - 5th house rules creativity, 6th house rules work. Then there is Jupiter conjunct Neptune, both widely conjunct the Moon, all in Sagittarius and the 8th house - Sagittarius is one of the writing rulers, 8th house rules mutually beneficial endeavors. So how fitting they hit it big with a film they wrote together! Moon-Jupiter-Neptune in Sagittarius along with the 5th house planets creates a lot of good feelings between them as Sagittarius/Jupiter and the 5th house are positive. Interesting Saturn there, in Gemini and the 2nd house - Saturn rules career, Gemini is the other writing ruler sign, and the 2nd house rules money.

There are also no planets in a fixed sign and only one planet in a cardinal sign, making it a singleton: Uranus (who I find is the one tied to fame, which makes sense given Uranus rules the masses) in the 6th house (of work) and Libra (ruling partners). All other planets are in mutable signs (so they must have a very flexible adaptable relationship!); and there are no planets in a water sign, which would be bad for emotional connection but they are helped in their synastry (Damon's Jupiter and Venus is in Scorpio, which is Affleck's Moon sign; there's actually a lot of Scorpio/Pluto/8th house energy between them in their natal charts and in this composite chart, which helps with the mutually beneficial aspect of their relationship, and also helps with some emotional understanding in a deep way).

Lesson 4: Comparing Composite Charts

You know how sometimes you like someone on their own, but then they start dating a certain person, and you can't stand them as a couple? You didn't mind them alone, or with an ex, or with a future person, but something about them with a certain person just doesn't work for you anymore. Well, that may be explained with the composite chart!

You can compare your natal chart to the composite chart of a couple, and see how your chart doesn't jive with that composite chart, hence making you not like them so much with this person. You can also compare composite charts to one another, and this can show when couples really don't like each other, even if they got along great when one person was single or with someone else.

We seem to be seeing this with the royal couples, William and Kate and Harry and Megan. They really don't seem to like each other, even though Harry seemed to get along fine with William and Kate before. Now, there may be a lot of reasons for this, and I'm not going to touch on those. But I did want to bring up their composite charts in comparison to one another because it really shows how much they may never get along as couples!

Interestingly, each of their composite charts are strong, so each pairing seems strong individually. But there is major clashing between them. William and Kate's composite chart:

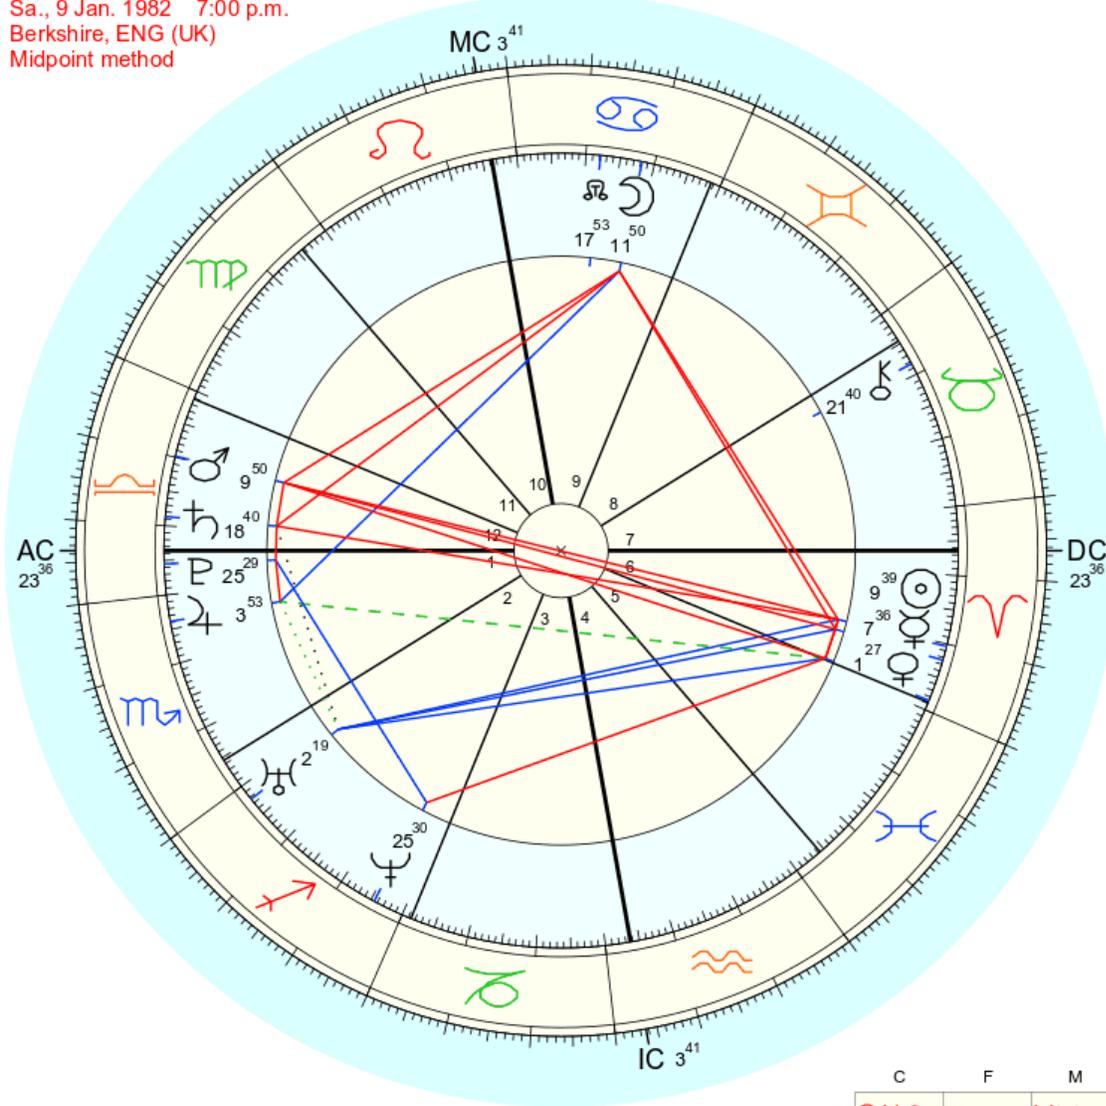

Name: ♂ Duke of Cambridge William [Adb]

W	☾ ♁	♃

So the first thing I notice is that individually, their composite charts are laid out very differently. William and Kate have a cardinal t-square, with an Aries stellium in the 6th house (so they feel a strong tie to serving), and Mars, Saturn, Pluto, and Jupiter engulfing the Ascendant, with Pluto conjunct (very strong persona for them, Pluto would be like the definition of "power couple"). Their chart makes a lot of sense for a couple that will eventually helm the royal family. But, I will say, their Mars in Libra and the 12th house opposite their Aries stellium makes me think they are actually pretty confrontational behind the scenes (that makes sense though).

Meanwhile Harry and Megan have all of their planets on the right side of the composite chart, in just 5 signs, so it's a tight chart. They're very focused together. Their composite chart screams that they're a dynamic duo that's going to cause a huge ruckus. Their IC-MC (axis of foundation) at 29 degrees, the anaretic degree and a point of crisis energy (so their coupling really shakes up the foundation), which is strengthened with the Moon on the IC. And their Mars is anaretic as well (highly assertive and pushing what they want; the anaretic Mars makes Harry and Megan seem more confrontational publicly, when it really may be that they're just more open about what they're pushing for than William and Kate are). Their North Node at 0 degrees Cancer and Venus at 0 degrees Libra puts them both at the Aries Point, another sensitive position. So they're a power couple too but in a more publicly disruptive way.

Comparing the charts, well they really do butt heads. Harry and Megan's composite Sun at 2 degrees Virgo is square (hard aspect) both their and William and Kate's composite Uranus at 2 degrees Sagittarius. Harry and Megan are the rule breakers, and this is disconcerting to William and Kate.

They each have the same composite Moon sign in Cancer with North Node, but Harry and Megan's composite Moon at 28 degrees is square William and Kate's composite Pluto, Ascendant, and Descendant. Harry and Megan likely make William and Kate feel out of control emotionally which makes William and Kate likely want to exert more control over Harry and Megan, but that's not happening.

Harry and Megan's Mercury at 20 degrees Leo is square William and Kate's Chiron at 21 degrees Taurus. This would add/create trouble with communication between the two couples, and they seem to throw around wounding words no matter what. Harry and Megan's Mercury is sextile (positive aspect) William and Kate's Saturn at 18 degrees Libra, so they'd need to be more thoughtful and careful with their words with each other.

Their Venuses oppose one another, with William and Kate's Venus at 1 degree Aries and Harry and Megan's Venus at 0 degrees Libra. So their relationship styles are fairly different, oppositional to one another. This is added to by the fact their houses are opposite each other (Libra Rising for William and Kate, Aries Rising for Harry and Megan).

So, you start to get the idea! There's a lot of clashing with these two charts (I don't know if they'll reconcile at any point). But you can see how comparing composite charts can show why couples clash, and this can be something you can see in your own life.

Class 3: Transits

Lesson 1: Transits in Love

Synastry and composites help show you your compatibility with someone, the focus on your relationship, its strengths and weaknesses. Transits show you the conditions under which you can meet someone, enter into a relationship/partnership, and you can plan every step with transits. Transits are a reference to transit planets, which are the currently moving planets. As they move, they make aspects to your natal chart, which are when they come to certain angles. Sextiles and trines are easy aspects so mostly positive, while squares and oppositions are hard aspects so mostly challenging, and conjunctions are neutral aspects that can go either way.

Let's start with a first date. So, dating is ruled by the 5th house, so usually the best time for a date is when the Moon is in your 5th house (this occurs for 2-3 days every month), or you have a conjunction, sextile, or trine by the Sun, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Ceres, or Jupiter to the 5th house cusp or 5th house ruler in your chart. In general, you can also do well on a date when the Moon is in Leo, the sign that naturally rules the 5th house.

When you have any of the planets making a square or opposition, the hard aspects, to your 5th house cusp or ruler, this can bring difficult energy, and the date may not go so well or as you planned. In general, you want to avoid a date during a void-of-course Moon, which occurs when the Moon no longer makes any major aspects to any other planets until it enters a new sign. The void-of-course Moon can make it so that perhaps the date is fine, but it's just fine, no sparks are flying, the chemistry just isn't there, one or both of you aren't invested, and the next date just may not happen for some reason.

Venus, the planet of love, can also be helpful for your first date, and you can look for transit Venus conjunct, sextile, or trine your Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars Ceres, Jupiter, 1st house cusp (house of the self), or 7th house cusp (house of relationships). If you want to increase your odds even more, make sure both of you have one of these nice aspects going on at the same time so you're both on the same feel-good page! A lot of this can also be beneficial for going out trolling for someone. In a pinch, just look for the Moon in the 5th or 7th houses, in Leo or Libra, no void-of-course Moon, aspects by transit Venus to your natal chart, or positive aspects by transit planets to your natal Venus.

How about the next step - saying I love you? (but without the question mark, ha!) Communication is governed by Mercury, the 3rd house, and Gemini, so you can focus on when the Moon is in your 3rd house, Gemini, or conjunct, sextile, or trine your natal Mercury, 3rd house cusp, or 3rd house ruler. Bonus points if there are Venus aspects at the same time by transit Venus or to your natal Venus. Extra bonus points if it's a conjunction, sextile, or trine between transit Mercury and your natal Venus, or transit Venus and your natal Mercury, 3rd house cusp, or 3rd house ruler. You can find it easier to communicate loving feelings then (a lot easier!). Try to make sure they also have positive communication aspects - otherwise they may not take it well (or say it back!).

And the next step - moving in together. Your home and living situation is ruled by the Moon, 4th house, and Cancer, so you want to see positive aspects (sextiles and trines) to your natal Moon, 4th house cusp or ruler, by your Progressed Moon to your natal planets or house cusps, or a progressed planet entering Cancer.

Since this is a "next step" in the relationship, you also want to see positive aspects involving the relationship parts of your chart: Venus, the 7th house, and Libra. This can involve sextiles and trines to your natal Venus, 7th house cusp or ruler, by your progressed Venus to your natal planets or house cusps, or a progressed planet entering Libra. Saturn is also usually present with commitment, so a positive transit Saturn aspect to your natal chart (especially to natal Moon or Venus), Saturn transiting your 1st house (of the self), 4th house, 5th house (of love), or 7th house, a conjunction, sextile or trine by transit Jupiter to your natal Saturn, or a sextile or trine by transit Uranus or Pluto to your natal Saturn is also good to see, and helps to ground the energy and add to your level of commitment to one another and to taking the next step.

Finally, it's also good to see positive 8th house or Pluto aspects. They rule "other people's money" - basically any finances that impact yourself and another person, and this includes joint finances and resources, which is an important part of moving in together as you merge not only your personal and daily lives, but your financial ones as well (and with money problems being one of the top reasons for relationships ending, it's kinda important!). Positive 8th house and Pluto aspects help you to merge the financial side of things more easily and hopefully avoid the financial issues that can drive a wedge between you quickly.

Now you move on to wanting to get engaged - like with moving in together, this is a big next step in commitment, so you'll want to see positive aspects with Venus, the 7th house, or Libra. Like with saying I love you, this is also a communication thing, so you'll want to also have positive aspects with Mercury, the 3rd house, or Gemini.

For choosing a wedding date, electionals may be of better use than personal transits since so many people are involved (covered in a bit).

The general conditions for meeting someone and entering into a relationship personally involve aspects to the 5th and 7th house rulers or cusps, natal or progressed Venus, or progressed 5th or 7th house aspects. Jupiter helps with being open to love, while Saturn helps with being open to commitment. If you only have Jupiter and no Saturn, then this can create love, but it may not last without stabilizing Saturn. If you only have Saturn and no Jupiter, this may bring commitment and a relationship, but one that ultimately lacks love and affection (and may be based more on comfort and security).

If you have transit Uranus aspects in play, this can show going for someone totally different from what you'd normally go for, entering into an unusual or unconventional relationship, or experiencing love at first sight. If you have transit Neptune aspects in play, this can show feeling like you have a soul mate connection with someone, but it can also show being deceived and not seeing someone for who they really are. Both Uranus and Neptune need Saturn aspects in play to help tone down their challenges and make them manageable, otherwise you may end up in a very wonky relationship!

If you have transit Pluto aspects in play, this can bring out obsessive qualities. If you're naturally inclined to be a little obsessive or attract obsessive people, it can be much worse (hello stalker). Pluto also greatly increases passion, so connections can be passionate and intense. Purely sexual relationships can benefit from Pluto aspects, though Pluto may not be too happy with the no strings part (Pluto is too jealous and possessive to have no strings). The 8th house tends to be in play for purely sexual relationships (and Mars in the 8th house can be notorious for it, especially since it's only for about 2 months so it can be fling-y).

Retrogrades govern redos, so exes coming back into your life can come with retrogrades of Mercury, Ceres, or Mars in your 5th or 7th houses, Venus retrograde, Jupiter retrograde in the 1st, 5th, or 7th houses, or any of them aspecting the ruler of the 5th or 7th houses, aspecting the 5th or 7th house cusps, aspecting natal or progressed Venus, or aspecting the progressed 5th or 7th house cusps.

And then there is breaking up. This usually comes with transit Saturn, Uranus, Neptune, or Pluto touring the 1st, 5th or 7th houses, making hard aspects to the 1st, 5th, or 7th house cusps or rulers, or to natal or progressed Venus. Hard Saturn aspects in particular tend to break a lot of people up during the first year of your relationship. As your relationship moves on, grows and strengthens, you can work through these hard aspects (and all long-term relationships do). It's just difficult when it hits in that first year or so since you're not in that super committed, established place yet.

When long-term relationships break up, you usually need to see hard Saturn plus hard Uranus, Neptune, or Pluto, and the more hard aspects, the more likelihood you'll break up. There have been times when I've done relationship readings and seen that one person in the relationship will have very hard aspects, and the other person won't; I find that this usually shows that the person without the many hard aspects is the one who wants the breakup and likely instigates it, and the one with the many hard aspects isn't going to be too happy about it!

