

COMPOSITES

HOUSE & ASPECT INTERPRETATIONS

The Dark Pixie
ASTROLOGY

Composites

© The Dark Pixie Astrology

Introduction	4
Composite Sun	6
Composite Moon	17
Composite Mercury	28
Composite Venus	38
Composite Mars	48
Composite Jupiter	58
Composite Saturn	68
Composite Uranus	78
Composite Neptune	87
Composite Pluto	96
The Composite 1st House	105
The Composite 2nd House	114
The Composite 3rd House	123
The Composite 4th House	131
The Composite 5th House	140
The Composite 6th House	149

The Composite 7th House	157
The Composite 8th House	166
The Composite 9th House	174
The Composite 10th House	182
The Composite 11th House	190
The Composite 12th House	198

Introduction

The composite chart combines both your chart and another person's chart to create a third chart that is seen as the chart for the relationship itself. It's a third entity involved that can explain things like how people who seem so different can come together so well. They may have very different natal charts, but their composite chart can be so complimentary that it brings them together.

You can create a composite chart for free on astro.com (input the birth data for the two people you want to create a composite chart for in My Astro, then go to Free Horoscopes > Extended Chart Selection, and select Composite Chart midpoint method in the dropdown menu; the midpoint method is the preferred method for constructing a composite chart). You can interpret the house positions and aspects between the planets in the chart using this text.

The most important linkage is usually between the Sun and the Moon, and can be very important to deciding if the relationship will be positive or difficult. In a relationship between opposite sexes, the aspect between Venus and Mars can be second most important (since Venus rules the feminine and Mars rules the masculine). Aspects between the Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus and Mars can show the personal side of the relationship; aspects between those planets and Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune, and Pluto can show the external side of the relationship. The signs that the planets are in isn't as important as the house locations and aspects, which is why they aren't covered. Only the major aspects - conjunction, sextile, square, trine, and opposition - are covered, but you can interpret the semisextile like a sextile or trine, and the quincunx like a square or opposition.

You can also treat a composite chart similarly to a natal chart, and track transits to the chart as well as progress the chart (which can be done on astro.com). When you see hard aspects occurring by Saturn, Uranus, Neptune, or Pluto, this usually signals a difficult time in the relationship. Happy aspects to Venus, the 5th or 7th house ruler, or 5th or 7th house cusps can show commitment and pleasant times.

Composite Sun

In the composite chart, the Composite Sun shows where the focus on your relationship is, and can show the main reason you've come together or what holds you together. It can be the identity of the relationship.

Composite Sun in the Houses

Composite Sun in the 1st House

With the Composite Sun in the 1st house, the relationship can be very important to both of you. It can be the main focus each of you has, for better or worse, and you can identify strongly with the relationship. You can feel that you're capable of more together and in the relationship than you are on your own. The upside of this placement is that the relationship is so important to both of you, but the downside is you can get too caught up in the relationship and need to make sure you don't lose your individual identities.

Composite Sun in the 2nd House

With the Composite Sun in the 2nd house, a common value system is important to keep the relationship going, if it's a personal or romantic relationship. If you don't see eye-to-eye on your values, this can be a point of contention between you and you can try to convince one another of your views in a stubborn way. This can be an excellent position for a business relationship because this house rules money and assets, and you can benefit one another financially and make more money together.

Composite Sun in the 3rd House

With the Composite Sun in the 3rd house, you can have open communication and feel that you connect through your minds. This position can give a good mental connection and mental understanding, but you need to work on having an emotional connection, otherwise it can struggle to go beyond a casual relationship. This can be a good placement for a friendship, where strings aren't necessarily important, but in a romantic relationship, you have to open up about more than just your thoughts, but your feelings as well.

Composite Sun in the 4th House

With the Composite Sun in the 4th house, an emotional connection can be strong, and since this is the house of home and family, this is a good position if you're going to connect your personal lives and live together, grow a family, or are family. You can feel comfortable with one another, but if it's a romantic relationship, you need to make sure you don't get too comfortable and things get stale and boring. In a professional relationship, you can work together to build something from the ground up and take a long journey together. Watch for being subjective with this placement.

Composite Sun in the 5th House

With the Composite Sun in the 5th house, this is the house of fun and hobbies, so you can greatly enjoy one another's company and have fun together. This house rules romance, so it's a good placement for a fun romantic relationship, but a lasting, committed relationship may be difficult to create without a strong Saturn or 7th house placements. This is a good placement for friends, and you can allow one another to be yourselves without any strings. Since this is the house ruling children, it can be a good position if you want to have children together, or this is a parent/child relationship.

Composite Sun in the 6th House

With the Composite Sun in the 6th house, you can be very practical in your approach to the relationship, and if it's a romantic relationship, you may be lacking in real sparks or romance. One of you may do more than the other, which can create a dynamic where one of you takes and takes, and the other gives and gives, which eventually leads to resentment. You need to avoid an unequal distribution of effort. Since this house rules health, it can be a good placement with someone who is helping you with your health, like a doctor, trainer, dietician, etc.

Composite Sun in the 7th House

With the Composite Sun in the 7th house, this is the house of relationships and so it can be an excellent position. You can view one another as equals and treat each other as such. You can work together as real partners and work to make the relationship or partnership better.

Commitment can be easier with this placement, and this house does rule marriage, so it can be good for a married couple. But even a professional relationship can benefit from this placement, and you can find you work together in a manner that's fair and balanced.

Composite Sun in the 8th House

With the Composite Sun in the 8th house, you can have a very serious relationship. The 8th house can be the darkest and most serious house, so this position can show a serious relationship that can't be taken lightly, even if it's a professional one. The 8th house rules transformations, so you can find that the relationship changes you or an aspect of your life in some way. This can be a good placement for a business partnership since this house rules other people's money and shared resources. Watch for having extreme emotions with one another, or with trying to control or dominate one another.

