Class 1: Synastry

Lesson 1: Harmonious Connections in Synastry

When you want to get a gauge on compatibility with someone, you use synastry, which is comparing your chart to the chart of someone else's. Comparing the two charts can give you an idea of what kind of compatibility you have with each other.

The Sun rules your true identity, the Moon rules your emotional self, and the Ascendant rules your outer self, and this trio is the astrological triad in your natal chart. You will often find that you're drawn to people who link to your Sun, Moon, or Ascendant sign in their own Sun, Moon, or Ascendant sign, and this can be excellent for compatibility. This trio is so closely linked to who we are, the building blocks for our entirely personality, so having this link shows an innate understanding of who each of you are.

A classic - and crazy strong! - example of the importance of the triad connections is Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward. They were married for decades and seen as one of the most successful Hollywood marriages. Their triad? Both were Capricorn Risings, his Sun was Aquarius and her Moon was Aquarius, and her Sun was Pisces and his Moon was Pisces. Oddly, Joanne said that the two didn't have many common interests and gave each other a lot of space, but their triad connections were so strong, they just fit right together.

You can compare each personal planet in your chart to the same planet in their chart, and get a quick idea of how harmonious or challenging whatever that planet rules is between the two of you. It can be considered harmonious when they're in the same sign or the same element. Signs of the same element have natural harmony. The elements are:

Fire: Aries, Leo, Sagittarius

Earth: Taurus, Virgo, Capricorn

Air: Gemini, Libra, Aquarius

Water: Cancer, Scorpio, Pisces

You can also have a harmonious pairing when one person has a planet in a sign, and the other person has the natural ruler of that sign conjunct their planet (so say, you have Venus in Sagittarius and they have Venus conjunct Jupiter, the natural ruler of Sagittarius). When you have a planet conjunct another in your chart, they each bring their own natural energy to the other, almost making it like the planet is in the sign the other planet rules rather than the sign it's actually in. So in the example, if you have Venus conjunct Jupiter, Venus will feel like Venus in Sagittarius at times and Jupiter will feel like Jupiter in Taurus or Libra at times. The natural rulers of the signs are:

Sun: Leo

Moon: Cancer

Mercury: Gemini, Virgo

Venus: Taurus, Libra

Mars: Aries

Jupiter: Sagittarius

Saturn: Capricorn

Uranus: Aquarius

Neptune: Pisces

Pluto: Scorpio

Another option for a harmonious connection is through the houses. Each sign pairs up naturally with one house, and this can bring compatibility that may not seem obvious via the signs. The sign-house pairings are:

Aries - 1st house
Taurus - 2nd house
Gemini - 3rd house
Cancer - 4th house
Leo - 5th house
Virgo - 6th house
Libra - 7th house
Scorpio - 8th house
Sagittarius - 9th house
Capricorn - 10th house
Aquarius - 11th house
Pisces - 12th house

So, let's say one person has Sun in Gemini and the other person has Sun in Scorpio. These would not seem compatible by the signs, but if the Gemini has Sun in the 8th house, or the Scorpio has Sun in the 3rd house, this can provide a powerful link. You can make the same kind of link with any of the planets.

Planets that are in the 1st house can make someone seem like they have the sign that planet rules as their Rising, and this can also provide a strong link (so say you have Uranus in the 1st house in Scorpio; you could connect with someone through the Scorpio energy or through Aquarius, the sign Uranus rules).

Lesson 2: Mercury Through Pluto Connections in Synastry

Mercury is the planet of communication, so having harmonious Mercurys helps with your ability to communicate with one another and see eye-to-eye. If you don't have harmonious Mercurys, communication may be difficult at times. If one person's Mercury conjuncts another person's planet, this can also impact communication: conjunct the Sun or Moon can make communication much easier and free-flowing; conjunct Venus can make communications pleasant between you and stimulate affection, conjunct Mars can make you super engaging; conjunct Jupiter can help you enjoy communication; conjunct Saturn can make communication difficult and you may not open up as much; conjunct Uranus can make communication a little erratic and one of you may think the other is brilliant or cuckoo; conjunct Neptune can bring misunderstandings and one of you may feel a bit drowned out by the other, but it can help with subconscious understanding; and conjunct Pluto, communication can be intense but sometimes one may try to dominate the other mentally.

Venus is the planet of love and relationships, so having harmonious Venuses is super helpful for compatibility. It shows you both have the same approach and want the same things naturally in love and relationships. If one person's Venus conjuncts another person's planet, this can impact the love: conjunct the Sun or Moon is excellent, and you can have strong loving feelings between you; conjunct Mars can bring a lot of passion and sizzle; conjunct Jupiter can bring great affection and genuine connection; conjunct Saturn can make it difficult to express affection, and you may not want to share; conjunct Uranus can bring some erratic energy into the relationship overall, and it may be a connection that starts fast and ends faster; conjunct Neptune can show a spiritual connection on the positive side, but can also make it difficult to be open with feelings; and conjunct Pluto can show intense passion, but also some fighting over power and control in the relationship.

Mars is the planet of energy and drive, so having harmonious Mars shows you both can be motivated by the same things and take action in similar ways. If one person's Mars conjuncts the other's Sun or Moon, this can be a pairing that energizes and spurs action; conjunct Jupiter can bring a little luck in the pairing and you can create big things together; conjunct Saturn can stifle energy, but can also help you to be more productive together (and good for business pairings); conjunct Uranus can help you respect each other's individuality, but also bring out impulsive behavior; conjunct Neptune can bring more spiritual connection; and conjunct Pluto can create a powerful pairing, but you may have to work on managing strong energy that can quickly become destructive.

Jupiter is the happy planet, and Jupiter connections in synastry can show a genuine like between you. This is a great thing to see for any relationship where you really need to get along, and it's one of my favorite things to see. Saturn is the planet of restriction, so Saturn connections can bring some challenges as one person may feel stifled and limited by the other. It can be good for professional connections though since Saturn is natural ruler of goals and ambitions. Saturn can also be helpful for commitment, so you may take a relationship with someone more seriously if you have a Saturn connection, and can stick with it through hard times (though sometimes it means you stick with it even when it's terrible and you should leave). Though I tend to find that many people struggle with someone who connects to their Saturn, and you just may not like them at all (unlike with Jupiter). This tends to be more often with a conjunction to Saturn.

Uranus connections can bring out a feeling of instability and inability to count on each other or the relationship; since Uranus is natural ruler of friendships, this can be a good link with a friend since you're more likely to give each other space and respect each other's individual expression. Uranus also can be in play with a connection that is unusual in some way. Neptune connections can show you have a spiritual connection, and this may come from past lives (if you believe in past lives) or be karmic in nature. There can be extra empathy and compassion, but care needs to be taken that boundaries remain solid and healthy so one doesn't take advantage of the other, which can happen all too often. Pluto connections can bring on power struggles and control issues as one wants to dominate and control the other. There is capability for great transformations and great passion, but you need to respect each other and not try to take power away from each other.

The Lunar Nodes are the points in the Moon's orbit where the Moon crosses the ecliptic, and are spiritual/karmic in nature. There's a North Node and a South Node, and they exactly oppose one another. Having a North Node connection can show you two are meant to come together for a reason, to help one another grow and find your potential. It can feel uncomfortable at times though, because this is unfamiliar energy that we can resist if we're not ready. You may run from someone you have a North Node connection with if you're not ready (Sun-Moon-Rising and Jupiter connections can help). Having a South Node connection can help you feel like you've known each other before (or did in a past life, if you believe in past lives). There is familiarity that helps you to feel at ease with each other, but you can outgrow each other with the South Node because it represents the past. If you have a South Node connection, you generally also want to have a North Node connection and other strong connections to lower the chances that you will outgrow each other.

Chiron is an asteroid representing our greatest wounds and how to heal from them. Having a Chiron connection can show you either help each other to heal or hurt each other and cause more wounds. Chiron doesn't move very fast, so having Chiron in same or compatible signs is pretty normal (unless you have a massive age difference), so you're mostly going to look at Chiron aspects to the personal planets, Jupiter, Saturn, and the Lunar Nodes. Hard aspects (squares and oppositions) can bring out greater ability to wound, while easy aspects (sextiles and trines) can bring out greater ability to heal. Conjunct the Sun or Moon can go either way; conjunct Mercury, Venus, or Jupiter tends to be more positive, while conjunct Mars, Saturn, or Pluto tends to be more challenging.

Lesson 3: The Houses in Synastry

Then we have chart overlay. To overlay the chart means to take the planets and house cusps from one person's chart and see where they fall in the other person's chart. This shows what you (your chart) does to them (their chart) in a more direct way. It's helpful to think of it as what I (my planet) do to you (your house) and what you (your planet) do to me (my house).

Where your Sun falls, you shine a light and bring attention in their life; where your Moon falls, you bring out emotion and stimulate their needs; where your Mercury falls, you generate lots of activity and a desire for variety; where your Venus falls, you bring out the love; where your Mars falls, you motivate and inspire; where your Jupiter falls, you help them expand; where your Saturn falls, you restrict them; where your Uranus falls, you bring change and push outside of their comfort zone; where your Neptune falls, you bring a little cloud haziness and need for intuitive guidance; and where your Pluto falls, you bring intensity and fight them for power.

In romantic relationships, it's helpful to have planets falling in the 5th house of love and 7th house of relationship; planets in the 12th house can be challenging, especially a personal planet as it can cause you or your partner to hide your true self (Sun), your emotions (Moon), your opinions (Mercury), your affections (Venus), or your desires (Mars). Friendships are ruled by the 11th house, so it's helpful to have planets fall in the 11th house with a friend (3rd house is also helpful for friendships; 11th house can also help with the foundation of friendship in a romantic relationship). The professional houses are the 2nd (money), 6th (work), and 10th (career) houses, so planets falling in these houses can be helpful for professional relationships; the 8th house rules mutually beneficial relationships, so business partnerships can benefit from planets falling in the 8th house. Family relationships can benefit from planets falling in the 4th house of home and family. I also often find with siblings that are close that you'll have 3rd and/or 4th houses or rulers aligned.