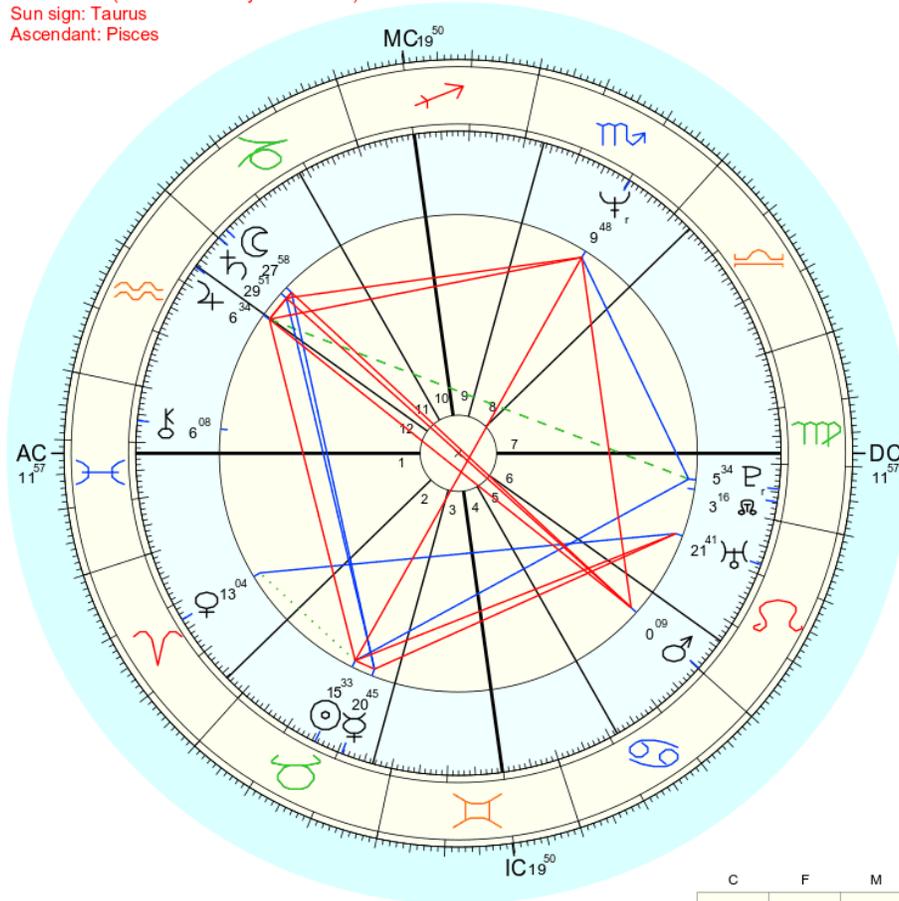

And, you can assess aaaalllllll of this not only with your natal charts, but also with the composite chart. You can focus on the transits happening to the composite chart, and this can tell you more about the conditions you're experiencing in the relationship.

Lesson 2: Transits Example

For a celebrity example of some of this, if you got the Intro to Love Astrology mini class, you know I brought up George Clooney and his 1st house Aries Venus contributing to his burning through relationships. Here is George's natal chart:

When he met and married Amal, transit Uranus was conjunct that natal Venus of his. Uranus can make you want something totally different from what you've wanted before and make different relationship decisions than you have been. In his case, it meant finally committing to someone, and someone different from those he'd been with before. They got married under transit Jupiter trine his natal Venus as well, and transit Pluto trine his natal 7th house cusp. Saturn was transiting his 8th house (no more intimacy-less sex), and interestingly, opposing his 7th house ruler. Both transit Venus and the Sun were in his 7th house of relationships when they got married, and the Moon was transiting his 7th and 8th houses. And his progressed 1st and 7th houses moved into new signs, showing a whole new approach to relationships.

Lesson 3: Using Electionals

You can also use electional astrology to plan things out (helpful if you have no known birth time). Electional astrology focuses on what the planets are doing to each other rather than what they're doing to your charts. With electionals, you choose the moment of an event based on the chart for that specific moment. This is taken from an old electionals class, and covers the 5 aspects of relationships: going on a first date, moving in together, getting engaged, getting married, and getting divorced (start to finish!). Try to hit as many points as you can listed. It'll likely be impossible to hit them all, so use your judgment which you're going to focus on as most important.

For going on a first date look for:

- The Moon in Leo (ruling dating) or Libra (ruling relationships)
- An applying sextile or trine to Venus by the Moon
- Sextile or trine between Venus and Mars
- Avoid Venus retrograde (if you can't, absolutely do not allow Venus retrograde to rule the 1st, 5th, or 7th houses)
- Avoid the ruler of the 1st, 5th, or 7th houses retrograde
- Ascendant in Leo or Libra
- The ruler of the 1st house in the 5th or 7th houses, or the ruler of the 5th or 7th houses in the 1st house
- Venus in the 1st, 5th or 7th houses
- Avoid Venus in the 12th house
- Jupiter in the 5th or 7th houses
- Avoid malefics (Saturn, Uranus, Neptune, Pluto) in the 7th house
- The 5th or 7th house ruler sextile or trine the 1st house ruler or 1st house cusp

For moving in together, look for:

- The Moon in Cancer (ruling the home) or Libra

- An applying sextile or trine to Venus and Saturn by the Moon
- Avoid Venus retrograde
- Avoid the rulers of the 1st, 4th, or 7th houses retrograde
- Ascendant in Cancer or Libra
- The ruler of the 1st house in the 4th, 5th, or 7th houses
- The ruler of the 4th house in the 5th or 7th houses
- The rulers of the 5th or 7th houses in the 4th house
- Venus in the 1st, 4th, or 7th houses
- Jupiter in the 1st, 4th, or 7th houses
- Avoid malefics in the 4th house
- The 4th house ruler sextile or trine the 1st house ruler or cusp
- The 4th house ruler sextile or trine the 7th house ruler or cusp
- The Moon sextile or trine the 5th or 7th house ruler or cusp

For getting engaged, look for:

- The Moon in Libra
- An applying sextile or trine to Venus and Saturn by the Moon
- Sextile or trine between Venus and Saturn
- Avoid Venus retrograde
- Avoid the ruler of the 1st, 7th, or 10th houses retrograde
- Ascendant in Libra
- The ruler of the 1st house in the 7th house
- The ruler of the 7th house in the 1st or 10th houses
- Venus in the 1st, 5th, or 7th houses
- Jupiter in the 1st, 5th, or 7th houses
- Avoid malefics in the 7th or 10th houses
- The 5th, 7th, or 10th house ruler sextile or trine the 1st house ruler or 1st house cusp

For getting married, look for:

- The Moon in Libra or a fixed sign (grounding energy that lasts)
- An applying sextile or trine to Venus by the Moon

- Well-aspected Venus
- Avoid Venus retrograde (unless both people have Venus retrograde in the natal or progressed charts)
- Avoid the ruler of the 1st or 7th houses retrograde
- Ascendant in Libra or a fixed sign
- The ruler of the 1st house in the 7th house or 7th house ruler in the 1st house
- Venus in the 1st, 3rd (expressing love), 5th, 7th, 10th, or 11th (groups) houses
- Avoid malefics in the 1st or 7th houses
- The 7th house ruler sextile or trine the 1st house ruler or 1st house cusp

For getting divorced, look for:

- The Moon in Libra or Sagittarius (the law)
- An applying sextile or trine to Jupiter by the Moon
- Avoid Jupiter retrograde unless you have Jupiter retrograde in the natal or progressed chart
- Avoid the rulers of the 1st, 7th, or 9th houses retrograde
- Ascendant in Libra, Sagittarius, or Pisces (dissolving)
- The ruler of the 1st house in the 7th or 9th houses
- The rulers of the 7th or 9th houses in the 1st house
- Venus in the 9th or 12th houses (ending)
- Saturn in the 7th or 9th houses
- The 9th house ruler sextile or trine the 1st house ruler or 1st house cusp

Class 4: Chemistry

Lesson 1: Indicators of Sexual Chemistry

So, what creates a lot of sizzle? First, look at Venus and Mars connections. If your Venus aspects their Mars or their Venus aspects your Mars, this can create a strong sexual connection. Venus is sensuality while Mars is desire and action, so their connection helps to take action on sensual desires. The conjunction is best because it shows you're on the same wavelength and want the same things, but the square and opposition can actually create the strongest sizzle being hard aspects. Sextiles and trines create a more pleasant connection, but not as strong as the others.

Then there is the 8th house, the house of intimacy and sex. When someone has a natal planet or angle that falls in your 8th house, you can feel some major sexual attraction to them, except when it's Saturn (since Saturn restricts). If one of your planets falls in someone else's 8th house, that can make them attracted to you. You can also experience sexual attraction to a lesser extent if they have a planet (except Saturn) conjunct your 8th house ruler, or a faster planet conjunct, square, or opposite your natal Pluto (Pluto is natural ruler of the 8th house). The downside to the 8th house though is it's very heavy emotionally, and Pluto/8th house rules power struggles, control issues, and obsession, so you want to be careful with that. But the attraction can be great! (this may be more of an issue in nonsexual relationships since there's no sexual outlet for the energy)

The most important position though is Eros (number 433), asteroid of sex. Eros is pure sex, no worrying about intimacy, commitment, or any of that stuff. It's a little bit of what you want in a primal sense. If someone has a planet (except Saturn) conjunct your natal Eros, or you have one conjunct theirs, this can create a lot of sexual chemistry (especially the faster planets). You generally want your Eros to be in compatible signs (so remember elemental compatibility from the synastry class).

Some other synastry connections that can show a strong sexual connection are Venus conjunct, square, or opposite Uranus (Uranus may be present with unusual connections) or Mars conjunct an angle (angles are points of action and Mars stimulates desire).

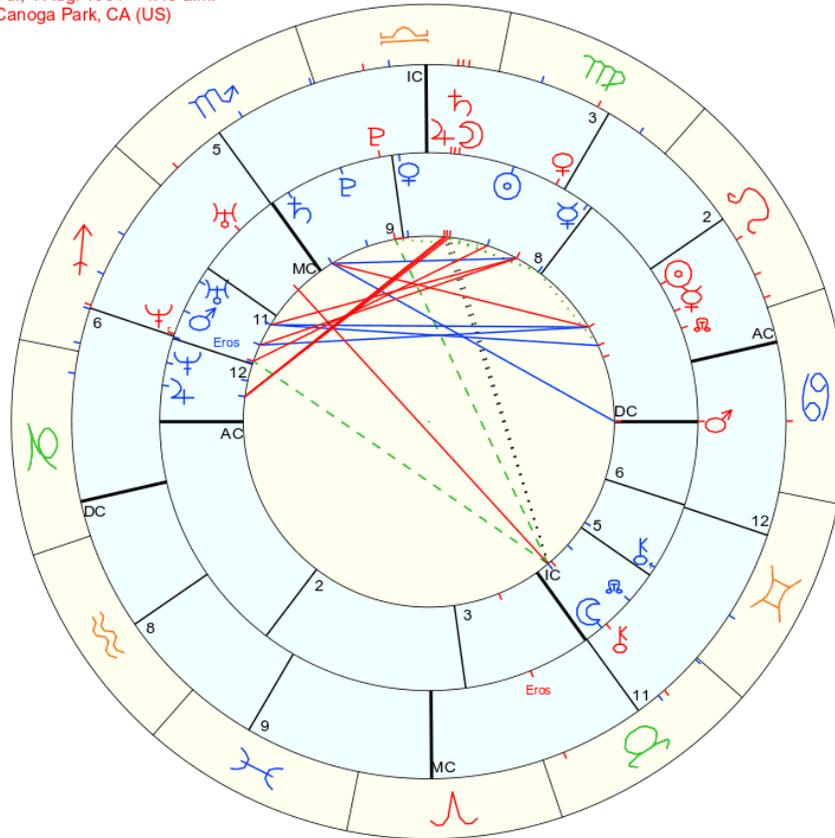

Some composite chart positions that can show a strong sexual connection are planets in the 8th house (aside of Saturn, though Saturn can sometimes show taking your sexual commitment/exclusivity seriously), composite Venus and Mars in aspect (especially conjunct, square, or opposite), composite Eros in the 1st, 5th, 7th, or 8th house, composite Eros aspecting one of the composite angles, composite Venus conjunct, square, or opposite composite Uranus or Pluto, composite Mars in the 1st or 5th house, or composite Mars aspecting one of the composite angles.

You can also compare each of your individual charts to the composite chart and assess for sexual chemistry individually. This may show one of you being a lot more sexually attracted than the other!

Lesson 2: Chemistry Examples

When I looked up the charts for the royals, I was struck by Meghan and Harry's chemistry - it's pretty strong! That sizzle might be what brought them together in the first place. Their synastry chart with Eros:

Name: ♂ Duke of Sussex Harry [Adb] born on Sa., 15 September 1984 in Paddington, ENG (UK) 0w12, 51n32	Time: 4:20 p.m. Univ.Time: 15:20 Sid. Time: 14:58:16	 www.astro.com Type: 61.GW 0.0-1+2 2-Mai-2019

First, Venus and Mars. Meghan's Venus is in Virgo and Harry's Mars is in Sagittarius, so they square. Harry's Venus is in Libra and Meghan's Mars is in Cancer, also square. Double Venus-Mars squares, aye heat! On top of that, her Virgo Venus squares his Sagittarius Uranus. Must've been quick.

Second, Harry's Mercury is conjunct his 8th house cusp. Mercury naturally rules the 3rd house and Virgo, and Meghan's Venus is in Virgo and conjunct the 3rd house cusp. That's not a super obvious chemistry connection on the surface, but also adds to their sizzle.

Third, Meghan's Venus, Moon, Saturn, and Jupiter all fall in Harry's 8th house. It's a good thing Saturn's there to ground some of the energy otherwise they might have been more of an intense fling!

Fourth, his Eros is at 22 degrees Sagittarius conjunct her Neptune at 22 degrees Sagittarius. So it might be a transcendent, soulful experience between them. Her Eros is at 3 degrees 33 minutes Taurus EXACTLY trine his Jupiter at 3 degrees 33 minutes Capricorn. An abundance of chemistry!

And in their composite chart, Venus and Mars are conjunct out-of-sign, and Eros is in Aquarius conjunct the 11th house cusp - don't want to know the kink that's bringing out, thanks!

Another one I figured had to have something strong was Katy Perry and her ex Russell Brand (they hopped to it fast and came apart just as quick!). It's all Eros with them: her Eros is in Capricorn, his Ascendant sign, and sandwiched between Mars and Jupiter, and he has Mars conjunct Jupiter (and Moon) in Aries; his Eros is conjunct the 8th house cusp, which naturally connects to Scorpio, and holy cow is she super Scorpio (triple Scorpio - Sun, Moon, Rising - plus Sun conjunct Scorpio ruler Pluto, and Mercury and Saturn in Scorpio); and in their composite chart, Eros is in Scorpio (to go with all of her Scorpio and his Eros on the 8th) and is conjunct Uranus in the house Uranus naturally rules, the 11th house - fast and furious and very very weird! (Orlando Bloom is a much better fit for her btw, he gets her Scorpio energy being a Scorpio Moon himself, but has a much more grounded chart than Brand and links nicely to her Capricorn Mars/Jupiter and Taurus North Node in the 7th house, which says she needs a nice and stable relationship with a nice and stable person)

Lesson 3: What You're Into by Sign

Now here's a quick rundown of what the signs want from sex (this can apply to your natal Venus, Mars, Eros, or 8th house cusp signs, or planets conjunct; it may also apply to the composite positions, and could explain being into something together that maybe you weren't into with anyone else):

Aries: Aries wants to take charge in sex, and may be more focused on what they want and not care quite so much what the other person wants. Aries doesn't like to take sex too seriously, and wants to enjoy itself. Aries can be quick to initiate sex, and doesn't want to think too much about it. Aries doesn't usually need a ton of foreplay, likes quickies, and a little spontaneity. Their head and face can be sensitive to touch as well.

Taurus: Taurus is the slow burn sign, so quickies tend to be out. It takes time for Taurus to get going, but once Taurus starts, it's going for a while. Block out some time! Can't go wrong with stimulating the senses with Taurus through food, drink, music, water, dance. Taurus doesn't mind getting dirty (sometimes literally in the dirt!). Taurus can be turned on by nature and the outdoors, but also by luxurious surroundings and fancy hotel rooms. Taurus likes massages, and the neck can be extra sensitive.

Gemini: Gemini is the sign of the mind, so you may need to make love to the mind before you make love to the body. As Gemini rules communication, dirty talk can go over well, and this is the sign ruling oral sex. Gemini can think up lots of fantasies, but may not act on them without a looooot of coaxing. Conversation can be foreplay for Gemini, and their shoulders, arms, and hands can be most sensitive.

Cancer: Cancer is the sign of emotions, so this sign usually wants an emotional connection before a physical one. Physical and emotional intimacy can go hand-in-hand. Cancer can be attentive in bed, wanting to tend to your needs, and may be most turned on in really romantic settings (even cheesy!). Cancer may not be very open about what they want though, so you have to get them to open up. Cancer rules the chest, which can be most sensitive (and can be really into boobs).

Leo: Leo loves the hunt, but usually wants to be the one chased instead of doing the chasing. Leo wants to feel like the prize, and may demand a lot of attention sexually. At the same time, Leo wants praise for their own technique. Leo tends to either be a very selfish lover or a very generous lover. Leo can love role-playing (and really get into character). Leo rules the back and the heart, so the back can be most sensitive, and the areas right over their heart.