One thing I love to see is overlay between the 5th, 7th, or 8th houses in romantic relationships. The 5th house rules love, the 7th house rules relationships, and the 8th house rules intimacy, so when your 5th, 7th, or 8th house overlaps with your partner's 5th, 7th, or 8th house, this means that when a transit (moving) planet is going through your house, it's going through theirs at the same time, and this naturally brings both of your attentions to your relationship and each other. No forcing, no having to try consciously, it just happens. The only downside is when it's Saturn touring them at the same time - that can signal a difficult period!

Lesson 4: Extra Synastry Notes

I want to list the things that I look for in synastry most for strong connections:

Triad connections (Sun-Moon-Rising)

Venus conjunct the Sun, Moon, or angle (1st, 4th, 7th, or 10th house cusp)

Jupiter conjunct a personal planet or angle

North Node conjunct a personal planet or Jupiter

Personal planets falling in the 7th house

Overlap of the 5th-7th-8th houses

And these are connections that can prove challenging or show red flags:

Mars conjunct, square, or opposite Pluto

Venus conjunct, square, or opposite Saturn, Uranus, Neptune, or Pluto

Saturn conjunct, square or opposite Sun, Moon, Venus, Mars, or an angle

Planets in the 12th house

Chiron square the personal planets, conjunct one of the Lunar Nodes, or square the Lunar Nodes

One extra little quirky thing you can assess is asteroid connections.

There are love asteroids you can look up and if one of their personal planets or Jupiter is conjunct (or one of your personal planets or Jupiter is conjunct one of their love asteroids), that can be helpful (but orbs are small with asteroids, so under 3 degrees, and many believe under 2 degrees). Love asteroids you can check: Amor (number 1221), Juno (number 3), Cupido (number 763), Valentine (number 447), Aphrodite (number 1388), Lust (number 4386), Sappho (number 80), and Nymphe (number 875).

Since there are so many asteroids (thousands of them), you can also usually find an asteroid for each of your names (first, middle, or last, and if not spelled exactly, then sounds alike). You can look up the asteroid of each other's names and see where their name falls in your natal chart, your name falls in their natal chart, and compare to each other's charts. I find that when set off by transit planets or by progressions, this can trigger the person coming into your life (so if you dig back to around when you met and look at transits and progressions, you'll usually find the name asteroids involved at the time being aspected in the natal or progressed charts, or making aspects as transit asteroids).

A few other asteroid connections you can evaluate:

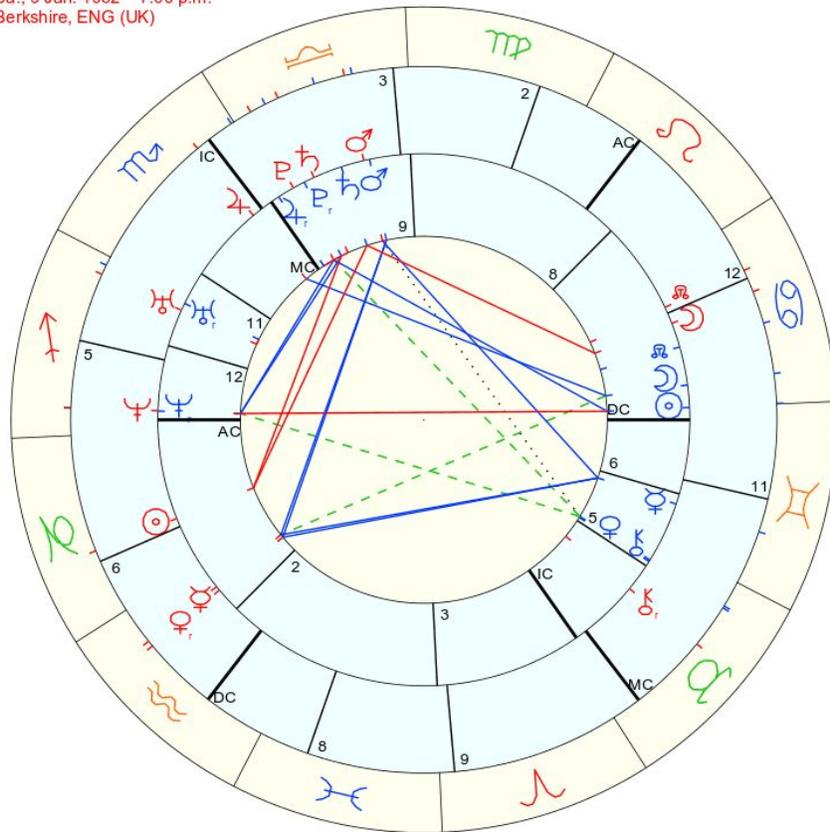

- Asteroid Nemesis (number 128) connections can show you're essentially enemies in some way, at odds to one another, or one of you may view the other as your nemesis
- Asteroid Pandora (number 55) connections can show someone who gets under your skin, who may annoy you but you're still drawn to them for some reason, or who points out the things you don't want to see (or you do that for them)
- Asteroid Nessus (number 7066) is the asteroid of abuse, so Nessus connections may be red flags to avoid, especially close conjunctions
- Asteroid Achilles (number 588) connections can show someone who is your Achilles heel, or you are theirs

Lesson 5: Synastry Examples

Let's break down a real-life couple's synastry, the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge, Prince William and Kate Middleton. Here is their synastry chart:

Both William and Kate are Cancer Moons, so they connect strongly emotionally. Both of their Moons are conjunct the North Node, and both were born on an eclipse! William was born on a solar eclipse in Cancer while Kate was born on a lunar eclipse in Capricorn. Talk about a power couple, they're an eclipse power couple!

Add to that William has Jupiter conjunct his Midheaven while Kate has Jupiter conjunct her Immum Coeli; the Midheaven and Immum Coeli are on an axis representing the foundation of our lives. So they come together on solid ground, and seen as being a super grounded coupling.

William is a Sagittarius Rising while Kate is a Leo Rising, so they're both fire sign Risings. They both have Mars in Libra along with Saturn and Pluto, so they're driven in similar ways. Libra rules relationships, so they likely feel they can do more together than apart.

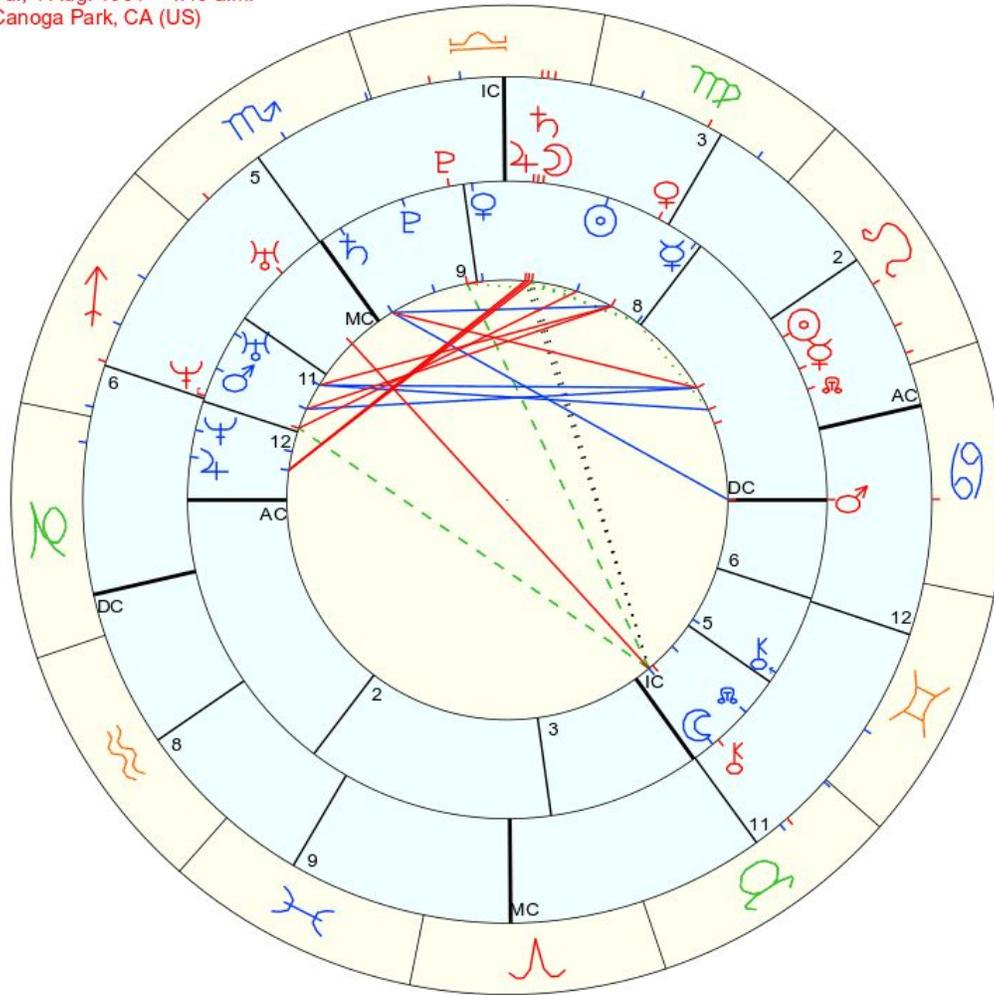

Kate has her Moon and North Node conjunct the 12th house cusp; the 12th house is naturally ruled by Neptune, and William has his Neptune conjunct his Ascendant. They both have an air sign Mercury (Gemini for William, Aquarius for Kate) this is not in the same sign as their Suns (Cancer for William, Capricorn for Kate), so they both likely express themselves differently outwardly and understand that about each other.

They both also have a challenged Venus. William has Venus conjunct Chiron and Kate has Venus retrograde (and conjunct Mercury; both conjunctions are less than 1 degree so super close). William's is no big shock since we all know how we lost his mother; in Kate's case, I think she was considered a "tomboy" if I remember right, so perhaps she didn't learn to embrace her femininity until later (actually, probably not fully until she became a mother with Moon on the North Node).

So how about the other royal couple, the Duke and Duchess of Sussex aka Prince Harry and Meghan Markle? Their synastry chart:

Harry is a Virgo Sun, Taurus Moon, and Capricorn Rising - talk about earth! That is quite the earthy royal. His Moon is conjunct the 4th house cusp (which naturally links to Cancer) and the North Node (so he actually has a very strong link to William and Kate), and his Sun is in the 8th house, which naturally links to Scorpio.

Meghan's Sun is in Leo and the 1st house, which seems to stand out in this group (so not too shocking she does as the outlier American, biracial, and former actress - standing out indeed!). But her Rising is in Cancer (with his Moon conjunct the 4th house cusp), and her Moon is conjunct Saturn, who naturally rules Capricorn, Harry's Rising.

Meghan's Moon is in Libra and conjunct commitment-minded Saturn and happy Jupiter; they go with Harry's Venus in Libra, so no surprise she's the one who got him to "settle down". His Jupiter is in Capricorn, her Descendant sign, so they have Jupiter connections both ways, which seems to say they genuinely do like each other.

Now, she's pretty different for the royals, so what made Harry opt for someone so out of the main? I'd guess his Mars, who is conjunct unconventional Uranus in the house Uranus naturally rules, the 11th house. So as traditionally-minded as all of his earth energy makes him, there is a strain of a rebel inside that he let out with her.

Class 2: Composites

Lesson 1: Composite Chart Parts

Composites is a reference to the composite chart, which combines your chart with someone else's and creates a new chart that is the chart of your relationship itself. Your relationship is viewed as its own being, and composites can help explain the people who seem really different on the outside coming together in a way that works. It can also help explain the people who seem like they should fit together well not being good together at all.

You can analyze the positions in the composite chart similarly to analyzing a natal chart. A composite planet in a sign, house, and the aspects it makes will operate like they would in a natal chart, except instead of showing a portion of a person's personality and life, it shows a portion of the relationship.

The composite Sun is the identity of your relationship itself, just like it's your true identity in the natal chart. The house location of the composite Sun can often show the biggest focus within the relationship. You usually want to see a good Sun in the composite chart that's not making too many hard aspects, otherwise there can be some core issues. The composite Moon is the emotions within the relationship, how you express emotions together and how the relationship impacts you both emotionally.

Composite Mercury represents communication in the relationship, and how you engage with one another. Composite Venus is the love and affection in the relationship when it's any kind of love relationship (romantic, family, friend); in a business relationship, it may focus more on money. You generally want to see a good composite Venus, like with the Sun, for love relationships. Composite Mars can show where the energy of your relationship is located, and how you take action together.

Composite Jupiter can show where you can expand together, explore together, and where there is happy energy in the relationship.

Composite Saturn can show where you experience struggles, feel restricted together, or have lessons to learn together. Composite Uranus can show where you can experience sudden changes, where the relationship may experience instability, or where you may need things to be different in the relationship. Composite Neptune can show where you may struggle with seeing reality in the relationship, have difficulty grasping, or require a spiritual connection. Composite Pluto can show where you may need to transform together, where you may fight over power/control, or where you may need to dig deeper.

The composite 1st house represents the outward face of the relationship; the 2nd house represents finances and values in the relationship; the 3rd house represents communication (with Mercury); the 4th house represents the core of the relationship (and the home/family life you have together in a romantic or family relationship); the 5th house represents the love/affection between you; the 6th house represents the details of the relationship, the mundane aspects; the 7th house represents the others you encounter together; the 8th house represents the things you may push away in the relationship; the 9th house represents where you may need space; the 10th house represents the peak of your relationship, what you can aspire for together; the 11th house represents how you come together as peers and the future of the relationship; and the 12th house represents what's hidden in the relationship along with subconscious/karmic baggage.

The North Node represents what you can grow into together to manifest the potential of the relationship, while the South Node represents emotional baggage and bad habits you can fall into together. Chiron can show where healing may need to occur together in order to grow.

You can also compare the composite chart to each of your natal charts and perform a little synastry for each of you with the chart of the relationship itself. This can give you an idea of how the relationship itself influences each of you individually, since most relationships impact the people in them differently. It can also help explain why one person in a relationship may be happy with it while the other is not (transits can also explain that too).

Lesson 2: What to Look For in a Composite Chart

So what are some things that stand out in a composite chart? The first thing is going to be overabundance, having many planets in one sign or house. This can stifle the focus of the relationship, putting too much emphasis on just one area, or it can be a point of great energy. In business relationships, this can be helpful if in the 2nd, 6th, or 10th houses (the professional houses) or Taurus, Virgo, or Capricorn (the professional signs); this can be helpful in a romantic relationship if in the 1st or 5th houses. It can be super challenging if in the 4th, 8th, or 12th houses, Cancer, Scorpio, or Pisces, in part because these are water houses/signs, which are emotional, so the emotional aspect of the relationship can be greatly heightened. In Cancer/the 4th house, there can be issues at the core of the relationship that run deep; in Scorpio/the 8th house, you both may feel like avoiding problems, yet can be prone to major battles and there can be major inequality between you; and Pisces/the 12th house can be most challenging since it hides energy, is subconscious, and the 12th house is the house of being your own worst enemy, so sometimes the relationship can sort of eat itself and you're barely aware. Romantic relationships can really struggle with 12th house energy unless you both have strong 12th house energy in your natal charts (so you're comfortable with the energy).

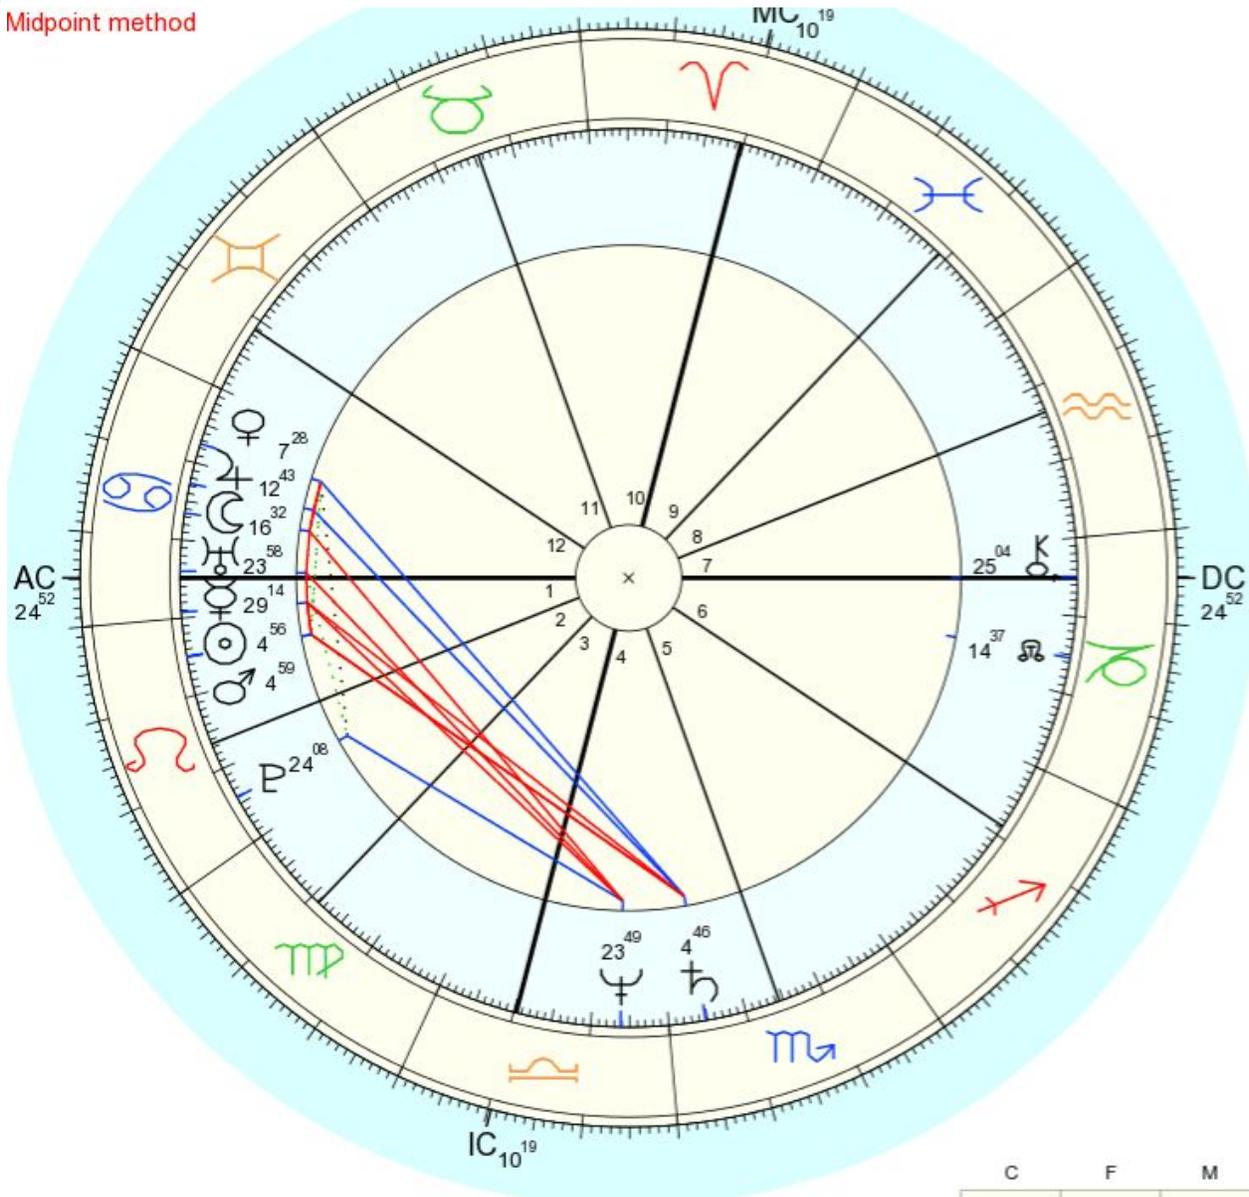

It can be great to have planets conjunct one of the angles in the composite chart, except for Saturn (unless Saturn is conjunct the 10th house cusp since Saturn naturally rules the 10th house). Planets on the angles have greater importance and their energy is stronger in the relationship (so since Saturn is restrictive, you generally don't want Saturn on the 1st, 4th, or 7th house cusps in the composite chart, though like in synastry, Saturn can create strong commitment to one another).