Virgo: Virgo may be the Virgin, but that's usually not literal! Virgo rules sexual extremes, and can go from prolonged periods of celibacy or near celibacy to being a sexual beast. Kinkiness and perversions are under the domain of Virgo. Virgo tends to take a "health" approach to sex, seeing it more as a perfectly normal, physically healthy experience, so there may not be too much judging on what you're into, but there also may not be as much intimacy. Virgo may prefer a clean place to have sex, or showering first. Virgo rules the solar plexus, which can be most sensitive.

Libra: Libra rules others, so Libra can be very concerned about their partner, and Libra wants to make sure their partner is perfectly satisfied. But this is the sign of the Scales, so they also expect equal reciprocation. Libra can be most turned on in beautiful, luxurious surroundings, and after doing something romantic, and may have a hard time with surroundings that seem dirty or loud or chaotic in some way. The lower back can be most sensitive to touch.

Scorpio: Scorpio is the sign ruler of sex in general, so this is usually the sign people think is the most sexual, but that's not necessarily the case. Scorpio can be super passionate and intense, but without an emotional intimate connection, can get bored, impatient, and unsatisfied. Have that connection, and Scorpio is all in. Scorpio rules power and control, so this sign can be into BDSM (though this can link more strongly to asteroid Sado, number 118230).

Sagittarius: Sagittarius takes the lightness of a fire sign and mixes it with the physical passion of the previous sign, Scorpio, and can be super passionate but without the intense strings. Sagittarius loves the game, and knows how to play it well. This is the sign of free-wheeling sexual endeavors, having many partners (or at least many without commitment). Sagittarius is open to exploring cultural views of sex, and experimenting with positions. Sagittarius likes being the teacher or having a teacher.

Capricorn: Capricorn is the authority figure, so Capricorn may want to be in charge or be with someone who is. Capricorn isn't really into teaching though, so you've got to already be trained by someone else before sleeping with them. Capricorn is the traditional sign, so they may take a more traditional approach to sex and not be into anything too kinky. They do tend to keep quiet about their sex lives. This is an earth sign, so they can be surprisingly sensual.

Aquarius: Aquarius is the experimental sign, so this sign can be experimental in bed, and willing to try some things that seem weird. Aquarius is a fairly distant sign, so there may not be much passion, intensity, or emotion involved. Even though Virgo is the Virgin, Aquarius is really the one who doesn't need sex. Though since Aquarius rules groups, an orgy might work! (lol actually orgies are governed by asteroid Bacchus, number 2063). You may want to change things up frequently with Aquarius, or boredom kicks in fast.

Pisces: Pisces is a mutable water sign, which makes it the most fluid and flowy, so Pisces can be into a lot of different things at any moment. Pisces can be into one thing one day, and something else the next. Pisces is highly adaptable to whatever their partner is into, so very little may be off of the table. Pisces rules the imagination, so stimulating their imagination can turn them on, and Pisces is super romantic, so they can also be turned on from romantic gestures. Also, Pisces rules feet (so add in some Virgo and you've got a foot fetish!).

Class 5: Asteroids

Asteroids can be a fun addition to your relationship analysis, and this class explores 3 of them: Juno (committed love; Juno shows what you need to be committed), Amor (romantic love; Amor shows what you need to display love and potential blocks to doing so), and Cupido (crushes and infatuation). Look them up in your natal chart, in your composite chart, track them in transit, and see them in synastry!

If using astro.com to look them up (which is what I recommend using - the apps are notoriously unreliable), in Extended Chart Selection, click on Additional Objects, and select Juno in the list and add numbers 1221 for Amor and 763 for Cupido in the Manual entry box, then generate your chart.

Lesson 1: Asteroid Juno in the Natal Chart

Juno in the Signs

Aries: Aries is an independent sign, so having your natal asteroid Juno in Aries can make you desire commitment that allows for a degree of independence. A balance may be needed to give both partners the time to do what they want without completely avoiding the relationship. A clingy partner may be a nightmare for you. You may go for someone who is very active, and this can be a source of bonding.

Taurus: Taurus rules stability and security, so having your natal asteroid Juno in Taurus can make you crave a relationship that is calm, stable, and grounded. Chaotic relationships can be no-go for you. You may want a partner who you view as sensual, and connect with physically very well. Physical affection can be an important way you convey your loyalty.

Gemini: Gemini is the sign of the mind, so having your natal asteroid Juno in Gemini can make a mental connection of utmost importance in a relationship for you. Without that, you can get bored with someone quickly. You need the mental stimulation to keep you on your toes. You may prefer to have an active relationship socially.

Cancer: Cancer is the sign of emotions, so having your natal asteroid Juno in Cancer can make an emotional connection the most important thing for you in a relationship. You need to feel supported and nurtured by your partner, and you can give that in return and act as a solid cheerleader. Without support, the relationship can become emotionally unstable.

Leo: Leo is a highly romantic sign, and having your natal asteroid Juno in Leo can make you super romantic, or you attract someone who is. You may feel romance is an important part of commitment, and this is how you show your loyalty, which can be strong. One of you may be someone who attracts lots of attention, and the other gives lots of attention to the other.

Virgo: Virgo is the sign of work and the details, so having your natal asteroid Juno in Virgo can show you're willing to put in the work to improve your relationship, and want someone who is equally committed. You may need to drop perfectionism though. You may want a partner who pays attention to the little things, and who helps ease your insecurities.

Libra: Libra is the sign of relationships and commitment, so asteroid Juno goes well here. You may crave more balance and peace and harmony in your relationships, and chaotic relationships can really throw you off. You likely want someone you view as an equal, and a relationship with mutual respect. You may appreciate someone sociable and artsy.

Scorpio: Scorpio is the most passionate sign, so having your natal asteroid Juno in Scorpio can show your relationships can be intense, and you need someone who can satisfy your desire for high heat and passion. This can lead you into relationships with bad actors though, so you have to be more discriminating early on. Loyalty can be something you value fiercely.

Sagittarius: Sagittarius rules freedom, so having your natal asteroid Juno in Sagittarius can show you need to have a certain degree of freedom in your relationships, and don't like anyone clingy. This sign rules beliefs, so you may prioritize being with someone who has the same beliefs you do. Sagittarius is also adventurous, so you may want the relationship to bring adventure into your life, or go for someone with an adventurous spirit.

Capricorn: Capricorn is a traditional sign, so having your natal asteroid Juno in Capricorn may mean you go for more traditional commitment and relationships (whatever that means for you). You can go for the "norm". You can be responsible with those you care about, and take your relationships and commitment seriously. Wild relationships aren't your thing. You may be a late bloomer in relationships and commitment.

Aquarius: Aquarius is an unconventional sign, so having your natal asteroid Juno in Aquarius may mean you go for unconventional setups in relationships (whatever that means for you). Whatever was the norm for you growing up, you likely go for the opposite of that. Someone interesting and eccentric can be your thing. A foundation of friendship can be very important for you, and without that, you may not feel invested.

Pisces: Pisces is a spiritual sign, so having your natal asteroid Juno in Pisces may mean you need someone you feel a spiritual connection with. You may want someone sensitive and compassionate, and who is careful with your heart. You may be attracted to spiritual or artistic types. But you do need to be careful of trying to save anyone or let anyone save you, and healthy boundaries are crucial.

Juno in the Houses

1st House: This placement can make marriage and commitment something that is very important for you, and when conjunct (aligned with) the Ascendant, it may be a big part of your outward personality and who you come across as. In your relationship, you may need some degree of independence, yet also want someone who understands you.

2nd House: This placement can make you feel more confident and secure once you have commitment. This can be emotionally, and you can feel more secure in yourself, and it can be physically and financially (since this house does rule money). When committed, you may like to splurge on your partner.

3rd House: This placement can make communication important in your relationship and for commitment. Being able to talk things out can keep the commitment strong. You may want an active relationship, and you may do a lot together, especially in your immediate environment and community.

4th House: This placement can make the home and family important. With a friendship, you can feel like family; with a family relationship, you can feel very strong ties to one another; with a professional relationship, there may be an unusual kinship between you; and with a romantic relationship, you may choose to build a home/family together.

5th House: This placement can make romance very important, and your relationship can be fun and active. Doing hobbies together and being creative together can strengthen your commitment. If you have children together, they may bring you closer and strengthen the commitment more (though in some cases, they may end up the *only* reason you stay together).

6th House: This placement can be beneficial in work relationships, and you can work with others very well and give strong commitment to your work. You may be more committed to your work than to people sometimes, though! In relationships, the details may be important to you, and you can crave someone you can go through daily life with.

7th House: This placement puts Juno in the house of commitment, so commitment and relationships can be very important to you. You may be someone who has a lot of close relationships, goes from one to the next, and also has lots of close business relationships and friendships. You may feel you need to have a partner, but you also need to work on balancing with focus on the self at times.

8th House: This placement can show a need for intensity in your committed relationships. This can sometimes lead to bad choices and unavailable partners though, so that has to be avoided. Commitment can help you transform as a person, and you can be fiercely loyal and share everything with your partner.

9th House: This placement can help you learn through your committed relationships. You may seek a partner who is of a very different background from yourself so you can learn more about different ways of living, and you want your committed relationships to open up your mind and keep your interest.

10th House: This placement can be excellent for professional relationships and partnerships, and you may be committed to your career and ambitions. Perhaps to a fault! Personal relationships may not become more of a priority until later in life. Once committed, you may be recognized for your commitment, and your relationship may be looked up to in some way.

11th House: This placement can show wanting to be friends with someone first, and a foundation of friendship can help you with commitment. You may crave some independence, so that friendship is important to keep you around. Someone who shares your values or champions your causes can be best.

12th House: This placement can show some issues with getting into real committed relationships, whether through your own life or by falling for people you can't really be with. There may be some baggage, from early life or past lives, that needs to be addressed first, otherwise the wrong person keeps being your target. A spiritual connection can be important, and this placement can indicate you have a strong karmic relationship or something like a Twin Flame.

Natal Juno Aspects

Note that aspects need to be close with asteroids (under 3 degrees for Juno, and the closer the better!).

When Juno is conjunct any of your natal planets, this can make that planet incredibly important for you when it comes to commitment and long-term relationships (maybe even more important than the sign and house placement!). So if you find this, give it a LOT of attention. Focus on what that planet rules, and this gives you an idea of what you need for commitment. You may even commit to someone who is of that sign, has that planet strong in their own chart, or seems to embody the planet (is super gregarious like Jupiter, super mystical like Neptune, super intellectual like Mercury, etc.).

With the faster planets (Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Ceres) or Jupiter, this is likely going to be very personal for you, and you can identify strongly with commitment once you have it, and you may seek it out early in life. Commitment can actually help you feel more like your true self when it's the Sun or Moon conjunct Juno. You may feel you can better express yourself when it's Mercury, and you may be better able to take initiative and become more assertive when it's Mars. You may be more grounded and balanced when it's Venus, you may find commitment to be nurturing and nourishing with Ceres, and you may expand your life and are presented with more opportunities when it's Jupiter.

When it's Saturn conjunct your natal Juno, this can be a pickle. You're likely much, much more serious about commitment, and when you commit, you are completely committed. But, there are likely some issues that need to be addressed before commitment is possible for you - and they may be big issues. Saturn is the late-bloomer planet, so you may not have any real relationships until you're older (at least until after your first Saturn Return, which occurs between 28-32).

When it's Uranus conjunct your natal Juno, commitment can look very different for you. Whatever you view as traditional commitment-wise is probably not what commitment is to you. If your parents were high school sweethearts and married for 60 years, you may opt for a polyamorous relationship, and vice versa! Whatever is "normal" for you, you probably need the opposite for commitment. Once you find someone, you can commit fast.

When it's Neptune conjunct your natal Juno, that can make commitment a little difficult to grasp. Neptune is the foggy planet, after all! You have to be careful of falling for the wolf in sheep's clothing, being taken advantage of, and giving way too much. With Neptune, you usually need better boundaries, otherwise you get used and tossed aside. When you establish some healthy boundaries, and work on valuing yourself better, you can have the kind of commitment you dream about. Neptune is also the spiritual planet, so this can be an indicator of a strong karmic relationship in your future (BUT - that can be good or bad!).

When it's Pluto conjunct your natal Juno, you are someone who is ALL IN when you commit. There's no halfway point for you, you're all in or all out. You have to watch for almost being obsessive, and for being with someone who is. Stalking is not romantic! With Pluto ruling transformation, you may need to undergo a transformation first before finding commitment, or you may transform once you do find it.

When it's Chiron conjunct your natal Juno, well Chiron rules your wounds and healing, so you're someone who can heal through commitment. But, you're also someone who can be easily wounded by partners if you're not careful. Working on yourself, on your own, is likely needed to avoid the latter. Try not to look for a savior everywhere. But also try not to BE a savior for everyone too. Like Neptune, you may need to work on boundaries!

Planets that are sextile or trine your natal asteroid Juno are helpful for commitment. Sextiles and trines are the beneficial aspects, so those planets benefit your ability to commit. Think of those planets as commitment helpers.

Planets square or opposite your natal asteroid Juno do the opposite - they can make it more challenging! There are often old issues, trauma, and baggage associated with those planets. These may be in early life, or they may be from past lives.

Lesson 2: Juno in the Composite Chart

In the composite chart, asteroid Juno can show the kind of commitment you have in the relationship. In a fire sign (Aries, Leo, Sagittarius), commitment may involve giving one another lots of space to do what you want without feeling stifled at all. It might not look like traditional commitment on the surface because of this, but it can be what works for you.

In an earth sign (Taurus, Virgo, Capricorn), this can give more traditional commitment since these signs are more traditional. There may be some sort of delay in that commitment though, and it may not come until there is stability and security between you, and you're both comfortable.

In an air sign (Gemini, Libra, Aquarius), there's a mental component to the commitment, and communication may be the base of what keeps you together. You may seem like a couple who can talk about everything, and you can focus on being open and engaging with one another.

In a water sign (Cancer, Scorpio, Pisces), the focus is on emotional connection and understanding, and this can be the base of what keeps you together. Feelings can be strong between you, and may be shared, and this can make you feel very connected.

Juno in the composite houses can show where commitment may be focused in the relationship. You may seem like a super couple on the outside with Juno in the composite 1st or 10th houses, and others may look to you for what a couple should be like. Even if you're a mess underneath it all! It just likely won't look that way on the outside.

Juno in the 3rd, 5th, and 11th houses of the composite chart can make you more open with one another, and you can be very romantic in the 5th house. Friendship can be more important, having a foundation of friendship, in the 11th house.

Juno in the composite 2nd house can help bring some calm, grounding energy to your commitment, while Juno in the 7th house can show you may help others together. Inequities in the commitment may exist with Juno in the 6th or 8th houses, and that has to be addressed so it doesn't ruin things.

Juno in the 4th house can show an emotional connection that almost makes you feel like family (so if you actually are family, or if it's a romantic relationship and you end up living together or having children together, it can strengthen your commitment).

The 12th house hides energy, so composite Juno in the 12th house may show that commitment is difficult to grasp. There may be some karmic or spiritual baggage that needs to be addressed. This may be a spiritual union. If you do have commitment, neither of you may be very outward and external with it, and show your commitment to one another when it's just the two of you.

Aspects to Juno by the composite planets can impact commitment within the relationship. As with the natal chart, planets conjunct are the strongest and can have the biggest impact on commitment between you. Planets sextile or trine can help make commitment easier for both of you, while planets square or opposite can bring challenges that have to be worked through or they may keep commitment from happening.

Lesson 3: Juno Transits & the Natal Chart

Transit Juno in the Natal Houses

1st House: When transiting your 1st house, commitment may be on the brain. You can focus on anyone new you meet being more commitment-minded, otherwise you may lose interest quickly. If in a relationship, you may be more outward and open with that relationship.

2nd House: When transiting your 2nd house, you may focus on trying to make your commitment more secure in some way. It can be good for grounding your relationship and eliminating chaos. You may want to splurge on your partner, or want someone to splurge on you.

3rd House: When transiting your 3rd house, you may focus on communication as a starting point, if looking for someone new. Someone you can openly communicate with can seem more attractive. If attached, you may focus on improving communication between you.

4th House: When transiting your 4th house, you may focus on emotional connection as a starting point, if looking for someone new. You can crave emotional support, and someone who understands you. If attached, you may focus on improving emotional connection and support.

5th House: When transiting your 5th house, you may focus on romance. If single and looking for someone new, you may want someone to sweep you off of their feet, or vice versa. If in a relationship, you may want to do something really romantic with your partner.

6th House: When transiting your 6th house, you may focus on the little things. If single, you may want someone who notices all of the little details about you, or you may be the one paying close attention. If in a relationship, you may strive to improve your day-to-day connection.

7th House: When transiting your 7th house, you may focus on strengthening your commitment to your partner, if in a relationship. If single, you may want someone commitment-minded, charming, and you can get along well with.

8th House: When transiting your 8th house, you may want commitment to be more intense. If single, you may focus on someone passionate or brooding, or you may be the passionate one. If in a relationship, you can improve emotional bonds and intimacy.