In general, you want to avoid interceptions in a composite chart. An intercepted planet is cut off, contained energy that is difficult to access, and it's especially difficult if it's one of the composite personal planets (Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars) or the composite 1st house ruler. If a planet in the composite chart is a singleton, the energy of that planet is elevated in the chart, which can be beneficial once you master the energy together, and challenging until you do.

Lesson 3: Composite Chart Examples

Sometimes you can just look at a chart and see something striking in the layout. Take a look at the Zodiac wheel for this composite chart:

Midpoint method

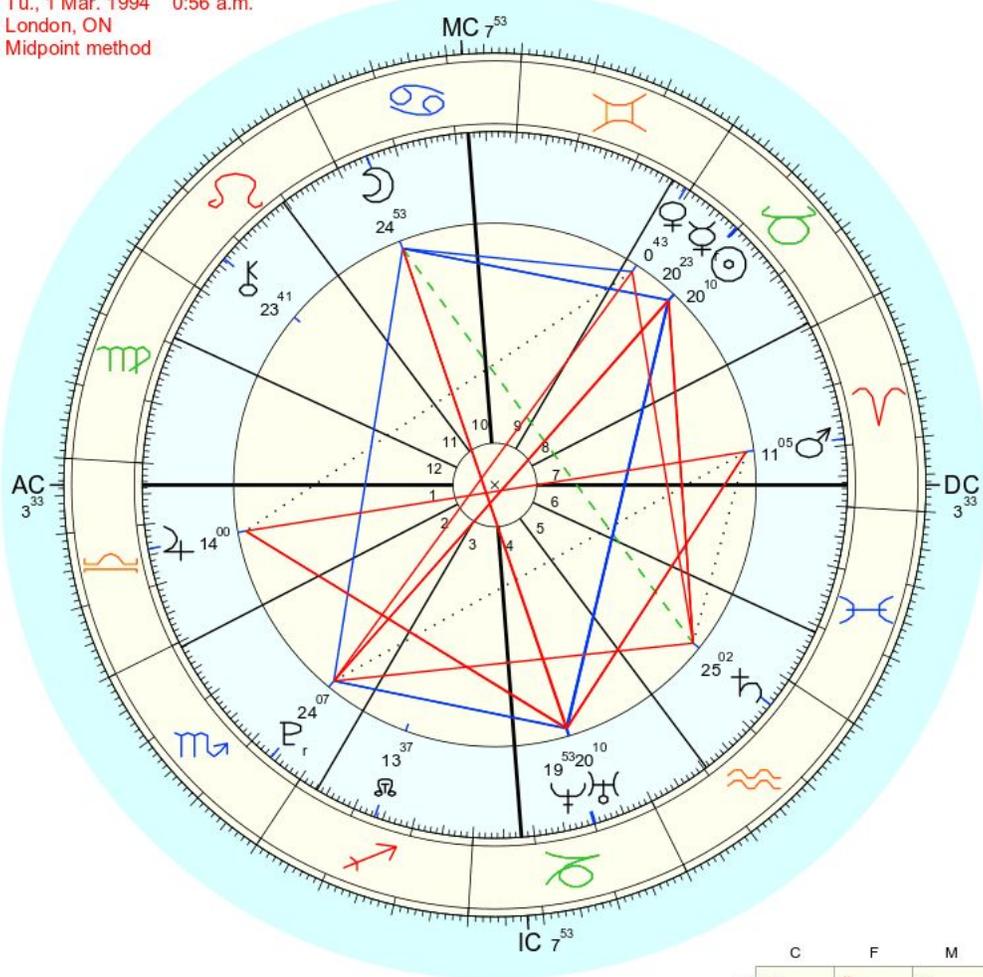

What you should see is all of those planets around the 1st house cusp (AC). 7 of the 10 planets surround the 1st house cusp! (8 if you count Pluto) Which tells you that the couple is suuuuper focused on one another and their relationship. And when they met, it was in fact an instant coupling, and they spent every single day together from the day they met for years. The first time I looked at this chart, I felt like those 7 planets were enveloping the 1st house cusp like a hug, and when I asked, sure enough, my client said they were extremely affectionate and always holding hands, kissing, hugging, etc. So this is an instance where the 12th house energy is alright because the planets in the 12th house aren't focused solely on the 12th house, they're really focused on the 1st house cusp. Any time you see planets surrounding a house cusp, that house cusp gets the main attention.

You see Chiron is on an angle in that chart, conjunct the 7th house cusp - both people in the couple were widows, and their relationship helped each other to heal from losing their spouses. The only difficulty in the relationship was with their children - Pluto in Leo (natural ruler of children), Saturn and Neptune in the 4th house (of family). The husband's children in particular were hostile to the relationship at first, fearful of losing some of their inheritance to the second wife - Pluto, ruler of power struggles as well as legacies, in the 2nd house of money; paranoid Neptune in the 4th house of family; restrictive Saturn in the 4th and Scorpio, the sign Pluto naturally rules.

The Ascendant is in Libra and Jupiter is in the 1st house, which is nice. Gives focus on the relationship and some easy energy. But Jupiter is opposing Mars in Aries and the 7th house. They did seem to have a back-and-forth kind of thing for a while.

The Sun is closely conjunct Mercury in the 8th house, opposing the natural ruler of the 8th house, Pluto. Getting the sense that while there may have been a lot of chemistry, it was also quite volatile. The 8th house energy, the Mars and Pluto oppositions, generally can be volatile and aggressive.

The composite Venus is at 0 degrees Gemini. 0 degrees Gemini is the location of a group of fixed stars called Pleiades, the seven sisters, also called the weeping sisters. It's a position that can be tied to pain, loss - heartbreak! (seems like maybe more her than him given her natal Mercury is retrograde conjunct Venus and Chiron, and well, we've seen what's played out)

I wanted to touch on one that wasn't romantic to show how it can work in a different relationship, so we'll look at one for a famous friendship (and professional relationship, actually). This is the composite chart for Matt Damon and Ben Affleck:

You should see 6 planets in the 5th and 6th houses - 5th house rules creativity, 6th house rules work. Then there is Jupiter conjunct Neptune, both widely conjunct the Moon, all in Sagittarius and the 8th house - Sagittarius is one of the writing rulers, 8th house rules mutually beneficial endeavors. So how fitting they hit it big with a film they wrote together! Moon-Jupiter-Neptune in Sagittarius along with the 5th house planets creates a lot of good feelings between them as Sagittarius/Jupiter and the 5th house are positive. Interesting Saturn there, in Gemini and the 2nd house - Saturn rules career, Gemini is the other writing ruler sign, and the 2nd house rules money.

There are also no planets in a fixed sign and only one planet in a cardinal sign, making it a singleton: Uranus (who I find is the one tied to fame, which makes sense given Uranus rules the masses) in the 6th house (of work) and Libra (ruling partners). All other planets are in mutable signs (so they must have a very flexible adaptable relationship!); and there are no planets in a water sign, which would be bad for emotional connection but they are helped in their synastry (Damon's Jupiter and Venus is in Scorpio, which is Affleck's Moon sign; there's actually a lot of Scorpio/Pluto/8th house energy between them in their natal charts and in this composite chart, which helps with the mutually beneficial aspect of their relationship, and also helps with some emotional understanding in a deep way).

Class 3: Transits

Lesson 1: Transits in Love

Synastry and composites help show you your compatibility with someone, the focus on your relationship, its strengths and weaknesses. Transits show you the conditions under which you can meet someone, enter into a relationship/partnership, and you can plan every step with transits. Transits are a reference to transit planets, which are the currently moving planets. As they move, they make aspects to your natal chart, which are when they come to certain angles. Sextiles and trines are easy aspects so mostly positive, while squares and oppositions are hard aspects so mostly challenging, and conjunctions are neutral aspects that can go either way.

Let's start with a first date. So, dating is ruled by the 5th house, so usually the best time for a date is when the Moon is in your 5th house (this occurs for 2-3 days every month), or you have a conjunction, sextile, or trine by the Sun, Mercury, Venus, Mars, or Jupiter to the 5th house cusp or 5th house ruler in your chart. In general, you can also do well on a date when the Moon is in Leo, the sign that naturally rules the 5th house.

When you have any of the planets making a square or opposition, the hard aspects, to your 5th house cusp or ruler, this can bring difficult energy, and the date may not go so well or as you planned. In general, you want to avoid a date during a void-of-course Moon, which occurs when the Moon no longer makes any major aspects to any other planets until it enters a new sign. The void-of-course Moon can make it so that perhaps the date is fine, but it's just fine, no sparks are flying, the chemistry just isn't there, one or both of you aren't invested, and the next date just may not happen for some reason.

Venus, the planet of love, can also be helpful for your first date, and you can look for transit Venus conjunct, sextile, or trine your Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, 1st house cusp (house of the self), or 7th house cusp (house of relationships). If you want to increase your odds even more, make sure both of you have one of these nice aspects going on at the same time so you're both on the same feel-good page! A lot of this can also be beneficial for going out trolling for someone. In a pinch, just look for Moon in the 5th or 7th houses, in Leo or Libra, no void-of-course Moon, aspects by transit Venus to your natal chart, or positive aspects by transit planets to your natal Venus.

How about the next step - saying I love you? (but without the question mark, ha!) Communication is governed by Mercury, the 3rd house, and Gemini, so you can focus on when the Moon is in your 3rd house, Gemini, or conjunct, sextile, or trine your natal Mercury, 3rd house cusp, or 3rd house ruler. Bonus points if there are Venus aspects at the same time by transit Venus or to your natal Venus. Extra bonus points if it's a conjunction, sextile, or trine between transit Mercury and your natal Venus, or transit Venus and your natal Mercury, 3rd house cusp, or 3rd house ruler. You can find it easier to communicate loving feelings then (a lot easier!). Try to make sure they also have positive communication aspects - otherwise they may not take it well (or say it back!).

And the next step - moving in together. Your home and living situation is ruled by the Moon, 4th house, and Cancer, so you want to see positive aspects (sextiles and trines) to your natal Moon, 4th house cusp or ruler, by your Progressed Moon to your natal planets or house cusps, or a progressed planet entering Cancer.

Since this is a "next step" in the relationship, you also want to see positive aspects involving the relationship parts of your chart: Venus, the 7th house, and Libra. This can involve sextiles and trines to your natal Venus, 7th house cusp or ruler, by your progressed Venus to your natal planets or house cusps, or a progressed planet entering Libra. Saturn is also usually present with commitment, so a positive transit Saturn aspect to your natal chart (especially to natal Moon or Venus), Saturn transiting your 1st house (of the self), 4th house, 5th house (of love), or 7th house, a conjunction, sextile or trine by transit Jupiter to your natal Saturn, or a sextile or trine by transit Uranus or Pluto to your natal Saturn is also good to see, and helps to ground the energy and add to your level of commitment to one another and to taking the next step.

Finally, it's also good to see positive 8th house or Pluto aspects. They rule "other people's money" - basically any finances that impact yourself and another person, and this includes joint finances and resources, which is an important part of moving in together as you merge not only your personal and daily lives, but your financial ones as well (and with money problems being one of the top reasons for relationships ending, it's kinda important!). Positive 8th house and Pluto aspects help you to merge the financial side of things more easily and hopefully avoid the financial issues that can drive a wedge between you quickly.

Now you move on to wanting to get engaged - like with moving in together, this is a big next step in commitment, so you'll want to see positive aspects with Venus, the 7th house, or Libra. Like with saying I love you, this is also a communication thing, so you'll want to also have positive aspects with Mercury, the 3rd house, or Gemini.

For choosing a wedding date, electionals may be of better use than personal transits since so many people are involved (covered in a bit).

The general conditions for meeting someone and entering into a relationship personally involve aspects to the 5th and 7th house rulers or cusps, natal or progressed Venus, or progressed 5th or 7th house aspects. Jupiter helps with being open to love, while Saturn helps with being open to commitment. If you only have Jupiter and no Saturn, then this can create love, but it may not last without stabilizing Saturn. If you only have Saturn and no Jupiter, this may bring commitment and a relationship, but one that ultimately lacks love and affection (and may be based more on comfort and security).

If you have transit Uranus aspects in play, this can show going for someone totally different from what you'd normally go for, entering into an unusual or unconventional relationship, or experiencing love at first sight. If you have transit Neptune aspects in play, this can show feeling like you have a soul mate connection with someone, but it can also show being deceived and not seeing someone for who they really are. Both Uranus and Neptune need Saturn aspects in play to help tone down their challenges and make them manageable, otherwise you may end up in a very wonky relationship!

If you have transit Pluto aspects in play, this can bring out obsessive qualities. If you're naturally inclined to be a little obsessive or attract obsessive people, it can be much worse (hello stalker). Pluto also greatly increases passion, so connections can be passionate and intense. Purely sexual relationships can benefit from Pluto aspects, though Pluto may not be too happy with the no strings part (Pluto is too jealous and possessive to have no strings). The 8th house tends to be in play for a purely sexual relationships (and Mars in the 8th house can be notorious for it, especially since it's only for about 2 months so it can be fling-y).

Retrogrades govern redos, so exes coming back into your life can come with retrogrades of Mercury or Mars in your 5th or 7th houses, Venus retrograde, Jupiter retrograde in the 1st, 5th, or 7th houses, or any of them aspecting the ruler of the 5th or 7th houses, aspecting the 5th or 7th house cusps, aspecting natal or progressed Venus, or aspecting the progressed 5th or 7th house cusps.

And then there is breaking up. This usually comes with transit Saturn, Uranus, Neptune, or Pluto touring the 1st, 5th or 7th houses, making hard aspects to the 1st, 5th, or 7th house cusps or rulers, or to natal or progressed Venus. Hard Saturn aspects in particular tend to break a lot of people up during the first year of your relationship. As your relationship moves on, grows and strengthens, you can work through these hard aspects (and all long-term relationships do). It's just difficult when it hits in that first year or so since you're not in that super committed, established place yet.

When long-term relationships break up, you usually need to see hard Saturn plus hard Uranus, Neptune, or Pluto, and the more hard aspects, the more likelihood you'll break up. There have been times when I've done relationship readings and seen that one person in the relationship will have very hard aspects, and the other person won't; I find that this usually shows that the person without the many hard aspects is the one who wants the breakup and likely instigates it, and the one with the many hard aspects isn't going to be too happy about it!

And, you can assess aaaalllllll of this not only with your natal charts, but also with the composite chart. You can focus on the transits happening to the composite chart, and this can tell you more about the conditions you're experiencing in the relationship.

When he met and married Amal, transit Uranus was conjunct that natal Venus of his. Uranus can make you want something totally different from what you've wanted before and make different relationship decisions than you have been. In his case, it meant finally committing to someone, and someone different from those he'd been with before. They got married under transit Jupiter trine his natal Venus as well, and transit Pluto trine his natal 7th house cusp. Saturn was transiting his 8th house (no more intimacy-less sex), and interestingly, opposing his 7th house ruler. Both transit Venus and the Sun were in his 7th house of relationships when they got married, and the Moon was transiting his 7th and 8th houses. And his progressed 1st and 7th houses moved into new signs, showing a whole new approach to relationships.

Lesson 3: Using Electionals

You can also use electional astrology to plan things out (helpful if you have no known birth time). Electional astrology focuses on what the planets are doing to each other rather than what they're doing to your charts. With electionals, you choose the moment of an event based on the chart for that specific moment. This is taken from an old electionals class, and covers the 5 aspects of relationships: going on a first date, moving in together, getting engaged, getting married, and getting divorced (start to finish!). Try to hit as many points as you can listed. It'll likely be impossible to hit them all, so use your judgment which you're going to focus on as most important.

For going on a first date look for:

- The Moon in Leo (ruling dating) or Libra (ruling relationships)
- An applying sextile or trine to Venus by the Moon
- Sextile or trine between Venus and Mars
- Avoid Venus retrograde (if you can't, absolutely do not allow Venus retrograde to rule the 1st, 5th, or 7th houses)
- Avoid the ruler of the 1st, 5th, or 7th houses retrograde
- Ascendant in Leo or Libra
- The ruler of the 1st house in the 5th or 7th houses, or the ruler of the 5th or 7th houses in the 1st house
- Venus in the 1st, 5th or 7th houses
- Avoid Venus in the 12th house
- Jupiter in the 5th or 7th houses
- Avoid malefics in the 7th house
- The 5th or 7th house ruler sextile or trine the 1st house ruler or 1st house cusp

For moving in together, look for:

- The Moon in Cancer (ruling the home) or Libra

- An applying sextile or trine to Venus and Saturn by the Moon
- Avoid Venus retrograde
- Avoid the rulers of the 1st, 4th, or 7th houses retrograde
- Ascendant in Cancer or Libra
- The ruler of the 1st house in the 4th, 5th, or 7th houses
- The ruler of the 4th house in the 5th or 7th houses
- The rulers of the 5th or 7th houses in the 4th house
- Venus in the 1st, 4th, or 7th houses
- Jupiter in the 1st, 4th, or 7th houses
- Avoid malefics in the 4th house
- The 4th house ruler sextile or trine the 1st house ruler or cusp
- The 4th house ruler sextile or trine the 7th house ruler or cusp
- The Moon sextile or trine the 5th or 7th house ruler or cusp

For getting engaged, look for:

- The Moon in Libra
- An applying sextile or trine to Venus and Saturn by the Moon
- Sextile or trine between Venus and Saturn
- Avoid Venus retrograde
- Avoid the ruler of the 1st, 7th, or 10th houses retrograde
- Ascendant in Libra
- The ruler of the 1st house in the 7th house
- The ruler of the 7th house in the 1st or 10th houses
- Venus in the 1st, 5th, or 7th houses
- Jupiter in the 1st, 5th, or 7th houses
- Avoid malefics in the 7th or 10th houses
- The 5th, 7th, or 10th house ruler sextile or trine the 1st house ruler or 1st house cusp

For getting married, look for:

- The Moon in Libra or a fixed sign (grounding energy that lasts)
- An applying sextile or trine to Venus by the Moon

- Well-aspected Venus
- Avoid Venus retrograde (unless both people have Venus retrograde in the natal or progressed charts)
- Avoid the ruler of the 1st or 7th houses retrograde
- Ascendant in Libra or a fixed sign
- The ruler of the 1st house in the 7th house or 7th house ruler in the 1st house
- Venus in the 1st, 3rd (expressing love), 5th, 7th, 10th, or 11th (groups) houses
- Avoid malefics in the 1st or 7th houses
- The 7th house ruler sextile or trine the 1st house ruler or 1st house cusp

For getting divorced, look for:

- The Moon in Libra or Sagittarius (the law)
- An applying sextile or trine to Jupiter by the Moon
- Avoid Jupiter retrograde unless you have Jupiter retrograde in the natal or progressed chart
- Avoid the rulers of the 1st, 7th, or 9th houses retrograde
- Ascendant in Libra, Sagittarius, or Pisces (dissolving)
- The ruler of the 1st house in the 7th or 9th houses
- The rulers of the 7th or 9th houses in the 1st house
- Venus in the 9th or 12th houses (ending)
- Saturn in the 7th or 9th houses
- The 9th house ruler sextile or trine the 1st house ruler or 1st house cusp

Class 4: Chemistry

Lesson 1: Indicators of Sexual Chemistry

So focus on love and commitment is great and all, but if there's no sexual chemistry and it's a romantic relationship, then there's not much of the romance going on. So, what creates a lot of sizzle? First, look at Venus and Mars connections. If your Venus aspects their Mars or their Venus aspects your Mars, this can create a strong sexual connection. Venus is sensuality while Mars is desire and action, so their connection helps to take action on sensual desires. The conjunction is best because it shows you're on the same wavelength and want the same things, but the square and opposition can actually create the strongest sizzle being hard aspects. Sextiles and trines create a more pleasant connection, but not as strong as the others.