9th House: When transiting your 9th house, you may want more space, if in a relationship. If single, you may want someone who seems adventurous, bold, and daring, and you can be more adventurous with someone by your side.

10th House: When transiting your 10th house, you may be extra committed to your goals and ambitions. You may strive to make progress and have success and recognition, and focus on your relationships may be lower on the priority list. When it comes to relationships, you may be more traditional, and you may take on new responsibilities.

11th House: When transiting your 11th house, you may focus on finding someone through your friends, or being friends first, if single. You'd like someone you can feel is like you. If in a relationship, you can work to strengthen the friendship you have.

12th House: When transiting your 12th house, you may be less interested in commitment. It just may not be something you're focused on at the time, if single, or you may be interested in someone you can't be with for some reason. If in a relationship, you may want to give it attention when it's just the two of you.

Transit Juno to the Natal Planets

Note: Asteroid Juno aspects usually last for about 2-4 weeks.

The Sun: Transit Juno conjunct your natal Sun can be a time when you're more focused on commitment. If single, you can seek it out, while if attached, you may want to show your commitment off. Sextiles and trines to your natal Sun can help you be more comfortable with commitment, while squares and oppositions can make you more uncomfortable.

The Moon: Transit Juno conjunct your natal Moon can be a time when you're more emotionally at ease with commitment, and want more emotional support, whether single or attached. Sextiles and trines to your natal Moon help you find that, while squares and oppositions can make it a challenge.

Mercury: Transit Juno conjunct your natal Mercury can be a time when you're thinking more about commitment, and you want more of a mental connection with someone or your partner. Sextiles and trines to your natal Mercury can help you with communication, while squares and oppositions can breed misunderstanding.

Venus: Transit Juno conjunct your natal Venus can be a time when you're more romantic, more charming, and more affectionate, if in a relationship. If single, you may find you're attracting more people to you. Sextiles and trines to your natal Venus can help you share the love, while squares and oppositions can bring laziness, stubbornness, or selfishness.

Mars: Transit Juno conjunct your natal Mars can be a time when you're more driven to be committed. If in a relationship, you may want to take things to the next level or re-commit in some way; if single, you can be more active in trying to find it. Sextiles and trines to your natal Mars can help you be more patient but still proactive, while squares and oppositions can lead to frustrations and fights.

Ceres: Transit Juno conjunct your natal Ceres can be great for working to nurture your committed relationships, and you can commit to those you're serious about. Sextiles and trines to your natal Ceres can help you nurture in a less intense way, while squares and oppositions may lead to feeling unsupported.

Jupiter: Transit Juno conjunct your natal Jupiter can open up opportunities for you to commit (if single) or re-commit (if attached). You can be more gregarious and fun in love, but may also want extra space. Sextiles and trines to your natal Jupiter can make it easier to balance space with commitment, while squares and oppositions can lead to pushing more for space than anything else.

Saturn: Transit Juno conjunct your natal Saturn can make you more serious about commitment, but you may not be as focused on pursuing it, if single. If attached, you may try to strengthen your commitment. Sextiles and trines to your natal Saturn can be excellent for being comfortable with commitment, while squares and oppositions can make it difficult (and try to break you apart).

Uranus: Transit Juno conjunct your natal Uranus can help you be open to finding someone in a different way or forging a different kind of commitment, if single. If attached, you may want to make some change or bring something different into the mix. Sextiles and trines to your natal Uranus can help make things fresh but still stable, while squares and oppositions can bring instability and impulsive behavior.

Neptune: Transit Juno conjunct your natal Neptune can make a spiritual connection more important to you, and you may search for a spiritual equal, if single, or try to be more spiritually connected, if attached. Do watch your boundaries. Sextiles and trines to your natal Neptune can help with the spiritual connection and still maintain boundaries, while squares and oppositions can make it hard to pinpoint what's needed or cause some taking advantage.

Pluto: Transit Juno conjunct your natal Pluto can make you more intense when it comes to commitment, almost obsessed at times. If single, you may throw yourself into finding someone, and can focus on someone brooding and dark and magnetic. If in a relationship, you may focus on the intimacy and sexual connection. Sextiles and trines to your natal Pluto can help with passion without the obsession, while squares and oppositions may turn up the obsession and need some daylight.

Chiron: Transit Juno conjunct your natal Chiron can help you focus on healing so you can be more open to commitment, if single. If attached, you may find you do a little healing with your partner. Sextiles and trines to your natal Chiron can help with healing and understanding, while squares and oppositions make for more sensitivity and open wounds.

Transit Aspects to Natal Juno

Transit Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, and Mars don't move very fast, so their aspects only last for a few hours (Moon) to a few days (the rest). When they conjunct your natal asteroid Juno, this is a brief period where you're more focused on commitment and open to it. Sextiles and trines help you feel comfortable, and squares and oppositions can bring some minor issues.

Transit Ceres to your natal Juno can bring energy to nurture and support commitment. This can be beneficial under conjuncts, sextiles, and trines, but may be difficult to achieve under squares and oppositions.

Transit Jupiter to your natal Juno can bring expansive energy to commitment for you. Under conjuncts, sextiles, and trines, you can be more commitment-minded, and comfortable making a commitment or strengthening existing commitment. Under squares and oppositions, you may crave some space.

Transit Saturn to your natal Juno can be helpful or challenging. Sextiles and trines can be helpful, and you can make commitment fairly easily, of sound mind, and realistically. Conjuncts, squares, and oppositions can bring challenges, and you may have lessons to learn or past issues to work through that are brought up again.

Transit Uranus to your natal Juno can bring change. Sextiles and trines can mean change you enjoy, that you want, or that makes commitment better for you. Squares and oppositions can mean change you don't see coming, you'd rather not have, or isn't comfortable for you, and requires you to be flexible and test your limits. Conjuncts can go either way.

Transit Neptune to your natal Juno can bring spiritual energy, but also foggy energy. Sextiles and trines can help with spiritual connections, and you can be more compassionate and understanding in love. Conjuncts can bring more fog, but also more understanding. Squares and oppositions can make something lurk beneath the surface that's hard to see, and you need to work on a better spiritual connection, but also better boundaries.

Transit Pluto to your natal Juno can increase passionate energy. With sextiles and trines, this can be easy to manage, and you can channel your passionate energy for commitment well. With conjunctions, squares, and oppositions, you may struggle to control it, and deeply-held issues related to commitment can be brought to the surface for you to face and deal with.

Transit Chiron to your natal Juno can prompt some healing with relationships. With sextiles and trines, this can be comfortable for you, and you may do it even subconsciously. With conjunctions, squares, and oppositions, old wounds related to commitment may be picked at, and you need to work on finally healing them for good.

Lesson 4: Asteroid Amor in the Natal Chart

Amor in the Signs

Aries: With Aries being independent, you may want more of your own freedom to do your own things with Amor in Aries. This can get in the way sometimes though, and you may push a little too much. Someone you can find that delicate balance with, who gives you room but also holds you accountable, can be best for you. When in love, you can be really passionate.

Taurus: With Taurus being the sensual sign, you may want a strong physical connection in love with Amor in Taurus. This might make you confuse sex with love though, so it's important for you to learn the difference. Someone you can have both of those things with, great love and passion, can be best for you. When in love, you can be very affectionate and like to pamper your partner.

Gemini: With Gemini being the sign of the mind, you may want a strong mental connection in love with Amor in Gemini. You can get bored with people pretty quickly, so grounding your mind can be important. Playing 200 questions with potential partners isn't the best! Someone who is naturally interesting, intelligent, and curious can be best for you. When in love, you can keep it fresh.

Cancer: With Cancer being the sign of emotions, you may want a strong emotional connection in love with Amor in Cancer. You may be a little too much sometimes though, oversharing too soon or acting clingy, and that pushes people away. Giving yourself more self-care and support can be important to avoid that. Someone who is sweet and nurturing can be best for you. When in love, you can be a big cheerleader for your partner.

Leo: With Leo being super affectionate, you may want a lot of praise and attention and affection in love with Amor in Leo. This can get demanding though, and you may seem insecure to potential partners. Work on your own confidence so you don't have to seek validation from those you're dating. Someone who is fun-loving, shares your hobbies, and is generous can be best for you. When in love, you can be a big-hearted softie.

Virgo: With Virgo being the perfectionist sign, you may place high expectations on your partner and relationship in love with Amor in Virgo. This just leads to inevitable disappointment and heartbreak though. Try to figure out why it is that you're trying to check off a list of perfection in the first place. Are you just trying to guard yourself? Someone who is attentive and hard-working can be best for you. When in love, you can do lots of little things for your partner.

Libra: With Libra being the sign requiring peace and balance, you may want total harmony and equity in love with Amor in Libra. Equality and respect are a good thing to shoot for, but if you're avoiding conflict to keep the peace and letting big things slide, that adds up over time and leads to the relationship's downfall. Don't run from problems, and don't believe that if you have one the relationship is bad (even the good ones go through bad times!). Someone who is respectful can be best for you. When in love, you can be very considerate.

Scorpio: With Scorpio being the intense sign, you may crave major passion and sexual chemistry with Amor in Scorpio. This can go too far though, and you may walk away from something good if the person can't match your insane level of intensity, or you may opt for toxic people and relationships just for the intensity of it. Scorpio being ruler of transformation means there may be a transformation required linked to some deeply-held issues causing this. Someone loyal and strong can be best for you. When in love, you can be all-in.

Sagittarius: With Sagittarius being the adventurous sign, you may want adventure and fun in love with Amor in Sagittarius. This can make committing a little hard for you though, since you want freedom to do whatever, whenever. Tackle whatever is causing you to run in the first place. Someone who gives you space but still keeps you interested can be best for you. When in love, you can be passionate and open.

Capricorn: With Capricorn being the sign ruling goals, you may want someone you view as successful with Amor in Capricorn. Don't let that be your only criteria, someone successful or with recognition. Responsibilities can also be an issue, and you may take on too much in love, or not enough, and need balance. Someone disciplined, focused, and traditional can be best for you. When in love, you can be fully committed.

Aquarius: With Aquarius being the sign of friendships, you may require a foundation of friendship in love with Amor in Aquarius. This can be a good thing, but you may push for freedom a little too much, and use friendship as either an excuse for a lack of passion, or a placeholder for lovers. Someone who gives you the room to fully be yourself, eccentricities and all, can be best for you. In love, you can be loyal and interesting.

Pisces: With Pisces being the compassionate sign, you may be very sacrificing and devoted in love with Amor in Pisces. This can go to extremes though, and you may give too much of yourself to others, get manipulated and controlled by those with bad intentions, and go for crazy love just because it feels "destined". Boundaries are incredibly important for you to have healthy love. Someone who can respect your boundaries and see you as your own person can be best for you. In love, you can be gentle and understanding.

Amor in the Natal Houses

1st House: This placement can make you more outward with love, and you may feel like you need to spread the love, love everyone, and that love is very important in life. Your love relationships may be put on display, so you may have to work on keeping that more private.

2nd House: This placement can show you need stability and security in love, and this can help you be more affectionate and loyal. But, you may also place a lot of importance on possessions and money, and may need to work on not valuing that more than people.

3rd House: This placement can show you need mental stimulation in love, and someone who is interesting and exciting can be good for you. You may love keeping busy and being engaged with others, in your community, and with your neighborhood.

4th House: This placement can show you need emotional connection in love, and someone who is supportive and nurturing can be good for you. You may love time at home, time with those you think of as family, and family love can be incredibly important to you.

5th House: This placement can show you need fun and romance in love, and someone romantic and creative can be good for you. You may love drama and theatrics, so you may need to work on keeping that from becoming bad or dangerous.

6th House: This placement can show you need the little things taken care of in love, and someone who is attentive can be good for you. This house rules work, so you may love work above all else; this house is also a house of service, so you may love being of service to others.

7th House: This placement can show you need a true partner in love, and someone who treats you with respect can be good for you. Relationships may be something you're always focused on, and you may have difficulty being alone (unless in Aries, Sagittarius, or Aquarius).

8th House: This placement can show you need passion and intensity in love, and someone deep and interesting can be good for you. You may focus on strong emotional bonds, and may find love to be a transformative experience.

9th House: This placement can show you need freedom in love, and someone who gives you space can be good for you. You may see love as a learning experience, and you may love learning and be an eternal student of life.

10th House: This placement can show you put love as a life goal, and someone who you admire can be good for you. You may love pursuing goals, and may love achievement more than people at times, so tragic ambition needs to be managed.

11th House: This placement can show you need some independence in love, and someone who gives you that can be good for you. You can love everyone all at once, the whole world and everyone in it, and can be very charitable and champion causes passionately.

12th House: This placement can show you need a spiritual connection in love, and someone caring and understanding can be good for you. Emotional, mental, spiritual, and even physical boundaries may need to be worked on for healthy love. You may be very loving behind closed doors, without anyone looking.

Natal Amor Aspects to the Natal Planets

Note that aspects need to be close with asteroids, under 3 degrees (and many it's 1-2 degrees max, so really close!).

When Amor is conjunct any of your natal planets, that makes the planets very important for the way you show love and any potential blocks to having love. It can also show what you love most is ruled by that planet (like loving your career most with Saturn, or loving your pets most with Mercury, or loving your mother most with the Moon).

With the Sun, you may seem like Amor (a very loving person, affectionate, who loves everything - may have gotten you in trouble when young lol). Expressing your true self can be something you get the most joy out of. Blocks may be with maybe being selfish or egocentric (you may love yourself so much that no one else can compare!).

With the Moon, you can be loving and affectionate emotionally, so you can seem like a very supportive, nurturing, encouraging person. Expressing yourself emotionally can be something you enjoy, and you may share love most when you feel emotionally secure. Blocks may be with being too subjective and not stepping out of your emotions enough.

With Mercury, love may be expressed with your words. You may be a writer, a poet, or a motivational speaker. People can feel the love in what you say and write. Blocks may be with this becoming superficial, all talk and no walk, and being too in your head with love.

With Venus, this is the planet of love, so you can be incredibly affectionate, loving, romantic, and comfortable with others. You may be in love with love, so if that's an issue, that has to be worked on. You may love being around others so much that you don't love being alone at all, so a little self-love may be needed.

With Mars, passion can be high in love, and you can greatly enjoy the hunt. You might be a professional hunter, and give up on someone once you've caught them - not good! Physical endeavors can be something you enjoy a lot, and you can channel that love of the hunt through something physical.

With Ceres, you can be extremely loving and nurturing, and quite romantic. You can feel it's important to nurture existing love in your life, feel nourished by love, and may take a more romantic approach to your life in general, feeling whimsical.

With Jupiter, you can seem so gregarious, so loving of everyone, and very accepting of everyone, but with Jupiter being the I-need-space planet, there can be some issues with actually committing to anyone. You need love that keeps you on your toes and is always teaching you. You may fall for your actual teacher (haha don't get expelled!). New experiences can give you the greatest joy.

With Saturn, well this planet restricts, so you may not be very affectionate or loving, at least not on the surface and not early in life. Saturn delays us until adulthood with whatever it touches, so you may not get real love until you're an adult (after your first Saturn Return, 28-32). You're likely a love late bloomer. Once you do find love, you're very committed and take it seriously, but do need to watch for taking on too much responsibility.

With Uranus, love is unconventional and unusual and out there. You probably love causes, charities, your friends, mankind, the world at large. Sometimes it's hard for you to just love an individual person! Someone really eccentric can be best for you, and who is right alongside you with your causes.

With Neptune, love is spiritual for you. You want a spiritual connection, and you may have some big destined love match at some point in your life (this can be a Twin Flame situation). But, you have to be careful of not having solid boundaries to protect yourself from those who want to take advantage of you by pretending to be your big love (watch out for toxic narcissists and their love bombing!). Spiritual pursuits can be your biggest joy.

With Pluto, love is transformative for you. You go for intense and passionate, and this can be good until it goes bad. You may opt for toxic relationships just because of the passionate energy, and mistake horrible fighting for love (hint: it's not). Love doesn't have to be either stable and boring or toxic and exciting. You likely need to learn middle ground, and a transformation beforehand may help with that.

With Chiron, love can be healing - or hurting. If you work on yourself on your own, it can be healing, and help you grow even more and become more confident in yourself. But if you seek love to solve your problems for you or avoid your issues altogether, it can be hurting, and make your wounds worse. So, work on your issues by yourself first. You may find once you get started with that, you actually enjoy it.

Planets that are sextile or trine your natal Amor are helpful for expressing love and working through any blocks. They're beneficial and supportive of love in your life.

Planets square or opposite your natal Amor present challenges for love, and may represent those blocks and issues that need to be worked on. They may be something you think is more important than love, or something that makes you feel unworthy of love.

Lesson 5: Amor in the Composite Chart

In the composite chart, asteroid Amor can show what you love together, and the way you express love together in the relationship. In a fire sign (Aries, Leo, Sagittarius), there can be more energy to express love, but you may also need to give one another more space so you don't feel crowded.

In an earth sign (Taurus, Virgo, Capricorn), you may be more practical with love together, and love can be expressed in more tangible, physical ways, so physical intimacy may be more important.

In an air sign (Gemini, Libra, Aquarius), love may be expressed in the way you communicate with one another, through your words. A mental connection can be important, and you may love coming together mentally.

In a water sign (Cancer, Scorpio, Pisces), emotional intimacy can be more important for the open expression of love. An emotional connection may be needed for that, and you may love expressing what you feel with one another.

Amor in the composite houses can show what you love together. You may seem like a super loving couple to others with Amor in the composite 1st house, and you may be that PDA couple. You both may love being together and love the relationship itself (but this can be a challenge if the relationship isn't great, and you're together just because you like the way others see you).

Amor in the composite 2nd, 6th, or 10th houses can be excellent for business relationships since these are the professional houses, and you can love spending time on work together. In a personal relationship, there may be more of a work approach to love at times, like it's a job for both of you (this isn't necessarily bad though if neither of you feels like it's a burden).

Amor in the composite 3rd or 11th houses can make connecting intellectually and as friends very important. In the 7th house, Amor can make you both enjoy focusing on the people in your life together, as well as enjoy the commitment you have to one another.

Amor in the composite 5th house amplifies the romance, and you can enjoy being romantic together. The 5th house rules children, so if you have children together, that can increase the love you have. Amor in the composite 9th house might make you a more adventurous couple, but you may also be a couple that benefits from some time apart.

Amor in the composite 4th house is helpful if you live together and you can love being together at home. It's also helpful for emotional expression. Amor in the 8th house may show you have strong intimacy, but may also have deep issues that need to be worked on. One may be more passionate and invested than the other.

Amor in the composite 12th house can make it so you don't really express love with one another when around other people. You may be very affectionate together when alone, but keep that out of the spotlight.

Aspects to Amor by the composite planets can impact romance within the relationship. As with the natal chart, planets conjunct are the strongest and can have the biggest impact on love between you. Planets sextile or trine can help make romance easier for both of you, while planets square or opposite can bring challenges that have to be worked through.

Lesson 6: Amor Transits & the Natal Chart

Transit Amor in the Natal Houses

1st House: When transiting your 1st house, romance may be on the brain. You can be more affectionate and express the love you feel more openly. If single, you may focus on meeting someone who is open with their affection and romantic. This can also be a good time to work on self love.

2nd House: When transiting your 2nd house, you may try to bring more stability and security into love, and expressing love may only feel comfortable when you're secure. This may also be a period when you focus more on something you own, something material of value, and your finances.

3rd House: When transiting your 3rd house, you may seek to improve communication in love, if in a relationship, and if single, you may focus on meeting someone you feel a mental connection with. This may also be a period where you enjoy keeping yourself busier than usual.

4th House: When transiting your 4th house, you may seek to improve emotional understanding in love, if in a relationship, and if single, you may focus on meeting someone you have an emotional connection with. This may also be a period where you want to spend more time at home or with the people you think of as family.

5th House: When transiting your 5th house, you may try to have more fun in your relationship, if attached. If single, you may seek out someone who is an artist or really creative. This may also be a period where you enjoy spending more time on your hobbies and being creative.

6th House: When transiting your 6th house, you may pay more attention to your partner, if attached. If single, you may want someone who you view as a good worker and practical. This may also be a period where you enjoy your work or tending to the smaller tasks and chores more than usual.

7th House: When transiting your 7th house, you may seek out more time with others and a partner. If in a relationship, you may want more time with your partner, and strive to improve respect. If single, you may seek out someone open to commitment.

8th House: When transiting your 8th house, you may seek out more passion. If in a relationship, you can work on improving the emotional bonds between you. If single, you may want someone intense and deep, but need to avoid going for the toxic type.

9th House: When transiting your 9th house, you may crave more space from others. If in a relationship, you may try to have an adventure with your partner to keep it interesting. If single, you may want someone who you view as exciting. This may be a period when you enjoy spending time learning from experience.

10th House: When transiting your 10th house, this might make you focus more on your goals in life, and you can feel more ambitious. This can help with achieving a goal, and you may hit your stride in some way, but may put love on the back burner. On the other hand, love may become a goal that you strive to have in a healthy way.

11th House: When transiting your 11th house, you may want to spend more time with friends, meeting new people, and expanding your social circle. You can greatly enjoy pursuing your causes and making progress with your dreams. Love may take a different kind of focus for you.

12th House: When transiting your 12th house, you can keep quiet about your romantic feelings for someone, and only show it when it's the two of you alone. This may be a period where you enjoy focusing on spiritual pursuits, and you can work on eliminating love and romance blocks.

Transit Amor to the Natal Planets

Note: Asteroid Amor aspects usually last for about 1-2 weeks.

The Sun: Transit Amor conjunct your natal Sun can make you feel more romantic, more open to love, and you may want to share the love you feel with everyone. You can be a ball of love. Sextiles and trines to your natal Sun make it easier to express love without going over the top, while squares and oppositions can make you withhold love or feel you don't have any in your life.

The Moon: Transit Amor conjunct your natal Moon can bring romantic feelings, stronger love emotions, and you can be more nurturing with those you love. You may have more love at home or with family. Sextiles and trines to your natal Moon help you feel more comfortable with expressing love, while squares and oppositions can make it difficult for you to share what you feel, or become too subjective in love relationships.

Mercury: Transit Amor conjunct your natal Mercury can make it easier for you to express loving feelings through communication. You may talk about love, write about it, read about it, hear about it. This might be a good time for a first 'I love you', as well as under sextiles and trines. Squares and oppositions can make it challenging for you to communicate love.

Venus: Transit Amor conjunct your natal Venus increases the desire for romance. If in a relationship, this can be an excellent time to do some big romantic gestures. If single, you may seem more attractive to others. Sextiles and trines to your natal Venus can do this to a lesser degree, while squares and oppositions can make you more selfish, stubborn, or lazy in love, or have less patience with others.

Mars: Transit Amor conjunct your natal Mars brings major energy for love and expressing love, so this can be a good time for sex. You may feel a strong urge to do something romantic or focus on romance in some way. Sextiles and trines to your natal Mars make this easier to manage, while squares and oppositions might bring out frustrations and annoyances in love, and fights with others.

Ceres: Transit Amor conjunct your natal Ceres can amplify romance quite a bit, and you can be sweet, considerate, and helpful with those you love. You may want to nurture someone you care about, and can be romantic overall. Sextiles and trines help you show romance without going too far, while squares and oppositions might bring out feelings of lack and being supported in love.

Jupiter: Transit Amor conjunct your natal Jupiter expands on love, and you can feel so good in your love relationships. You may want to share the love you feel with anyone and everyone, and aren't very picky about it. Sextiles and trines to your natal Jupiter can help you be more discerning, while squares and oppositions can either make you too giving or not enough.

Saturn: Transit Amor conjunct your natal Saturn can make you more serious and committed with love. Nothing casual or light, only focused. You may have more responsibilities with loved ones, and you may want to work on love issues. Generally, you may feel you have less love in your life and are more restricted with expressing love, and this can be worse under the squares and oppositions. The sextiles and trines to your natal Saturn can make you more serious but without all of the limitations.

Uranus: Transit Amor conjunct your natal Uranus can make you open up to expressing love in new ways. You can enjoy making changes in your life, and being true to yourself and your quirks. Sextiles and trines to your natal Uranus can help you control this properly, while squares and oppositions can make you impatient, impulsive, and easily irked with loved ones.

Neptune: Transit Amor conjunct your natal Neptune focuses on spiritual connection in love, and you want to feel a soul connection with someone. You can enjoy focusing on spiritual matters as well, and being creative. Sextiles and trines to your natal Neptune can help with the spiritual connection, while squares and oppositions make boundaries more important.

Pluto: Transit Amor conjunct your natal Pluto focuses on transforming through love, or transforming the love in your life. This helps make it healthy and more positive for you. There may be more fights and power struggles with others though, and this can be worse under the square and opposition. Sextiles and trines to your natal Pluto can help you improve passion without the trouble.

Chiron: Transit Amor conjunct your natal Chiron can focus on healing love issues or healing through love. You may be more sensitive with loved ones, but need to work on the issues. This can be easier under the sextiles and trines, and you can work it out with less problems, but it may be harder under the squares and oppositions, and you're a lot more sensitive and easily wounded if you don't protect yourself.

Transit Planets to Natal Amor

Transit Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, and Mars don't move very fast, so their aspects only last for a few hours (Moon) to a few days (the rest). When they conjunct your natal asteroid Amor, this is a brief period where you're more focused on love and want to express it openly. Sextiles and trines help you feel comfortable with doing so, and squares and oppositions can bring some minor issues and hold you back.

Transit Ceres to your natal Amor can increase your romantic energy, make you more whimsical, and you can nurture your connections via romance. This can be beneficial under conjunctions, sextiles, and trines, while squares and oppositions may bring attention to where you lack romantic energy in your life.

Transit Jupiter to your natal Amor can make you much more romantic, affectionate, and want to share love with others under the conjunction, sextile, or trine. This can be a great time for a romantic gesture with your partner, if in a relationship, or enjoying dating, if single. Under squares and oppositions, you may want to get away from love demands.

Transit Saturn to your natal Amor can focus on being more disciplined with love and how you share it and who you share it with. Under the conjunction, square, or opposition, there may be lessons to learn and old issues to work on with love. You can feel restricted and limited in love expression until you do work on it. Under sextiles and trines, it's a lot easier to manage, and you can be more committed in love.

Transit Uranus to your natal Amor can make you want to express love in different ways, or give you a new view on love. There can be some sort of change associated with love for you. Under the square or opposition, this may be in a challenging way, and you may struggle with the change. The sextile or trine can make it easier and something you want, while the conjunction can go either way.

Transit Neptune to your natal Amor can make you more sacrificing in love, and wanting to do as much as you can for others. Under sextiles and trines, this can make you more empathetic and compassionate. Under conjunctions, squares, and oppositions, this might make you give away too much of yourself, and you have to work on having better boundaries. These can also show a relationship fading out of your life.

Transit Pluto to your natal Amor can make you more passionate in love, and under sextiles and trines, this can be easier to manage, and intimacy can be strengthened. Under conjunctions, squares, and oppositions, you may experience power struggles in love relationships, and have to transform the way you express love, your attitude and approach to love, or face some old, deeply-held love issues.

Transit Chiron to your natal Amor can make you sweeter in love, and under the sextiles and trines, you can be there for your loved ones, and do some healing from old love wounds. Under squares and oppositions, you can be more sensitive to being hurt by others, and may need to focus more on yourself and healing on your own. The conjunction can go either way, but makes healing more important.

Lesson 7: Asteroid Cupido in the Natal Chart

Cupido in the Signs

Aries: With Aries, you may be someone who takes the reins when it comes to first meeting and pursuit of love. You can be someone who has a zest for love at times, and loves to start new things (though may have a hard time seeing them through to the end unless you've got some grounding earth or Saturn). Your independent nature can be viewed as attractive.

Taurus: With Taurus, you may be someone whose passion is more of a slow burn, and you take your time when you're interested in someone or something. You may love splurging and being splurged on, and can be highly sensual and indulgent, loving the richness of everything. Your grounded nature can be viewed as attractive.

Gemini: With Gemini, you may be someone who pursues in your head, and less so in the physical world (depending on house placement and Mars). You can crush on people left and right but it's only in your head. When you become interested in something intellectually, you can get obsessed with it. Your intellect can be viewed as attractive.

Cancer: With Cancer, you may be someone who falls hard and fast, and throws all of your feelings into it. But you may snap out of it quickly and fall hard and fast again! You may fall in love a million times. When you're emotionally invested in something, you can really get into it, and you may be quite domestic and focused on your family. Your nurturing side can be viewed as attractive.

Leo: With Leo, you may be someone who seems full of life. You can be very romantic, in love with drama and theatrics, and may be in love with love a little bit. You may give a lot of attention to those you're interested in, but also want a lot of attention from them. You can be passionate about your hobbies and any creative ventures you pursue. Your creativity and generosity can be viewed as attractive.

Virgo: With Virgo, you may be someone who really focuses on the little things when you're first infatuated with someone. You can go out of your way to do a million little things for them and take care of anything that would help them. You can be passionate about the work you do, and benefit most from doing work you love. Your practicality can be viewed as attractive.

Libra: With Libra, you may be someone who is passionate about relationships, partnerships, and commitment. You can treat someone as an equal and give a lot of weight to their thoughts and ideas when you're first interested in them. Equality, compromise, fairness, and justice can be passions for you. Your charm can be viewed as attractive.

Scorpio: With Scorpio, you may be someone who is incredibly passionate, and when you're first interested in someone, you can get completely wrapped up in them (obsessed). You're either all-in or all-out. Transforming and sharing can be passions for you in life. Your passionate energy can be viewed as attractive.

Sagittarius: With Sagittarius, you may be someone who is passionate, but in a less intense way than Scorpio. Your passion can be more for fun and play. When you're first interested in someone, you may go fully forward with passion, but need some time to go beyond that. You can be passionate about your beliefs and learning in life. Your adventurous spirit can be viewed as attractive.

Capricorn: With Capricorn, you may be someone who takes a more traditional approach to love and dating when first interested in someone. You can focus on making things more serious, but only with someone you can take seriously. Your goals and career may be your biggest passions in life. Your stature can be viewed as attractive.

Aquarius: With Aquarius, you may be someone who takes an unconventional approach to love and dating when first interested in someone. You may be more unusual in your displays of interest. Your dreams and causes may be your biggest passions in life. Your individuality can be viewed as attractive.

Pisces: With Pisces, you may be someone who either has a hard time being infatuated, or who is constantly. If the former, you may want more of a spiritual connection with someone. If the latter, you can make up fantasies in your head that are better than reality. Your spirituality can be your biggest passion in life. Your compassion and empathy can be viewed as attractive.

Cupido in the Natal Houses

1st House: This placement can make you seem attractive, and people can gravitate toward you easily. You can showcase your passionate energy, and have a love for new beginnings.

2nd House: This placement can make you more grounded with romantic pursuits, and you can be more sensual early on. You may have a love of money and passion for your values.

3rd House: This placement can make you more intellectual with romantic pursuits, and you can showcase your intentions via words. You may have a love for words, writing, speaking, learning, or teaching.

4th House: This placement can make you more emotional in romantic pursuits, and you can be nurturing, supportive, and encouraging in those you're interested in. You may have a love for the home and family.

5th House: This placement can make you more romantic in romantic pursuits, and you can make grand gestures and add in some flair. Your big loves may be a hobby, a creative talent, or your children.

6th House: This placement can make you more practical in romantic pursuits, and you can pay close attention to those you're interested in. You may need a love for your work and what you do on a daily basis.

7th House: This placement can make you more charming with those you're interested in, and you can be willing to make compromises, meet in the middle, and show them respect. You may love commitment and fairness.

8th House: This placement can make you more passionate with those you're interested in, and you can give a lot to them. You may need to transform in some way to find the love.

9th House: This placement can make you more gregarious with those you're interested in, and you can share stories and wisdom, and want to have new experiences with them. You may love travel, learning, and teaching.

10th House: This placement can make you strive for greater romance and attractiveness, and you can be more traditional early on. Your biggest loves may be professional though, or your big goals in life.

11th House: This placement can make you want to befriend those you're interested in first, and you can pursue causes together. You may take time to show interest. You may love being unconventional.

12th House: This placement can make you quieter when you're interested in someone, and you may not say anything. This might mean nothing happens if they don't make the first move. Do watch for lowering boundaries too much at the onset of relationships. You may love spiritual pursuits.

Natal Cupido Aspects to the Natal Planets

Remember that aspects with asteroids need to be under 3 degrees.

When Cupido is conjunct any of your natal planets, that makes the planets very important for the way you are at the onset of relationships, when meeting someone, and when infatuated. It can also show what you're most passionate about is ruled by that planet (like passion for your career with Saturn, or passion for words with Mercury).

With the Sun, you may seem like Cupido, and you're always crushing on someone, a total flirt, or you seem to attract a lot of people to you without much effort. Just being you can be very attractive. You may seem like a passionate person in many ways, which can be attractive as well. But you may have more passion for yourself than anyone else!

With the Moon, you may be emotionally invested more quickly when you meet someone new. You may fall for those who seem to understand you emotionally and offer emotional support. You may be a *little* too clingy emotionally early on and need to make sure you're supporting yourself. But generally, love and romance can make you feel pretty good.

With Mercury, you may focus on communication early on, and fall for those you connect with mentally. You can find intellect extremely attractive, and others may find your manner of communicating or intellect attractive as well. When interested in someone, you may come up with lots of scenarios in your head before you ever say anything.

With Venus, you can be very attractive, even if not conventionally attractive physically. There just may be something about you. You likely don't need to do any chasing, and others just come to you. You can be very sensual early on, and romance can be super important to you.