Then there is the 8th house, the house of intimacy and sex. When someone has a natal planet or angle that falls in your 8th house, you can feel some major sexual attraction to them, except when it's Saturn (since Saturn restricts). If one of your planets falls in someone else's 8th house, that can make them attracted to you. You can also experience sexual attraction to a lesser extent if they have a planet (except Saturn) conjunct your 8th house ruler, or a personal planet conjunct, square, or opposite your natal Pluto (Pluto is natural ruler of the 8th house). The downside to the 8th house though is it's very heavy energy emotionally, and Pluto/8th house rules power struggles, control issues, and obsession, so you want to be careful with that. But the attraction can be great! (this may be more of an issue in nonsexual relationships since there's no sexual outlet for the energy)

The most important position though is Eros (number 433), asteroid of sex. Eros is pure sex, no worrying about intimacy, commitment, or any of that stuff. It's a little bit of what you want in a primal sense. If someone has a planet (except Saturn) conjunct your natal Eros, or you have one conjunct theirs, this can create a lot of sexual chemistry (especially the personal planets). You generally want your Eros to be in compatible signs (so remember elemental compatibility from the synastry class).

Some other synastry connections that can show a strong sexual connection are connections between Venus conjunct, square, or opposite Uranus (Uranus may be present with unusual connections) or Mars conjunct an angle (angles are points of action and Mars stimulates desire).

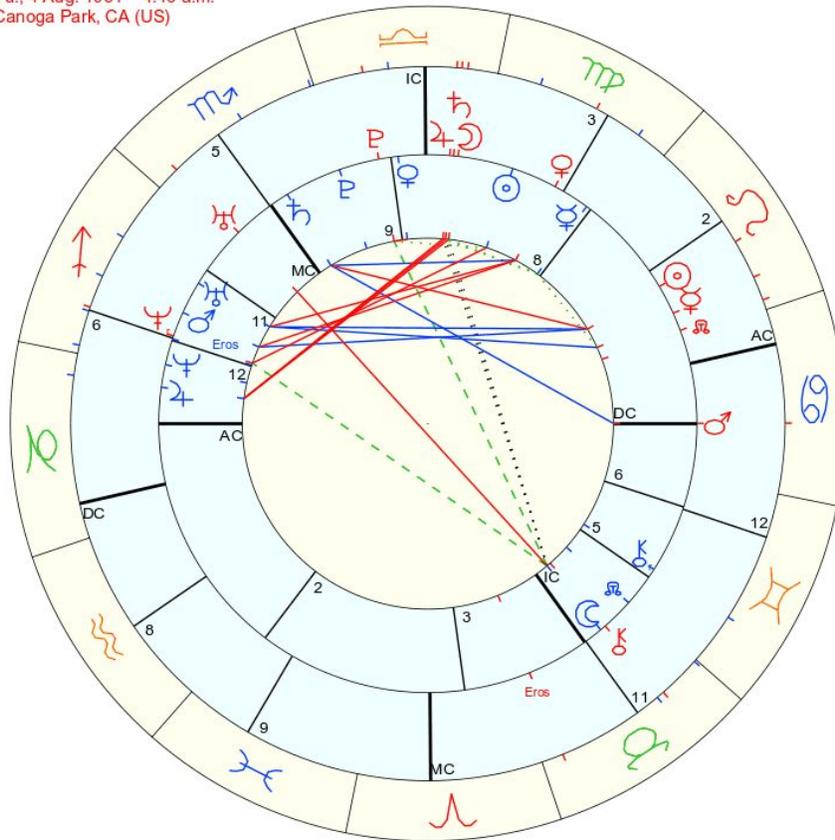

Some composite chart positions that can show a strong sexual connection are planets in the 8th house (aside of Saturn, though Saturn can sometimes show taking your sexual commitment/exclusivity seriously), composite Venus and Mars in aspect (especially conjunct, square, or opposite), composite Eros in the 1st, 5th, 7th, or 8th house, composite Eros aspecting one of the composite angles, composite Venus conjunct, square, or opposite composite Uranus or Pluto, composite Mars in the 1st or 5th house, or composite Mars aspecting one of the composite angles.

You can also compare each of your individual charts to the composite chart and assess for sexual chemistry individually. This may show one of you being a lot more sexually attracted than the other!

Lesson 2: Chemistry Examples

When I looked up the charts for the royals, I was struck by Meghan and Harry's chemistry - it's pretty strong! That sizzle might be what brought them together in the first place. Their synastry chart with Eros:

First, Venus and Mars. Meghan's Venus is in Virgo and Harry's Mars is in Sagittarius, so they square. Harry's Venus is in Libra and Meghan's Mars is in Cancer, also square. Double Venus-Mars squares, aye heat! On top of that, her Virgo Venus squares his Sagittarius Uranus. Must've been quick.

Second, Harry's Mercury is conjunct his 8th house cusp. Mercury naturally rules the 3rd house and Virgo, and Meghan's Venus is in Virgo and conjunct the 3rd house cusp. That's not a super obvious chemistry connection on the surface, but also adds to their sizzle.

Third, Meghan's Venus, Moon, Saturn, and Jupiter all fall in Harry's 8th house. It's a good thing Saturn's there to ground some of the energy otherwise they might have been more of an intense fling!

Fourth, his Eros is at 22 degrees Sagittarius conjunct her Neptune at 22 degrees Sagittarius. So it might be a transcendent, soulful experience between them. Her Eros is at 3 degrees 33 minutes Taurus EXACTLY trine his Jupiter at 3 degrees 33 minutes Capricorn. An abundance of chemistry!

And in their composite chart, Venus and Mars are conjunct out-of-sign, and Eros is in Aquarius conjunct the 11th house cusp - don't want to know the kink that's bringing out, thanks!

Another one I figured had to have something strong was Katy Perry and her ex Russell Brand (they hopped to it fast and came apart just as quick!). It's all Eros with them: her Eros is in Capricorn, his Ascendant sign, and sandwiched between Mars and Jupiter, and he has Mars conjunct Jupiter (and Moon) in Aries; his Eros is conjunct the 8th house cusp, which naturally connects to Scorpio, and holy cow is she super Scorpio (triple Scorpio - Sun, Moon, Rising - plus Sun conjunct Scorpio ruler Pluto, and Mercury and Saturn in Scorpio); and in their composite chart, Eros is in Scorpio (to go with all of her Scorpio and his Eros on the 8th) and is conjunct Uranus in the house Uranus naturally rules, the 11th house - fast and furious and very very weird! (Orlando Bloom is a much better fit for her btw, he gets her Scorpio energy being a Scorpio Moon himself, but has a much more grounded chart than Brand and links nicely to her Capricorn Mars/Jupiter and Taurus North Node in the 7th house, which says she needs a nice and stable relationship with a nice and stable person)

Another that struck me at the time was Nina Dobrev and Ian Somerhalder. They have the Venus-Mars conjunction with her Venus in Sagittarius conjunct his Mars in Sagittarius (and under 1 degree). Their composite Venus is conjunct Uranus and North Node in Sagittarius as well. She was very young when they first got together, and Sagittarius likes the student-teacher kind of thing. His Venus and Uranus in Scorpio also conjunct her Pluto. Her Eros is conjunct Mars in Aries, and his Moon is Aries.

Lesson 3: What You're Into by Sign

Now here's a quick rundown of what the signs want from sex (this can apply to your natal Venus, Mars, Eros, or 8th house cusp signs, or planets conjunct; it may also apply to the composite positions, and could explain being into something together that maybe you weren't into with anyone else):

Aries: Aries wants to take charge in sex, and may be more focused on what they want and not care quite so much what the other person wants. Aries doesn't like to take sex too seriously, and wants to enjoy itself. Aries can be quick to initiative sex, and doesn't want to think too much about it. Aries doesn't usually need a ton of foreplay, likes quickies, and a little spontaneity. Their head and face can be sensitive to touch as well.

Taurus: Taurus is the slow burn sign, so quickies tend to be out. It takes time for Taurus to get going, but once Taurus starts, it's going for a while. Block out some time! Can't go wrong with stimulating the senses with Taurus through food, drink, music, water, dance. Taurus doesn't mind getting dirty (sometimes literally in the dirt!). Taurus can be turned on by nature and the outdoors, but also by luxurious surroundings and fancy hotel rooms. Taurus likes massages, and the neck can be extra sensitive.

Gemini: Gemini is the sign of the mind, so you may need to make love to the mind before you make love to the body. As Gemini rules communication, dirty talk can go over well, and this is the sign ruling oral sex. Gemini can think up lots of fantasies, but may not act on them without a looooot of coaxing. Conversation can be foreplay for Gemini, and their shoulders, arms, and hands can be most sensitive.

Cancer: Cancer is the sign of emotions, so this sign usually wants an emotional connection before a physical one. Physical and emotional intimacy can go hand-in-hand. Cancer can be attentive in bed, wanting to tend to your needs, and may be most turned on in really romantic settings (even cheesy!). Cancer may not be very open about what they want though, so you have to get them to open up. Cancer rules the chest, which can be most sensitive (and can be really into boobs).

Leo: Leo loves the hunt, but usually wants to be the one chased instead of doing the chasing. Leo wants to feel like the prize, and may demand a lot of attention sexually. At the same time, Leo wants praise for their own technique. Leo tends to either be a very selfish lover or a very generous lover. Leo can love role-playing (and really get into character). Leo rules the back and the heart, so the back can be most sensitive, and the areas right over their heart.

Virgo: Virgo may be the Virgin, but that's usually not literal! Virgo rules sexual extremes, and can go from prolonged periods of celibacy or near celibacy to being a sexual beast. Kinkiness and perversions are under the domain of Virgo. Virgo tends to take a "health" approach to sex, seeing it more as a perfectly normal, physically healthy experience, so there may not be too much judging on what you're into, but there also may not be as much intimacy. Virgo may prefer a clean place to have sex, or showering first. Virgo rules the solar plexus, which can be most sensitive.

Libra: Libra rules others, so Libra can be very concerned about their partner, and Libra wants to make sure their partner is perfectly satisfied. But this is the sign of the Scales, so they also expect equal reciprocation. Libra can be most turned on in beautiful, luxurious surroundings, and after doing something romantic, and may have a hard time with surroundings that seem dirty or loud or chaotic in some way. The lower back can be most sensitive to touch.

Scorpio: Scorpio is the sign ruler of sex in general, so this is usually the sign people think is the most sexual, but that's not necessarily the case. Scorpio can be super passionate and intense, but without an emotional intimate connection, can get bored, impatient, and unsatisfied. Have that connection, and Scorpio is all in. Scorpio rules power and control, so this sign can be into BDSM (though this can link more strongly to asteroid Sado, number 118230).