With Mars, you may like doing the chasing early in relationships. When attracted to someone, you can make the first move, and probably not think much about whether or not you should. You can be extremely passionate early in relationships, but can get bored quickly and move on to someone else fast.

With Ceres, you may be very attractive like Venus, and others who want to chase you likely need to show support and nurturing energy for you to be interested. You can be super supportive of someone you want to pursue, and this can be your way of courting someone.

With Jupiter, you can enjoy the early part of relationships a lot, and you may have a plethora of really short relationships before anything sticks. You can be gregarious and fun in love, which can be very attractive to others, and you can be more attracted to someone who gives you space.

With Saturn, you may not be into the fun and games of dating. You probably take it very seriously! You don't care for anything casual, and want to bypass the early part to get right to a committed, long-term relationship. This might cause passion to be lacking. You might want to spend time getting to know someone for a while before ever dating.

With Uranus, you may be attracted to unconventional personalities, and your own quirks can be seen as attractive to others. You may jump in and out of relationships quickly, at least early on, and may date a wide variety of people before finding anyone that keeps your interest.

With Neptune, you may crave a spiritual connection with someone, and can find spiritual, artistic people attractive, and that part of you can be attractive to others. You do have to watch for not having healthy boundaries early in relationships and being taken advantage of.

With Pluto, passion can be super high for you early on, and you can be very invested fast in relationships. You can throw yourself fully in them, but may need to work on having enough space so you don't lose yourself. There may also be struggles over power and control, but this may come if there are issues that haven't been addressed (so work on them!).

With Chiron, you can see love, romance, passion, and dating as a healing experience for yourself. You may get a lot of confidence from attracting people to you, and your sensitivity can be seen as attractive to others. But with Chiron, you do also have to guard against being wounded easily early in relationships. Like Neptune, healthy boundaries are needed.

Planets that are sextile or trine your natal Cupido are helpful for expressing passion and attracting new love interests. They're beneficial and supportive.

Planets square or opposite your natal Cupido present challenges for passion, attraction, and the early part of relationships that need to be worked on..

Lesson 8: Cupido in the Composite Chart

In the composite chart, asteroid Cupido can show where your passions are focused together, and how things may be initially when you're first enthralled. In a fire sign (Aries, Leo, Sagittarius), things can happen fast. There can be a big burst of excitement and energy at first (but does it fizzle quickly?).

In an earth sign (Taurus, Virgo, Capricorn), things may have taken longer to get moving initially, but passionate energy can be more lasting once it does start.

In an air sign (Gemini, Libra, Aquarius), passion may have been expressed through communication. You may be passionate communicators with one another, and talking may have been an important part of the start of the relationship.

In a water sign (Cancer, Scorpio, Pisces), passions were intertwined with emotions. Emotions may run strong between you, especially at the onset.

Cupido in the composite houses can show what you're passionate about together, especially early. In the 1st house, you can be really passionate about the relationship itself, and you can be outward with the passion you have for one another.

Cupido in the composite 2nd, 6th, or 10th houses can be excellent for business relationships and partnerships since these are the professional houses, and you can channel your passion together for work. This may be short-lived though, so it may be best if you're working together temporarily. In a personal relationship, passionate energy can be slow to build up.

Cupido in the 4th or 5th houses can increase the emotional connection and romance. In the 3rd house, it increases the mental connection. In the 11th house, it can focus on a foundation of friendship, no matter what the relationship is.

Cupido in the 7th house can make you passionate about helping others together, or about the commitment you can have in the relationship. Cupido in the 8th house can increase passion, but may also show one displays a lot of passion for the other and it's not very equal at times. Cupido in the 9th house can bring passion for new experiences together.

Cupido in the composite 12th house can make sharing the passionate energy together a challenge since this is the house of the hidden. You may be able to when it's just the two of you and no one else, but even then, it may be hard to get the relationship off of the ground if you're both shying away from each other.

Aspects to Cupido by the composite planets can impact passion, especially early in the relationship. As with the natal chart, planets conjunct are the strongest and can have the biggest impact on passion between you. Planets sextile or trine can help make passion easier for both of you, while planets square or opposite can bring challenges that have to be worked through.

Lesson 9: Cupido Transits & the Natal Chart

Transit Cupido in the Natal Houses

1st House: When transiting your 1st house, you may be more prone to crushes or being infatuated with someone, or having someone infatuated with you. You can be more attractive to others, and more passionate about life in general.

2nd House: When transiting your 2nd house, you may be more passionate about your values, money, or being grounded. You can take more time if you're interested in anyone, but you can be more passionate when you do.

3rd House: When transiting your 3rd house, you may be more passionate about anything that interests you intellectually. You can keep busy, and enjoy lots of projects. You may want to connect mentally with anyone you're interested in.

4th House: When transiting your 4th house, you may be more passionate about matters of the home and family, and can make improvements at home or with family. You may want to connect emotionally with anyone you're interested in.

5th House: When transiting your 5th house, you may be more passionate about your hobbies and creative ventures. You can be more fun-loving and want to play. You may be more romantic and want more attention from anyone you're interested in.

6th House: When transiting your 6th house, you may be more passionate about your work or projects that you're working on. You can get organized and tend to your health. You may be more attentive with anyone you're interested in.

7th House: When transiting your 7th house, you may be more passionate about your relationships and commitment in general. You can compromise and negotiate. You may be more respectful of anyone you're interested in.

8th House: When transiting your 8th house, you may be more passionate about transforming something for the better and bringing fresh life to something stale. You may be more enthralled with anyone you're interested in.

9th House: When transiting your 9th house, you may be more passionate about having adventures and learning about life through new experiences. You may be more gregarious with anyone you're interested in.

10th House: When transiting your 10th house, you may be more passionate about your goals, and strive to make progress with your plans. You can make connections and take responsibility. You may be more traditional with anyone you're interested in.

11th House: When transiting your 11th house, you may be more passionate about your dreams for the future and changes you want to make. You may be more distant with anyone you're interested in.

12th House: When transiting your 12th house, you may be more passionate about your spiritual pursuits. You can enjoy quiet time alone, and recharge. You may keep to yourself instead of pursuing anything with someone you're interested in.

Transit Cupido Aspects to the Natal Planets

Note: Asteroid Cupido aspects usually last for about 1 week.

The Sun: Transit Cupido conjunct your natal Sun can make you feel more passionate, and you can be more attractive to others. You may develop a crush or be infatuated with someone. Sextiles and trines to your natal Sun make it easier to express interest in someone and passion for something, while squares and oppositions can make it feel like you have too much passionate energy to manage, or you can't go for what you want.

The Moon: Transit Cupido conjunct your natal Moon can make your emotions tie into what you're passionate about. You may be fueled to focus on matters at home or with family, and can be more attracted to those who support you. Sextiles and trines to your natal Moon make it easier to manage your emotions, while squares and oppositions can make it harder, and you may have difficulty with channeling passionate energy in a healthy way.

Mercury: Transit Cupido conjunct your natal Mercury can make you more passionate about whatever interests you and stimulates your mind. You may be attracted to those you can connect with mentally. Your passion may focus on a project that keeps you busy. Sextiles and trines to your natal Mercury can give your mind some space so you're not so wrapped up, while squares and oppositions can make it difficult for you to take your mind off of things and gets you a little obsessed.

Venus: Transit Cupido conjunct your natal Venus can make you much more focused on love and relationships. You can be more attractive to others than usual, and you may have a major interest in someone or something, but want it to come to you. Sextiles and trines to your natal

Venus can increase attraction but in a more manageable way, while squares and oppositions might make you more indulgent, self-serving, or stubborn.

Mars: Transit Cupido conjunct your natal Mars can stimulate a lot of passionate energy for you, and you can channel that into something productive to use it positively. You may be more passionate in your relationships, and have a higher sex drive. Sextiles and trines to your natal Mars can tamp the passionate energy down a little to make it easier to use, while squares and oppositions might make it so high that you're easily frustrated, agitated, and annoyed without something to channel it, especially physically.

Ceres: Transit Cupido conjunct your natal Ceres can make you more attractive, yet you may seem intimidating to many. You may demand others live up to your standards before considering them, which can be good in that it weeds out the losers, but do watch for being too picky. Sextiles and trines to your natal Ceres can help with boundaries in a healthy way, while squares and oppositions can make you too demanding, have to deal with someone who wants to dominate you, or you can feel you lack any courtship in your life.

Jupiter: Transit Cupido conjunct your natal Jupiter can make you more passionate about your beliefs, and you can be bolder and more adventurous. Your wisdom may be seen as more attractive to others. Sextiles and trines to your natal Jupiter can help you pursue opportunities you believe in and expand on what you're passionate about, while squares and oppositions might make you lazier with it, or more prone to excess and go overboard.

Saturn: Transit Cupido conjunct your natal Saturn can make you more responsible and cautious with your passionate energy. You may be more passionate about your goals and feel more ambitious, and this may be seen as attractive to others. Sextiles and trines to your natal Saturn can help you make progress with your goals, while squares and oppositions might bring blocks, restrictions, and extra responsibilities.

Uranus: Transit Cupido conjunct your natal Uranus can make you focus on new, different ways of channeling your passionate energy. You can be more passionate about your dreams for the future, changes you're working on, causes you champion, or your friends. Sextiles and trines to your natal Uranus can help you work with what you've got and be more positive, while squares and oppositions can make you more impulsive and impatient, and rage against restrictions.

Neptune: Transit Cupido conjunct your natal Neptune can make you more passionate about your spiritual interests or creative pursuits. Your creativity, compassion, or empathy may be more attractive to others. Sextiles and trines to your natal Neptune help you maintain boundaries, while squares and oppositions mean you need to work harder at keeping them up, otherwise you may not see things as they really are.

Pluto: Transit Cupido conjunct your natal Pluto can make you more passionate in general, and you may want to transform in some way. Your powerful energy can be seen as more attractive to others. Sextiles and trines to your natal Pluto help you manage without obsession or power struggles, while squares and oppositions bring those out and create a greater need for bigger transformation.

Chiron: Transit Cupido conjunct your natal Chiron can make you more passionate about healing and growing as a person. You can be more understanding with others, which can be attractive. Sextiles and trines to your natal Chiron can help you heal without worrying about further wounding, while squares and oppositions can make you more sensitive to being hurt, and need some self-protection.

Transit Planets to Natal Cupido

Transit Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, and Mars don't move very fast, so their aspects only last for a few hours (Moon) to a few days (the rest). When they conjunct your natal asteroid Cupido, this is a brief period where you're more passionate. Sextiles and trines help you use it properly and make you more attractive, and squares and oppositions can bring some challenges using it and make for more frustration.

Transit Ceres to your natal Cupido can make you more attractive with the conjunction, sextile, or trine, and you can be more open to being woo-ed. You may prioritize someone who shows they can support you in the ways that are most important to you. Sextiles and trines help you take a healthy approach to dating and crushes, while squares and oppositions can make it difficult for you to find them nourishing, or even all that important.

Transit Jupiter to your natal Cupido can make you much more passionate and attractive under the conjunction, sextile, or trine. This can be a great time for starting a new relationship, if single, or pumping up the passion, if in a relationship. Under squares and oppositions, you may have too many options and want some space, or are lazy in your pursuit of passion.

Transit Saturn to your natal Cupido can tamp down on passionate energy. Under the sextile and trine, you can focus it on something productive, usually a goal or project. Under the square and opposition, you may feel super restricted, and while you may feel quite passionate, have nothing to use it with, or lack passion for what you do need it.

There may be a lesson to learn. The conjunction can go either way, but may amplify the feelings of restriction.

Transit Uranus to your natal Cupido can make passion something new and different. Under the conjunction, sextile and trine, you can become passionate about something brand new, or someone brand new, or use your passion in a new, unconventional way. Under the square and opposition, you may want to but struggle with it, and unexpected developments can throw you off. You may need to be more flexible.

Transit Neptune to your natal Cupido can bring foggy energy under the conjunction, square, and opposition. You may have trouble seeing people you're interested in or projects you're passionate about realistically. You have to work harder at being more practical, but also listen more to your instincts, which can be stronger. Under the sextile and trine, you may have a spiritual connection with whatever you're passionate about or the people you love.

Transit Pluto to your natal Cupido brings intense energy. Passion can be twice as high, no matter the aspect, but this is easier to manage under the sextile and trine. Under the conjunction, square, and opposition, it may be out of control at times, and you can easily become obsessed. A transformation is likely required so you can channel the passionate energy properly.

Transit Chiron to your natal Cupido can bring focus to your wounds. Under sextiles and trines, this can promote healing and growth, and your passions help you do that. Under squares and oppositions, you may be more prone to being hurt by others, and need to be more introspective and tackle old issues. Conjunctions can make healing more important, but also make you extra sensitive, and self-care can be beneficial.

Lesson 10: Juno, Amor, and Cupido in Synastry

With Juno in synastry, having a connection with someone can be very helpful for commitment, especially conjunctions, sexiles, and trines with the faster planets (Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars, or Ceres), Jupiter, or between your Junos. That makes commitment something that is a lot easier for you to have together. When it's a square or opposition, you may not agree on some important issues, but it depends on everything else (the rest of your synastry and your composites) if that's a dealbreaker or not.

Saturn, Neptune, or Chiron connecting with Juno in synastry can show a spiritual, karmic link, but it can also show baggage that has to be released and lessons that need to be learned. This can be a strong, but challenging, connection to have when it's a conjunction. When it's a square or opposition, this can challenge you in a big way, and you both need to be ready for it once you come together, otherwise it may lead to the end of the relationship at some point.

Uranus and Pluto connecting with Juno can be a lot to handle. Sextiles and trines make it easier, and the relationship can be more dynamic and help for change and growth. Conjunctions, squares, and oppositions can make for challenging commitment, something that's always kind of difficult for some reason, and you have to assess how healthy the relationship is.

With Amor in synastry, having a connection with someone can be very helpful for romance, especially conjunctions, sexiles, and trines with the faster planets (Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars, or Ceres), Jupiter, or between your Amors. That makes romance easier for you to express with one another, and you can be romantically compatible. When it's a square or opposition, you may not be on the same page with romance and what it means or how it should be expressed (but whether or not that's a problem can depend on everything else).

Saturn, Neptune, or Chiron connecting with Amor in synastry can show a spiritual, karmic link, just like Juno. Conjunctions may be more of a challenge though, and Saturn in particular can really restrict the expression of love, making this challenging for personal relationships. Chiron can bring out the wounding effect, and Neptune can make boundaries a challenge. They're much easier with the sextile and trine, and harder with the square and opposition. Yet the conjunct, square, and opposition may actually show a stronger karmic link! So you can feel really tied, but there's likely a lesson to be learned.

Uranus and Pluto connecting with Amor can make for some interesting romance, but it may be difficult to grasp. Under the conjunction, square, and opposition, one person may seem erratic and impulsive to the other when it's Uranus, and things can seem chaotic, while one person may try to control the other or is deceptive or possessive when it's Pluto, and there's a power struggle. You may need to be honest about how you treat each other. With sextiles and trines, this can be easier, and you can keep it fresh with Uranus and have manageable passion with Pluto.

With Cupido in synastry, having a connection with someone can be helpful for passion in the relationship and getting the relationship off of the ground, especially conjunctions, sextiles, and trines with the faster planets (Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars, or Ceres), Jupiter, or between your Cupidos. That makes passion easier for you to express with one another. When it's a square or opposition, you may have difficulty expressing passion the same way, and this may act as a stopper to the relationship starting to begin with since neither of you may take the first step.

Saturn, Neptune, or Chiron connecting with Cupido in synastry can show a spiritual, karmic link, but they may also show challenges with actually being passionate and even coming together. Saturn restricts, so conjunctions, squares, and oppositions can show the passion between you never gets expressed; Neptune dissolves, so conjunctions, squares, and oppositions can show the passion fizzles before anything can really come of it; and Chiron weighs, so conjunctions, squares, and oppositions can show this passion comes with or stirs up baggage. Sextiles and trines can be nicer!

Uranus and Pluto connecting with Cupido can make for some interesting passion - maybe too much? Uranus can make it different in some way, and you may push each other outside of your comfort zones early. This can be a good thing, but it can turn erratic and chaotic, which isn't. Pluto amplifies the passion in a big way, but this can turn into obsession, possessiveness, and power struggles. This isn't usually the case with sextiles and trines, but there can be big drama with conjunctions, squares, and oppositions.

Ultimately, it's nice to see some nice connections with someone else with all 3 of these asteroids.

You can also look at which houses in the other person's natal chart your natal asteroids fall (and vice versa) to see where you may impact one another more directly with commitment, romance, and passion.

Spotting Who to Avoid

Now to something you really want to know - how to spot someone to avoid! LOL! Now, not every position outlined is doomed to be the bad boy/girl associated with it; every position has a positive and negative expression, and if they've done the work often associated with these positions, they can express it positively. But make sure they're doing that before you throw caution to the wind!

Start with the two-faced jerk - this is often seen with a personal planet (Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars - also sometimes the Ascendant) anaretic (at 29 degrees) in Gemini (ruler of the Twins - no surprise!). In the natal chart, this can be a natural thing for them (they may not even realize that they are two-faced). When they've recognized and worked through whatever challenge is associated with their anaretic planet, then they can drop the two-face and become a dynamic, but open, personality. You may also see this with an anaretic 3rd house cusp (naturally connects to Gemini), and anaretic Mercury in general of any sign (since Mercury rules Gemini, but it's worse when in Gemini). This can occur temporarily with planets that enter 29 degrees Gemini in the progressed chart as well.

What about cheaters? Difficult Pisces energy can surprisingly be prone to cheating, but usually not in a way where they're trying to hurt you; instead they just get lost in the romantic notions of the moment and don't think too much about the consequences; I've noticed this a lot with Pisces Venus. You can also look at squares and oppositions between Neptune (ruler of Pisces) and the Sun, Moon, Venus, or Mars, or a particularly prominent/challenged. If they have a prominent Saturn that isn't too afflicted, that can counteract a lot of the Neptune/Pisces energy. Squares and oppositions between Venus and Pluto can show someone who cheats to get at you, the vengeful one (though it may be more in retaliation for something bad you've done - so don't do bad!).

Chiron can also be involved when it's on the side of sex addiction, and it's usually a highly sexual chart that goes with that; JFK and Bill Clinton are good examples, with JFK having a loaded 8th house - house of sex - and Clinton having Moon in the 8th and a wide Libra stellium starting with Mars on his Ascendant and including Venus, Neptune, Chiron, and Jupiter; even though neither came out as sex addicts, their charts seem to say they are/were:

Casanovas? Well this one's easy, check out asteroid Casanova (number 7328) - look for Casanova especially challenged, conjunct a planet, one of the nodes, or an angle. Example: Leonardo DiCaprio has asteroid Casanova conjunct his Mercury and Uranus in Libra (sign of relationships), and while his Casanova isn't anaretic, the two planets it's conjunct are! His Neptune is also conjunct his North Node.

The stalker? Strong Pluto/8th house/Scorpio energy (obsessive!), particularly if it lines up with strong connections to your own chart (so even if they're not obsessive with everyone, they may be with you - you may want to be especially careful with anyone whose natal Pluto is conjunct any of your natal personal planets or angles). On the upside, this can be great for chemistry, but that can mean that it can create a more difficult connection at times (you get caught up in the sex haze and lose track of reality!). It can be good for business connections (just maybe keep it business only!).

The commitment-phobe? Jupiter/Sagittarius is the eternal bachelor/ette. It can be hard to tie down someone with strong Jupiter or Sagittarius energy (most often Jupiter conjunct Venus or Mars, Sagittarius Venus/Mars, or a natal Sagittarius stellium). Sometimes this can also be seen with independent Uranus, and if someone has a strong natal Uranus, they may want more space than "commitment" can give them. Also, difficult natal Saturn can make it hard for someone to commit (remember Clooney).

What about the liar-liar-pants-on-fire? There are some asteroids to check out - Veritas (490), Truth (249521), and Fides (37) - and if they are prominent in their natal chart, particularly difficulty aspected (especially by Jupiter!), then there may be some issues with "bending" the truth (to be nice!). Look for conjunct or opposite a personal planet or angle (and remember asteroids have a tight orb of 2 degrees). On the flip side, this can also make someone super truthful (to a fault), and it tends to go one way or the other (either super blunt or pathological liar).

And the momma's boy? Cancer and the Moon rule the mother, so if there's strong Cancer or a prominent Moon, mommy may figure a bit too prominently in their life. Now, it's nice when they have a good relationship with their mother, you just don't want a smothering relationship! If they have an afflicted Moon or 4th house, that may be more of an issue. Also Chiron in Cancer or the 4th house (since Chiron rules wounds). And I find that those with a strong Black Moon Lilith also tend to have "difficult" mothers.

I also wanted to include an old newsletter article about the astrology of being catfished - since that's a whole other kind of problem!:

Being catfished is such a modern-times, 1st-world problem, but a pretty common one, it seems. What is likely going on that leads one to be catfished? If you guessed Neptune, give yourself a cookie! Neptune is the planet of deception, whether it's someone else deceiving us or us deceiving ourselves - and both of those things are usually the case when you're catfished. Neptune has the rose-colored glasses and wants to believe in the fantasy created in your head, and believes whatever wonderful lies it's told. This can be a temporary problem with transit Neptune, and when he's conjunct, square, or opposite your natal Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, or 1st or 7th house rulers, this is something you always have to be careful of. Get grounded and if there's a nagging feeling that it's too good to be true, well that's probably your intuition telling you something! Since it's by transit, it's only temporary, but transit Neptune aspects can last quite a while (on and off for up to a couple years), so stay on top of yourself.

If you have a strong natal Neptune (or strong Pisces energy, the sign Neptune rules), then this is something you have to be mindful of your entire life. You're just naturally someone who is prone to the fantasies and who wants to see the best in people, and unless you also have some strong Pluto/Scorpio/8th house or Saturn/Capricorn/10th house (the rulers of reality), you can be more susceptible than most to being taken for a ride by people. Setting up boundaries - spiritually, mentally, and emotionally - is suuuper important for you to help avoid the downfalls. It can also be helpful for you to strengthen your connection to your intuition, which can be very very strong but often is quite scattered until you get some control over it. Once you do control it, your intuition can help you figure out who to trust (and who not to).

Performing a Relationship Analysis

First, you want to assess synastry to gauge compatibility. For each planet for both people, write down:

- Sign location
- Element of sign
- House location
- Element of house
- Planets conjunct the planet
- Signs the planets conjunct rule
- The house(s) the planet rules
- What signs naturally link to that house
- Is the planet retrograde
- Is the planet at a critical or anaretic degree
- Is the planet intercepted
- Is the planet on the North or South Node

Focus on connections with the Sun-Moon-Rising, Venus-Mars, and Jupiter and the personal planets for helpful connections. You can consider if many positions are square or opposite between the two charts since this can create a lot of friction between the two people. Sometimes this can increase sexual chemistry, but without lots of supportive positive connections, it can ultimately be an extremely challenging relationship.

Also consider if there are repeating themes between the two charts, like both people have the Moon opposite Pluto or both have a challenged Mars. In these cases, even though the specific aspect or position is challenging in the natal chart, it can be a source of understanding between the two people since it's something both have to deal with.

Then do an overlay and put each person's planets in the other person's houses. Remember that it's what I (my planet) do to you (your house) and what you (your planet) do to me (my house). Keep in mind what the energy of each planet is and what each house rules:

Sun shines a light and brings attention

Moon brings out emotions

Mercury brings out ideas and communication

Venus brings pleasant energy and affection

Mars brings lots of energy and drive

Ceres brings support and nourishment

Jupiter brings expansive and lucky energy

Saturn brings restrictions and lessons

Uranus brings changes, the unconventional, and erratic energy

Neptune brings foggy energy and need for intuition

Pluto brings transforming energy and need to manage power/control

1st house is self

2nd house is finances, values, self-esteem

3rd house is communication

4th house is home/family and foundation

5th house is love, creativity, fun

6th house is work, health, daily life

7th house is others, relationships

8th house is shared resources, the dark underbelly

9th house is higher learning, travel, beliefs

10th house is career, goals, direction

11th house is friends, dreams, future, causes

12th house is spirituality, the past, subconscious mind, hidden energy

Second, assess the composite chart. Make note of the sign and house location of the personal planets, the house location of the outer planets, and the aspects they make and houses they rule. You can think of a composite chart almost like a natal chart and what would apply to an individual natal chart instead applies to the composite chart for two people.

Compare the composite chart to the natal charts for each person as well to get an idea of how each person feels about the relationship separately. You can almost do a synastry for each person with the composite chart to see how they interact with and are impacted by the relationship individually. (since we are usually impacted by relationships differently!)

Third, look at transits. Check aspects for each person:

Transit aspects to the 5th and 7th house rulers

Transit aspects to the 5th and 7th house cusps

Planets in the 5th and 7th houses

Transit aspects to natal and progressed Venus

Progressions involving the natal or progressed 5th or 7th houses or Venus

Progressed planets in Libra (sign of relationships)

Retrogrades in the 5th or 7th houses

New/full moons or eclipses in the 5th or 7th houses or aspecting natal or progressed Venus

While synastry and composites tell you about compatibility and the heart of the relationship, transits tell you if there is anything standing in the way now, or if there is good energy to keep moving forward together. Many hard aspects by Saturn, Uranus, Neptune, and Pluto can be difficult to overcome and often show nothing good coming if early in the relationship. In an established relationship, it can show a challenging time that needs to be handled with care to survive.

You also need to look at transits with the composite chart, and hard aspects can similarly show hard times for the relationship. You'll also want to progress the composite chart (can be done for free in astro.com in Extended Chart Selection) and assess the progressed composite chart against the regular composite chart, and against both people's natal and progressed charts.

Transit Aspects to Composite Planets

These are general interpretations for when the transit planets are aspecting the composite chart planets (transit planets in the composite houses are in the composite interpretations e-book; this is separate since it's not provided on the website, only in AstroLove!). You can get an idea of what to expect as you're looking at upcoming transit aspects to the composite chart. When you're assessing the transit aspects, make sure to consider the house(s) the planet rules in the composite chart as well, since this may be where the energy of the aspect is funneled (just like when transit aspects to your natal planets).

Transit Aspects to the Composite Sun

When the transit Sun is sextile or trine the composite Sun, this can bring helpful energy to the relationship around the day it's exact. It can shine a light on positive things going on between you, and help you focus together. When the transit Sun is square or opposite the composite Sun, this can make you more aware of challenges that exist in the relationship, and bring out more friction. You may need to work on internal or external issues within the relationship together. When the transit Sun is conjunct the composite Sun, this creates a composite Solar Return, and you may find that something is coming home, so to speak, in the relationship.

When the transit Moon is sextile or trine the composite Sun, this can help with the emotional connection in the relationship. You may be more supportive of each other, and can strengthen the foundation of the relationship, albeit temporarily since Moon aspects only last a few hours. When the transit Moon is square or opposite the composite Sun, this can create emotional upheaval in the relationship, and you may struggle with being subjective with one another. Under the opposition, you may focus on ending something together. When the transit Moon is conjunct the composite Sun, this can make you more open with what you feel with one another, and you may focus on starting something new together.

When transit Mercury is sextile or trine the composite Sun, this can improve communication in the relationship, and you may be more expressive with one another. When transit Mercury is square or opposite the composite Sun, this can create communication difficulties in the relationship, and you may have an argument or not see eye-to-eye on something. When transit Mercury is conjunct the composite Sun, this can bring out important ideas and plans together, or make you much more open with what you're thinking with one another.

When transit Venus is sextile or trine the composite Sun, this can help you to be more pleasant with one another, and you can generally feel more at ease with the connection. In a love relationship, you may be more affectionate. When transit Venus is square or trine the composite Sun, you may be more stubborn and obstinate with one another, and not want to deal with issues that arise. When transit Venus is conjunct the composite Sun, this can bring out good feelings between you, and in a love relationship, you can express affection more easily. You may be more compromising, and strive to keep the peace.

When transit Mars is sextile or trine the composite Sun, you may have more energy and drive when you're with each other, or more energy and drive to focus on your relationship. You may be more positive about the connection. When transit Mars is square or opposite the composite Sun, you may struggle with one another, get into a fight, feel frustrated with the relationship, and can push back against one another. When transit Mars is conjunct the composite Sun, there can be extra energy in the relationship between you that needs to be used up. It can be helpful for starting anything new together, but if not used, may lead to fights and frustration.

When transit Ceres is sextile or trine the composite Sun, you may have a stronger desire to nurture each other and the relationship in a healthy way. You can feel more supported by your connection to each other.

When transit Ceres is square or opposite the composite Sun, you may struggle with supporting each other, and it may feel like the relationship is lacking in some way. When transit Ceres is conjunct the composite Sun, nourishing energy can be strong in the relationship, and you may prioritize taking care of what the relationship needs to grow.

When transit Jupiter is sextile or trine the composite Sun, this can bring great energy to the relationship, and you can make improvements in the connection or do something fun together. You may pursue opportunities together, especially in professional connections. When transit Jupiter is square or opposite the composite Sun, this can make you lazier when dealing with one another or the relationship, and you may need some space from each other. When transit Jupiter is conjunct the composite Sun, this can make you more positive together, want to expand your relationship in new ways, and can explore together.

When transit Saturn is sextile or trine the composite Sun, this can help with commitment between you. You can feel more loyal, more committed to the relationship, and can feel things are more stable. When transit Saturn is square or opposite the composite Sun, this can make you feel restricted and limited in the relationship, and you may not have as much time for one another (or don't want to spend time with one another). Commitment to the relationship may be challenged. When transit Saturn is conjunct the composite Sun, commitment can be strengthened if you feel this is the right relationship for the two of you. If not, then there can be a parting of ways as the restrictive energy of Saturn becomes too stifling.

When transit Uranus is sextile or trine the composite Sun, you can deal with one another in new and different ways, and make changes in the relationship that are beneficial. When transit Uranus is square or opposite the composite Sun, you may experience unstable energy, changes that are difficult to manage, and one or both of you may act erratically. There may be restless, rebellious energy to deal with, and a major change is likely needed, but it needs to be undertaken the right way. When transit Uranus is conjunct the composite Sun, change can feel inevitable, but you can take control of it together and make the change positive. If you refuse, then the change can take over the relationship.

When transit Neptune is sextile or trine the composite Sun, you can feel the spiritual connection between you to be strong, and you can be more pleasant and accommodating of one another. When transit Neptune is square or opposite the composite Sun, you may struggle with seeing the issues that exist in the relationship, which allows them to grow and get worse until you push through the fog to see the reality. It may be difficult to be realistic together, and you can be more easily manipulated. When transit Neptune is conjunct the composite Sun, you can feel the spiritual connection strongly, as if there is a reason you're in one another lives at the moment, and you can move together intuitively. But you can also be under a strong fog that doesn't lift until the conjunction is over, and there can be a big mess underneath it if you're not making sure to stay tethered to the ground together.

When transit Pluto is sextile or trine the composite Sun, this can help improve intimacy in personal relationships, and improve usage of resources in professional relationships. You can make small transformations for the better together. When transit Pluto is square or opposite the composite Sun, this can bring out anything that is deeply hidden in the relationship, and any simmering anger, bottled up rage or hatred or envy. You may bring out the worst in one another at times, and have to work on major transformations and to be as respectful and understanding as possible, not allowing emotion to take over everything. When transit Pluto is conjunct the composite Sun, this makes a major transformation extremely important, otherwise there can be incredible struggles over power and control within the relationship, and one may try to dominate the other, or you may encounter others who try to control the two of you. If you work with the energy, you can emerge stronger together and with a very strong bond.

Transit Aspects to the Composite Moon

When the transit Sun is sextile or trine the composite Moon, this can be beneficial for the emotional connection between you, and shine a light on how you connect emotionally in personal relationships. It can create an ease between you. When the transit Sun is square or opposite the composite Moon, this can be difficult for being on the same page emotionally, expressing yourself emotionally, and you may cause each other upset. Under the opposition, there may be something that comes to the surface and needs to be dealt with. When the transit Sun is conjunct the composite Moon, this can create strong emotional energy, and you may focus on something emotionally together, work on the foundation of something, or start something new.

When the transit Moon is sextile or trine the composite Moon, this can bring an emotional ease between you, and help with emotional understanding. When the transit Moon is square or opposite the composite Moon, this can show emotional difficulties, and you may feel the foundation of the relationship is shaky and needs to be tended to.

When the transit Moon is conjunct the composite Moon, this time of the month can bring your focus together to the relationship, the base of your connection, and you can come back together to focus on something.

When transit Mercury is sextile or trine the composite Moon, this can help with being authentic in your communications, and being understood. When transit Mercury is square or opposite the composite Moon, this can make communication more difficult, and you may have a misunderstanding or fight. When transit Mercury is conjunct the composite Moon, this can bring out important communications, and you can find it important to open up.

When transit Venus is sextile or trine the composite Moon, this can generate positive feelings for one another and the relationship, and you can get along more easily. When transit Venus is square or opposite the composite Moon, this can make you more stubborn with one another when upset, and you may need to work on being more open. There can also be laziness together. When transit Venus is conjunct the composite Moon, this can be a great aspect for personal relationships, and you can express feelings of affection more easily. All relationships can feel more emotionally at ease and balanced.