Sagittarius: Sagittarius takes the lightness of a fire sign and mixes it with the physical passion of previous sign, Scorpio, and can be super passionate but without the intense strings. Sagittarius loves the game, and knows how to play it well. This is the sign of free-wheeling sexual endeavours, having many partners (or at least many without commitment). Sagittarius is open to exploring cultural views of sex, and experimenting with positions. Sagittarius likes being the teacher or having a teacher.

Capricorn: Capricorn is the authority figure, so Capricorn may want to be in charge or be with someone who is. Capricorn isn't really into teaching though, so you've got to already be trained by someone else before sleeping with them. Capricorn is the traditional sign, so they may take a more traditional approach to sex and not be into anything too kinky. They do tend to keep quiet about their sex lives. This is an earth sign, so they can be surprisingly sensual.

Aquarius: Aquarius is the experimental sign, so this sign can be experimental in bed, and willing to try some things that seem weird. Aquarius is a fairly distant sign, so there may not be much passion, intensity, or emotion involved. Even though Virgo is the Virgin, Aquarius is really the one who doesn't need sex. Though since Aquarius rules groups, an orgy might work! (lol actually orgies are governed by asteroid Bacchus, number 2063). You may want to change things up frequently with Aquarius, or boredom kicks in fast.

Pisces: Pisces is a mutable water sign, which makes it the most fluid and flowy, so Pisces can be into a lot of different things at any moment. Pisces can be into one thing one day, and something else the next. Pisces is highly adaptable to whatever their partner is into, so very little may be off of the table. Pisces rules imagination, so stimulating their imagination can turn them on, and Pisces is super romantic, so they can also be turned on from romantic gestures. Also, Pisces rules feet (so add in some Virgo and you've got a foot fetish!).

Spotting Who to Avoid

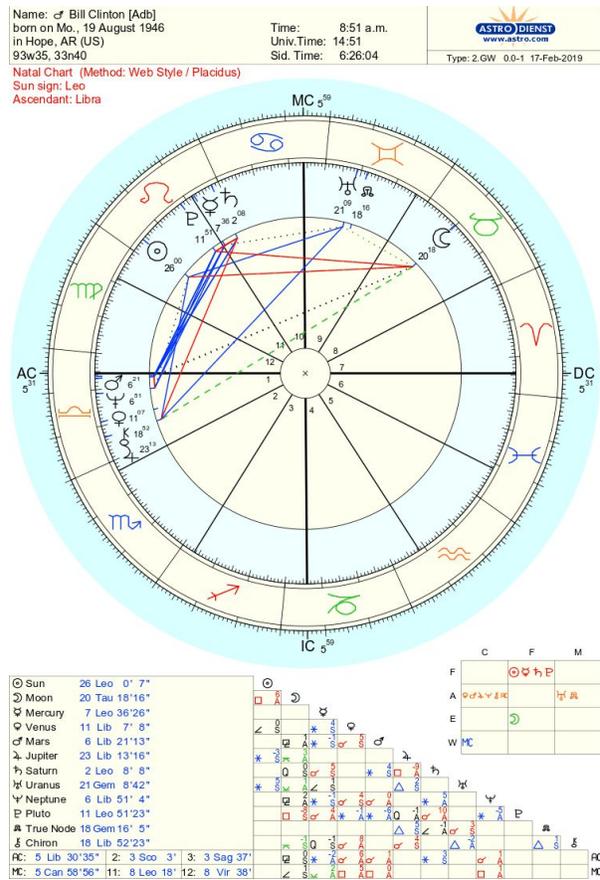

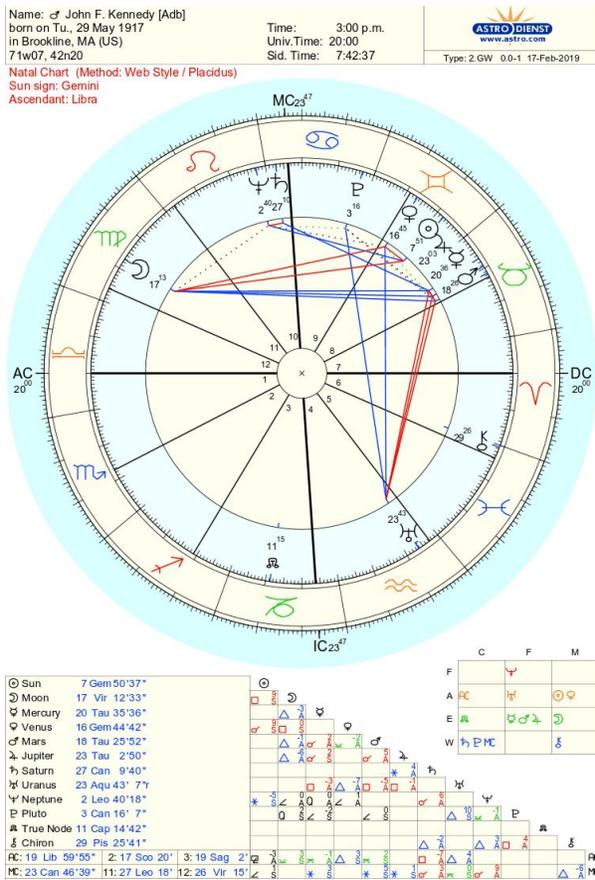

Now to something you really want to know - how to spot someone to avoid! LOL! Now, not every position outlined is doomed to be the bad boy/girl associated with it; every position has a positive and negative expression, and if they've done the work often associated with these positions, they can express it positively. But make sure they're doing that before you throw caution to the wind!

Start with the two-faced jerk - this is often seen with a personal planet (Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars - also sometimes the Ascendant) anaretic (at 29 degrees) in Gemini (ruler of the Twins - no surprise!). In the natal chart, this can be a natural thing for them (they may not even realize that they are two-faced). When they've recognized and worked through whatever challenge is associated with their anaretic planet, then they can drop the two-face and become a dynamic, but open, personality. You may also see this with an anaretic 3rd house cusp (naturally connects to Gemini), and anaretic Mercury in general of any sign (since Mercury rules Gemini, but it's worse when in Gemini). This can occur temporarily with planets that enter 29 degrees Gemini in the progressed chart as well.

What about cheaters? Difficult Pisces energy can surprisingly be prone to cheating, but usually not in a way where they're trying to hurt you; instead they just get lost in the romantic notions of the moment and don't think too much about the consequences; I've noticed this a lot with Pisces Venus. You can also look at squares and oppositions between Neptune (ruler of Pisces) and the Sun, Moon, Venus, or Mars, or a particularly prominent/challenged. If they have a prominent Saturn that isn't too afflicted, that can counteract a lot of the Neptune/Pisces energy. Squares and oppositions between Venus and Pluto can show someone who cheats to get at you, the vengeful one (though it may be more in retaliation for something bad you've done - so don't do bad!).

Chiron can also be involved when it's on the side of sex addiction, and it's usually a highly sexual chart that goes with that; JFK and Bill Clinton are good examples, with JFK having a loaded 8th house - house of sex - and Clinton having Moon in the 8th and a wide Libra stellium starting with Mars on his Ascendant and including Venus, Neptune, Chiron, and Jupiter; even though neither came out as sex addicts, their charts seem to say they are/were:

Casanovas? Well this one's easy, check out asteroid Casanova (number 7328) - look for Casanova especially challenged, conjunct a planet, one of the nodes, or an angle. Example: Leonardo DiCaprio has asteroid Casanova conjunct his Mercury and Uranus in Libra (sign of relationships), and while his Casanova isn't anaretic, the two planets it's conjunct are! His Neptune is also conjunct his North Node.

The stalker? Strong Pluto/8th house/Scorpio energy (obsessive!), particularly if it lines up with strong connections to your own chart (so even if they're not obsessive with everyone, they may be with you - you may want to be especially careful with anyone whose natal Pluto is conjunct any of your natal personal planets or angles). On the upside, this can be great for chemistry, but that can mean that can create a more difficult connection at times (you get caught up in the sex haze and lose track of reality!). It can be good for business connections (just maybe keep it business only!).

The commitment-phobe? Jupiter/Sagittarius is the eternal bachelor/ette. It can be hard to tie down someone with strong Jupiter or Sagittarius energy (most often Jupiter conjunct Venus or Mars, Sagittarius Venus/Mars, or a natal Sagittarius stellium). Sometimes this can also be seen with independent Uranus, and if someone has a strong natal Uranus, they may want more space than "commitment" can give them. Also, difficult natal Saturn can make it hard for someone to commit (remember Clooney).

What about the liar-liar-pants-on-fire? There are some asteroids to check out - Veritas (490), Truth (249521), and Fides (37) - and if they are prominent in their natal chart, particularly difficulty aspected (especially by Jupiter!), then there may be some issues with "bending" the truth (to be nice!). Look for conjunct or opposite a personal planet or angle (and remember asteroids have a tight orb of 2 degrees). On the flip side, this can also make someone super truthful (to a fault), and it tends to go one way or the other (either super blunt or pathological liar).

And the momma's boy? Cancer and the Moon rule the mother, so if there's strong Cancer or a prominent Moon, mommy may figure a bit too prominently in their life. Now, it's nice when they have a good relationship with their mother, you just don't want a smothering relationship! If they have an afflicted Moon or 4th house, that may be more of an issue. Also Chiron in Cancer or the 4th house (since Chiron rules wounds). And I find that those with a strong Black Moon Lilith also tend to have "difficult" mothers.

I also wanted to include an old newsletter article about the astrology of being catfished - since that's a whole other kind of problem!:

Being catfished is such a modern-times, 1st-world problem, but a pretty common one, it seems. What is likely going on that leads one to be catfished? If you guessed Neptune, give yourself a cookie! Neptune is the planet of deception, whether it's someone else deceiving us or us deceiving ourselves - and both of those things are usually the case when you're catfished. Neptune has the rose-colored glasses and wants to believe in the fantasy created in your head, and believes whatever wonderful lies it's told. This can be a temporary problem with transit Neptune, and when he's conjunct, square, or opposite your natal Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, or 1st or 7th house rulers, this is something you always have to be careful of. Get grounded and if there's a nagging feeling that it's too good to be true, well that's probably your intuition telling you something! Since it's by transit, it's only temporary, but transit Neptune aspects can last quite a while (on and off for up to a couple years), so stay on top of yourself.