When transit Mars is sextile or trine the composite Moon, this can spur you to take action together. You can feel driven emotionally, and you can make improvements to the core of the relationship. When transit Mars is square or opposite the composite Moon, this can make you short with one another, easily angered, and quick to fight. Avoid impulsive behavior. When transit Mars is conjunct the composite Moon, this can make you feel more secure in the relationship and focused on strengthening the core of your connection. As it grows strong, you can feel more driven together.

When transit Ceres is sextile or trine the composite Moon, this can help you nurture and support each other emotionally, and you both can feel that the relationship is solid emotionally. When transit Ceres is square or opposite the composite Moon, this can make you both feel insecure about the relationship emotionally, and you may struggle with lacking support or taking care of relationship needs. When transit Ceres is conjunct the composite Moon, this can bring great energy for emotional support and encouragement, and you can strengthen the emotional connection you have with each other to be more supportive.

When transit Jupiter is sextile or trine the composite Moon, this can help with the emotional connection and strengthen the core of the relationship. You can feel much more at ease emotionally, and feel the relationship is easier. When transit Jupiter is square or opposite the composite Moon, the foundation may be a little shaky of the relationship, and you may be lazier together. You may also want more emotional space from one another. When transit Jupiter is conjunct the composite Moon, this can help you to expand your emotional connection, deepen an emotional bond, and make you feel more emotionally secure.

When transit Saturn is sextile or trine the composite Moon, you can feel more emotionally stable and secure in the relationship and when dealing with one another. When transit Saturn is square or opposite the composite Moon, this can make emotional expression a challenge, and you may feel emotionally stifled together or by the relationship. There may be something important that needs to be addressed, otherwise a crack can appear in the foundation. When transit Saturn is conjunct the composite Moon, this can help you strengthen the foundation together, but you also may hold back emotionally and have to work on opening up, not letting responsibility take over.

When transit Uranus is sextile or trine the composite Moon, you can feel open to trying new ways to strengthen the foundation of the relationship and trying new things together. When transit Uranus is square or opposite the composite Moon, this can breed emotional instability in the relationship, and cause changes that shake the foundation. You may need to work together to be more flexible and open to change. When transit Uranus is conjunct the composite Moon, you can work on changes and do things differently, but you may also want more independence from one another at times. A major change in the dynamic of your relationship may occur.

When transit Neptune is sextile or trine the composite Moon, you can feel a strong emotional connection that also feels spiritual. You can be more compassionate and considerate of one another. When transit Neptune is square or opposite the composite Moon, you can experience difficulty understanding what may be happening at the core of the relationship, and issues may arise that can be difficult to understand. You may need to strengthen your spiritual and emotional connection to survive. When transit Neptune is conjunct the composite Moon, you may be more empathic with one another emotionally, sensing what the other is feeling, and can be more creative and artistic together. But you may also need to forge stronger emotional boundaries, otherwise they may be hard to differentiate.

When transit Pluto is sextile or trine the composite Moon, you may feel your emotional connection undergo a little transformation, but for the better. You can feel your emotional bond is stronger and more secure. When transit Pluto is square or opposite the composite Moon, deeply-held emotional issues can come out, and you may struggle with major issues internally or externally. A major transformation likely needs to be made in the relationship, otherwise there can be enormous fights for power and control. When transit Pluto is conjunct the composite Moon, you can focus on strengthening your emotional bond, and feel more powerful together than apart, but you may also give in to darker impulses at times and need to control that.

Transit Aspects to Composite Mercury

When the transit Sun is sextile or trine composite Mercury, this can improve communications, and you can feel more expressive with one another. When the transit Sun is square or opposite composite Mercury, there may be a struggle to openly communicate, and you may need to watch for misunderstandings or fights. When the transit Sun is conjunct composite Mercury, there can be a meeting of the minds, you can open up about something, and communication can flow.

When the transit Moon is sextile or trine composite Mercury, this can help you to say what you feel and mean the things you say with one another, improving the heart-mind connection in the relationship. When the transit Moon is square or opposite composite Mercury, this can bring out upset and fighting, and you may need to watch what you say to one another when upset. When the transit Moon is conjunct composite Mercury, this can make it important for you to open up with one another about something, and you can be more honest and authentic.

When transit Mercury is sextile or trine composite Mercury, this can be great for communication and expression. You can open up about something or talk over something important. When transit Mercury is square or opposite composite Mercury, this can make communication difficult, and you may have misunderstandings. You may need to work on seeing eye-to-eye. When transit Mercury is conjunct composite Mercury, communicating may feel easier, or there may be something important that you're both focused on together.

When transit Venus is sextile or trine composite Mercury, this can make communications between you more charming and pleasant. You can agree on things and not get into it over too much. When transit Venus is square or opposite composite Mercury, you may struggle with saying the wrong things, and need to watch how you're communicating with one another. Be considerate. When transit Venus is conjunct composite Mercury, you can make a compromise, strike a balance, or have a good conversation.

When transit Mars is sextile or trine composite Mercury, there can be extra communications between you, and you can have more to share with one another. When transit Mars is square or opposite composite Mercury, you can struggle with seeing eye-to-eye and communicating, and can fight. You may need to let your heads cool. When transit Mars is conjunct composite Mercury, you can have a lot to say and share with one another, and you can be more open.

When transit Ceres is sextile or trine composite Mercury, there can be helpful communication, and you can express support for each other. Communication can be nurtured in the relationship. When transit Ceres is square or opposite composite Mercury, you can struggle with voicing support, not see eye-to-eye, and there can be a misunderstanding or fight. You likely need to work on compromise. When transit Ceres is conjunct composite Mercury, you can be extra vocal with your support for each other, and you may find that the mental connection between you is strong.

When transit Jupiter is sextile or trine composite Mercury, this can increase the ideas and conversations flowing between you, and you can get along better when you communicate. You may expand your view of things together. When transit Jupiter is square or opposite composite Mercury, you can struggle with open communication, and may be prone to being inauthentic (or flat out lying). Think about what you say and how you say it. When transit Jupiter is conjunct composite Mercury, there can be ideas and plans you pursue, and you can enjoy communicating with one another.

When transit Saturn is sextile or trine composite Mercury, mental energy can seem more stabilized, and communications can be more practical and focused. When transit Jupiter is sextile or trine composite Jupiter, you can feel open to expanding, exploring, and new experiences together, and can be quite positive. When transit Jupiter is square or opposite composite Jupiter, you may want to relax, indulge, and not deal with too much together, and maybe get a little space. When transit Jupiter is conjunct composite Jupiter, it may feel like a new chapter is starting that can last for over a decade, and you can feel it's time to start anew.

When transit Saturn is sextile or trine composite Jupiter, you can balance responsibilities you have together with opportunities you have together and feel things are stable. When transit Saturn is square or opposite composite Jupiter, that may not be the case, and you may focus too much on opportunity and expansion at the expense of responsibilities, or too much on restriction and limitations at the expense of opportunity. Try to find middle ground. When transit Saturn is conjunct composite Jupiter, Saturn may try to overtake Jupiter and force limiting energy on the relationship, but you can find opportunities together by being smart, responsible, and practical.

When transit Uranus is sextile or trine composite Jupiter, you may focus on doing things in new ways and step outside of your comfort zones. You can think about the future, dreams you have together, and meet new people together. When transit Uranus is square or opposite composite Jupiter, this can bring out difficulties with your beliefs, and you may clash quite a bit. You may want to force your beliefs on each other, but need to be more open. When transit Uranus is conjunct composite Jupiter, you can be extra positive together, and find new ways to expand the relationship and have new experiences together.

When transit Neptune is sextile or trine composite Jupiter, you can enjoy each other's company, and you can feel spiritually connected. Your beliefs can sync up nicely, and you can be helpful of others together. When transit Neptune is square or opposite composite Jupiter, you may struggle with getting on the same page with your beliefs, and one may try to dupe the other, which needs to be avoided. Also watch for others trying to dupe you together. When transit Neptune is conjunct composite Jupiter, you can feel highly spiritually connected, and your beliefs can blend into one another, so some boundaries may be needed.

When transit Pluto is sextile or trine composite Jupiter, you may feel you have more power together and in the relationship when you're expanding and exploring and having new experiences. When transit Pluto is square or opposite composite Jupiter, you can struggle with allowing one another to have space to expand in your own ways, and may be overly pessimistic. Beliefs may be a struggle, and there can be fighting over beliefs. When transit Pluto is conjunct composite Jupiter, you may feel a strong bond in your experiences and world views, and what you're passionate about, and power can grow when you're together.

Transit Aspects to Composite Saturn

When the transit Sun is sextile or trine composite Saturn, this can bring stabilizing energy to your connection, and you can feel committed to the relationship. When the transit Sun is square or opposite composite Saturn, this can make you feel more restricted and limited by one another or the relationship, and there may be an issue to address or responsibility to focus on. When the transit Sun is conjunct composite Saturn, this can bring out responsibilities and a more practical approach to the relationship, but you may also feel limited.

When the transit Moon is sextile or trine composite Saturn, this can bring stabilizing emotional energy. You can feel calmer with one another, and feel the core of the relationship is stable. When the transit Moon is square or opposite composite Saturn, this can make you feel emotionally stifled, and you may not want to express what you're feeling with one another, or feel that the relationship is holding you back emotionally. When the transit Moon is conjunct composite Saturn, this can make you focus on being more responsible with one another and the relationship, and you can feel more emotionally committed, but may hold back on emotional expression.

When transit Mercury is sextile or trine composite Saturn, this can make communications between you more practical and mental energy focused. When transit Mercury is square or opposite composite Saturn, you may have a hard time understanding, and can keep things to yourselves, but this can make you feel you're stifling your expression. When transit Mercury is conjunct composite Saturn, you can focus on being more practical with your ideas and plans together and bring stable energy to the relationship, but you may also limit communications.

When transit Venus is sextile or trine composite Saturn, you may feel the commitment you have to the relationship is stable and secure, and you can feel good about how you handle responsibilities together. When transit Venus is square or opposite composite Saturn, you may feel something is restricted in the relationship, and in personal relationships, you may not be affectionate. Issues may be highlighted and need to be addressed. When transit Venus is conjunct composite Saturn, you can focus on improving the relationship, working on goals, or taking up responsibilities, but you may not be very expressive together.

When transit Mars is sextile or trine composite Saturn, you may have very disciplined energy and drive, and can take action for the things you want together. When transit Mars is square or opposite composite Saturn, energy may feel too controlled or lacking, and you may feel extra focused on issues in the relationship and existing limitations. This can cause frustration and annoyance. When transit Mars is conjunct composite Saturn, there can be great progress made with whatever you work on together, but you may not work on anything else.

When transit Ceres is sextile or trine composite Saturn, you can nurture the relationship by improving stability and commitment. This may happen quietly and without much fanfare. When transit Ceres is square or opposite composite Saturn, you can feel restricted with how you nurture the relationship, and may focus too much on what's missing or what you have to learn. When transit Ceres is conjunct composite Saturn, you can focus on the lessons that need to be learned when it comes to support in the relationship, and you can become more committed to that.

When transit Jupiter is sextile or trine composite Saturn, you can feel that optimism is balanced with reality, and this can allow you to do more together, and feel stable. When transit Jupiter is square or opposite composite Saturn, you may struggle with feeling restricted and limited in the relationship, yet you may want to avoid any problems that could resolve the issue. Responsibility can be important. When transit Jupiter is conjunct composite Saturn, you can expand your relationship in practical ways and find opportunities by being responsible.

When transit Saturn is sextile or trine composite Saturn, you may feel that the relationship is stable and feel comfortable with the commitment you have to the relationship. When transit Saturn is square or opposite composite Saturn, this can bring out some friction in the relationship, and there may be a major issue that needs to be addressed, otherwise this can lead to fracture and parting. If you can move out of these aspects, you can feel set up together for a while. When transit Saturn is conjunct composite Saturn, innate issues in the relationships can become a focus, and situations may arise that force you to work on problems, learn how to grow the relationship or connection, and work well together. You can emerge more connected.

When transit Uranus is sextile or trine composite Saturn, you may feel that you can try new ways of improving stability and commitment, and can balance the old with the new together. When transit Uranus is square or opposite composite Saturn, there may be unexpected events that disrupt the stability of the relationship. Some degree of space may be needed, some room to breathe. When transit Uranus is conjunct composite Saturn, how you commit to one another and the relationship or what brings you together may undergo a big shift, and you can focus on new goals together.

When transit Neptune is sextile or trine composite Saturn, you can work together to strengthen your soul connection, and ground the energy. When transit Neptune is square or opposite composite Saturn, there may be a struggle with dealing with insecurity in the relationship, and you may have a hard time figuring out what the root causes are for problems and how to deal with them. You may be overly practical together or overly imaginative, and need to find some middle ground. When transit Neptune is conjunct composite Saturn, this can be excellent for making dreams reality together and grounding spiritual connections, but you may also need to make sure Neptune doesn't take over Saturn (and bring the fog) or Saturn doesn't take over Neptune (and kill compassion and imagination).

When transit Pluto is sextile or trine composite Saturn, you may be extra disciplined together, focused on accomplishing something together and achieving more power. When transit Pluto is square or opposite composite Saturn, this can make you feel more restricted and limited, and repression may be a problem. Responsibilities may overwhelm you, and you need to bring some lighter energy into the relationship, otherwise it can drown in the dark. When transit Pluto is conjunct composite Saturn, you can accomplish a great deal together, whatever you set your mind to (so it's excellent for business relationships), but your focus may be intense together and needs something productive, otherwise there can be some issues. A transformation may need to be made in the relationship related to the house Saturn is in or rules.

Transit Aspects to Composite Uranus

When the transit Sun is sextile or trine composite Uranus, this can help you to focus on new ways of approaching the relationship, or work together to implement changes. You can focus on the future together, or hopes and dreams you have for the relationship. When the transit Sun is square or opposite composite Uranus, you may feel you need time apart, and you can feel restless and rebellious with one another. You may need to avoid being erratic or impulsive. When the transit Sun is conjunct composite Uranus, it may be a time to work on a change together or deal with something unexpected.

When the transit Moon is sextile or trine composite Uranus, this can help you to make changes with the foundation of the relationship, but in positive ways. When the transit Moon is square or opposite composite Uranus, there may be a feeling that something at the core is unsettled, and you can be emotionally unstable with one another. Stability may be difficult. When the transit Moon is conjunct composite Uranus, you can focus on finding new ways of connecting emotionally or push outside of your comfort zones.

When transit Mercury is square or opposite composite Uranus, you may have a hard time with understanding, and there can be some restlessness with the activities you're working on (if any) or in your daily lives. When transit Mercury is conjunct composite Uranus, you may focus on a change together, and work on something different.

When transit Venus is sextile or trine composite Uranus, you may be more affectionate in new ways in personal relationships, and can give each other enough room to be independent but still feel secure. When transit Venus is square or opposite composite Uranus, there can be erratic energy in the relationship, and you may be short with one another. You may need to control impulses. When transit Venus is conjunct composite Uranus, you can enjoy doing new things together, making a change in the relationship, and opening up to new people together.

When transit Mars is sextile or trine composite Uranus, you may take action together with something new and different, and can work to make changes that can be beneficial, or work on a future goal. When transit Mars is square or opposite composite Uranus, you may push against one another, and want more time away from each other, but need to make sure you don't push too far away from one another. Watch for fighting. When transit Mars is conjunct composite Uranus, there can be a great desire to make a change, to have more independence in the relationship, and energy and drive can increase overall.

When transit Ceres is sextile or trine composite Uranus, you may find that doing things in new ways is more nourishing for the relationship, and you can nurture each of your individuality without sacrificing one for the other. When transit Ceres is square or opposite composite Uranus, you can feel that there isn't enough support in the relationship for each of you individually, and you may feel that changes are having a negative impact on your resources. When transit Ceres is conjunct composite Uranus, this can be helpful for making changes that allow you to be more supportive, and you can support changes.

When transit Jupiter is sextile or trine composite Uranus, there can be positive energy between you for doing things in new ways, and pursuing new opportunities. When transit Jupiter is square or opposite composite Uranus, you may feel rebellious with one another, but can be lazy when it comes to dealing with issues. When transit Jupiter is conjunct composite Uranus, this can be excellent for positive changes, expanding in new and unconventional ways, and creating new opportunities together.

When transit Saturn is sextile or trine composite Uranus, this can help you to bring more stability to changes, and to find practical ways to be more independent. When transit Saturn is square or opposite composite Uranus, there may be issues to overcome in order to make the changes you want, and you may feel stifled in the relationship, unable to express your individuality, which can lead to restlessness and frustration, but you may keep that to yourself. When transit Saturn is conjunct composite Uranus, you can work on changes together in practical ways, creating plans for doing things in new ways, and slowly pursuing the unconventional.

Note: Since Uranus, Neptune, and Pluto are the slow movers and shouldn't differ too wildly in the composite chart from your natal charts (unless there's a super massive age difference), those interpretations are left out (just think of them as doubled energy when they're occurring to your natal charts, and focus on the composite houses Uranus, Neptune, or Pluto are in and rule).