If you have a strong natal Neptune (or strong Pisces energy, the sign Neptune rules), then this is something you have to be mindful of your entire life. You're just naturally someone who is prone to the fantasies and who wants to see the best in people, and unless you also have some strong Pluto/Scorpio/8th house or Saturn/Capricorn/10th house (the rulers of reality), you can be more susceptible than most to being taken for a ride by people. Setting up boundaries - spiritually, mentally, and emotionally - is suuuper important for you to help avoid the downfalls. It can also be helpful for you to strengthen your connection to your intuition, which can be very very strong but often is quite scattered until you get some control over it. Once you do control it, your intuition can help you figure out who to trust (and who not to).

Performing a Relationship Analysis

First, you want to assess synastry to gauge compatibility. For each planet for both people, write down:

- Sign location
- Element of sign
- House location
- Element of house
- Planets conjunct the planet
- Signs the planets conjunct rule
- The house(s) the planet rules
- What signs naturally link to that house
- Is the planet retrograde
- Is the planet at a critical or anaretic degree
- Is the planet intercepted
- Is the planet on the North or South Node

Focus on connections with the Sun-Moon-Rising, Venus-Mars, and Jupiter and the personal planets for helpful connections. You can consider if many positions are square or opposite between the two charts since this can create a lot of friction between the two people. Sometimes this can increase sexual chemistry, but without lots of supportive positive connections, it can ultimately be an extremely challenging relationship.

Also consider if there are repeating themes between the two charts, like both people have Moon opposite Pluto or both have a challenged Mars. In these cases, even though the specific aspect or position is challenging in the natal chart, it can be a source of understanding between the two people since it's something both have to deal with.

Then do an overlay and put each person's planets in the other person's houses. Remember that it's what I (my planet) do to you (your house) and what you (your planet) do to me (my house). Keep in mind what the energy of each planet is and what each house rules:

Sun shines a light and brings attention

Moon brings out emotions

Mercury brings out ideas and communication

Venus brings pleasant energy and affection

Mars brings lots of energy and drive

Jupiter brings expansive and lucky energy

Saturn brings restrictions and lessons

Uranus brings changes, the unconventional, and erratic energy

Neptune brings foggy energy and need for intuition

Pluto brings transforming energy and need to manage power/control

1st house is self

2nd house is finances, values, self-esteem

3rd house is communication

4th house is home/family and foundation

5th house is love, creativity, fun

6th house is work, health, daily life

7th house is others, relationships

8th house is shared resources, the dark underbelly

9th house is higher learning, travel, beliefs

10th house is career, goals, direction

11th house is friends, dreams, future, causes

12th house is spirituality, the past, subconscious mind, hidden energy

Second, assess the composite chart. Make note of the sign and house location of the personal planets, the house location of the outer planets, and the aspects they make and houses they rule. You can think of a composite chart almost like a natal chart and what would apply to an individual natal chart instead applies to the composite chart for two people.

Compare the composite chart to the natal charts for each person as well to get an idea of how each person feels about the relationship separately. You can almost do a synastry for each person with the composite chart to see how they interact with and are impacted by the relationship individually. (since we are usually impacted by relationships differently!)

Third, look at transits. Check aspects for each person:

Transit aspects to the 5th and 7th house rulers

Transit aspects to the 5th and 7th house cusps

Planets in the 5th and 7th houses

Transit aspects to natal and progressed Venus

Progressions involving the natal or progressed 5th or 7th houses or Venus

Progressed planets in Libra (sign of relationships)

Retrogrades in the 5th or 7th houses

New/full moons or eclipses in the 5th or 7th houses or aspecting natal or progressed Venus

While synastry and composites tell you about compatibility and the heart of the relationship, transits tell you if there is anything standing in the way now, or if there is good energy to keep moving forward together. Many hard aspects by Saturn, Uranus, Neptune, and Pluto can be difficult to overcome and often show nothing good coming if early in the relationship. In an established relationship, it can show a challenging time that needs to be handled with care to survive.

You also need to look at transits with the composite chart, and hard aspects can similarly show hard times for the relationship. You'll also want to progress the composite chart (can be done for free in astro.com in Extended Chart Selection) and assess the progressed composite chart against the regular composite chart, and against both people's natal and progressed charts.

Transit Aspects to Composite Planets

These are general interpretations for when the transit planets are aspecting the composite chart planets (transit planets in the composite houses are in the composite interpretations e-book; this is separate since it's not provided on the website, only in AstroLove!). You can get an idea of what to expect as you're looking at upcoming transit aspects to the composite chart. When you're assessing the transit aspects, make sure to consider the house(s) the planet rules in the composite chart as well, since this may be where the energy of the aspect is funneled (just like when transit aspects to your natal planets).

Transit Aspects to the Composite Sun

When the transit Sun is sextile or trine the composite Sun, this can bring helpful energy to the relationship around the day it's exact. It can shine a light on positive things going on between you, and help you focus together. When the transit Sun is square or opposite the composite Sun, this can make you more aware of challenges that exist in the relationship, and bring out more friction. You may need to work on internal or external issues within the relationship together. When the transit Sun is conjunct the composite Sun, this creates a composite Solar Return, and you may find that something is coming home, so to speak, in the relationship.

When the transit Moon is sextile or trine the composite Sun, this can help with the emotional connection in the relationship. You may be more supportive of each other, and can strengthen the foundation of the relationship, albeit temporarily since Moon aspects only last a few hours. When the transit Moon is square or opposite the composite Sun, this can create emotional upheaval in the relationship, and you may struggle with being subjective with one another. Under the opposition, you may focus on ending something together. When the transit Moon is conjunct the composite Sun, this can make you more open with what you feel with one another, and you may focus on starting something new together.

When transit Mercury is sextile or trine the composite Sun, this can improve communication in the relationship, and you may be more expressive with one another. When transit Mercury is square or opposite the composite Sun, this can create communication difficulties in the relationship, and you may have an argument or not see eye-to-eye on something. When transit Mercury is conjunct the composite Sun, this can bring out important ideas and plans together, or make you much more open with what you're thinking with one another.

When transit Venus is sextile or trine the composite Sun, this can help you to be more pleasant with one another, and you can generally feel more at ease with the connection. In a love relationship, you may be more affectionate. When transit Venus is square or trine the composite Sun, you may be more stubborn and obstinate with one another, and not want to deal with issues that arise. When transit Venus is conjunct the composite Sun, this can bring out good feelings between you, and in a love relationship, you can express affection more easily. You may be more compromising, and strive to keep the peace.

When transit Mars is sextile or trine the composite Sun, you may have more energy and drive when you're with each other, or more energy and drive to focus on your relationship. You may be more positive about the connection. When transit Mars is square or opposite the composite Sun, you may struggle with one another, get into a fight, feel frustrated with the relationship, and can push back against one another. When transit Mars is conjunct the composite Sun, there can be extra energy in the relationship between you that needs to be used up. It can be helpful for starting anything new together, but if not used, may lead to fights and frustration.

When transit Jupiter is sextile or trine the composite Sun, this can bring great energy to the relationship, and you can make improvements in the connection or do something fun together. You may pursue opportunities together, especially in professional connections. When transit Jupiter is square or opposite the composite Sun, this can make you lazier when dealing with one another or the relationship, and you may need some space from each other. When transit Jupiter is conjunct the composite Sun, this can make you more positive together, want to expand your relationship in new ways, and can explore together.

When transit Saturn is sextile or trine the composite Sun, this can help with commitment between you. You can feel more loyal, more committed to the relationship, and can feel things are more stable. When transit Saturn is square or opposite the composite Sun, this can make you feel restricted and limited in the relationship, and you may not have as much time for one another (or don't want to spend time with one another). Commitment to the relationship may be challenged. When transit Saturn is conjunct the composite Sun, commitment can be strengthened if you feel this is the right relationship for the two of you. If not, then there can be a parting of ways as the restrictive energy of Saturn becomes too stifling.

When transit Uranus is sextile or trine the composite Sun, you can deal with one another in new and different ways, and make changes in the relationship that are beneficial. When transit Uranus is square or opposite the composite Sun, you may experience unstable energy, changes that are difficult to manage, and one or both of you may act erratically. There may be restless, rebellious energy to deal with, and a major change is likely needed, but it needs to be undertaken the right way. When transit Uranus is conjunct the composite Sun, change can feel inevitable, but you can take control of it together and make the change positive. If you refuse, then the change can take over the relationship.

When transit Neptune is sextile or trine the composite Sun, you can feel the spiritual connection between you to be strong, and you can be more pleasant and accommodating of one another. When transit Neptune is square or opposite the composite Sun, you may struggle with seeing the issues that exist in the relationship, which allows them to grow and get worse until you push through the fog to see the reality. It may be difficult to be realistic together, and you can be more easily manipulated. When transit Neptune is conjunct the composite Sun, you can be the spiritual connection strongly, as if there is a reason you're in one another lives at the moment, and you can move together intuitively. But you can also be under a strong fog that doesn't lift until the conjunction is over, and there can be a big mess underneath it if you're not making sure to stay tethered to the ground together.

When transit Pluto is sextile or trine the composite Sun, this can help improve intimacy in personal relationships, and improve usage of resources in professional relationships. You can make small transformations for the better together. When transit Pluto is square or opposite the composite Sun, this can bring out anything that is deeply hidden in the relationship, and any simmering anger, bottled up rage or hatred or envy. You may bring out the worst in one another at times, and have to work on major transformations and to be as respectful and understanding as possible, not allowing emotion to take over everything. When transit Pluto is conjunct the composite Sun, this makes a major transformation extremely important, otherwise there can be incredible struggles over power and control within the relationship, and one may try to dominate the other, or you may encounter others who try to control the two of you. If you work with the energy, you can emerge stronger together and with a very strong bond.

You may need to strengthen your spiritual and emotional connection to survive. When transit Neptune is conjunct the composite Moon, you may be more empathic with one another emotionally, sensing what the other is feeling, and can be more creative and artistic together. But you may also need to forge stronger emotional boundaries, otherwise they may be hard to differentiate.

A major transformation likely needs to be made in the relationship, otherwise there can be enormous fights for power and control.