Composite Sun in the 9th House

With the Composite Sun in the 9th house, you can have wonderful conversation and freely share your ideas, your knowledge, and your beliefs. You can explore together, expand your lives together, and have fun together, but in a personal relationship, there can be difficulties with giving one another enough space. You may feel like you're constantly drifting apart, afraid of being tethered down. This can be an excellent position for a friendship, or for a teacher/student relationship.

Composite Sun in the 10th House

With the Composite Sun in the 10th house, this can be a good placement for a professional relationship since this house rules career, life path, and goals. This is the highest part of the chart, so you can achieve a lot together and feel you're reaching new heights together. You can achieve greater status and success. Other people may look at your relationship or partnership as some sort of ideal, but you shouldn't focus on that yourselves. In a personal relationship, you'll need to work on opening up emotionally and not holding back.

Composite Sun in the 11th House

With the Composite Sun in the 11th house, this is the house of friendship, so it's obviously an excellent placement for a friendship connection. Even in a professional or romantic relationship, there can be a base of friendship you build your relationship or partnership on. You can work together to have an impact on the world as a whole, so this can be a good position for a philanthropic partnership. You can spur one another on to work toward your ideal futures, and try to achieve your dreams together.

Composite Sun in the 12th House

With the Composite Sun in the 12th house, this can be a difficult position to have. The 12th house is the house of the hidden, so some aspect of yourselves or of the relationship (or even the relationship itself) may remain hidden. You may hide parts of yourself from the other person or they hide parts of themselves from you, you get lost in the relationship and sacrifice yourself, you keep the relationship secret, or it's difficult for you to be open. You can become aware of your subconscious issues and motivations, which can make you feel uncomfortable with the other person. This house rules karma, so you may be coming together for a reason, but you also need to make sure you're seeing the relationship for what it is.

Composite Sun Aspects

Composite Sun to Composite Moon

With Composite Sun conjunct the Composite Moon, your masculine and feminine energies can sync up in an easy way, along with your wants and needs. They may seem to be the same in this relationship. With Composite Sun sextile or trine the Composite Moon, this gives compatible energy and helps you to get along well. It can help to smooth over some of the difficulties of having a hard aspect between your natal Suns and Moons. With Composite Sun square or opposite Composite Moon, it can be difficult for you to get along. Tension can be a constant in the relationship, and you can find it difficult to sync up your wants and needs, so you have to work on creating balance.

Composite Sun to Composite Mercury

With Composite Sun conjunct Composite Mercury, this can bring a lot of mental energy into the relationship, and you can be very engaging with one another, open about everything, and constantly expressing yourselves with one another. You may feel that your minds are on the same page. Because of how closely the Sun and Mercury are to one another in transit, they cannot be any other major aspect in the composite chart.

Composite Sun to Composite Venus

With Composite Sun conjunct Composite Venus, this can increase the love and affection between you. You can show how you feel more openly, and you can find one another to be pleasant and accommodating. Conflict may be difficult at times though, so you need to compromise without compromising your beliefs. Because of how closely the Sun and Venus are to one another in transit, they cannot be any other major aspect in the composite chart.

Composite Sun to Composite Mars

With Composite Sun conjunct Composite Mars, this can bring a lot of energy and drive into the relationship. You may want to express yourselves fully, but this can lead to arguments and conflict if you're not careful with how you do that. There can be a lot of passion in this relationship that needs an outlet. With Composite Sun sextile or trine Composite Mars, you can spend time together doing things that you mutually enjoy, and you can accomplish a great deal, so this aspect can be beneficial for a professional relationship. With Composite Sun square or opposite Composite Mars, there can be a tremendous amount of energy between you, and it can be difficult to grasp and control. You can get into a lot of fights, and need to work on allowing one another to express yourselves and find a constructive outlet for the energy.

Composite Sun to Composite Jupiter

With Composite Sun conjunct Composite Jupiter, this can bring very beneficial energy into the relationship, and you can genuinely like one another and enjoy being in this relationship. You can have more opportunities presented to you together than apart, and expand your lives in new ways together. With Composite Sun sextile or trine Composite Jupiter, you can enjoy your time together, and get along fairly easily. This aspect can bring easy energy that helps you get along. With Composite Sun square or opposite Composite Jupiter, this isn't necessarily negative since Jupiter is a happy planet, and you can still get along well and enjoy one another's company. You just may be lazier together, or irresponsible at times, so you need to be more considerate.

Composite Sun to Composite Saturn

With Composite Sun conjunct Composite Saturn, this is a relationship that can feel limiting and restricting, that comes with more responsibilities and duties, but this aspect can also work to keep you together and strongly committed to one another. This may be a bad thing if you're not good for one another, but it can be a good thing if you are good for one another so you stay together through the rough patches. With Composite Sun sextile or trine Composite Saturn, you can be more mature and responsible in the relationship, and this can be a very stable relationship. The conjunction, sextile or trine can all be beneficial for business relationships. With Composite Sun square or opposite Composite Saturn, you each may find that the relationship is too limiting and restricting, suffocating you. The responsibilities may overwhelm you, or you're each too afraid to take steps necessary. These aspects can lead to a lot of conflict, so you have to manage the weight of the relationship.

Composite Sun to Composite Uranus

With Composite Sun conjunct Composite Uranus, this is a relationship that likely never has a dull moment, and change is constant. You can't resist the force of change that this relationship brings, otherwise you can feel out of control. You may seem like an unconventional pairing, or the relationship itself may be unconventional in some way. With Composite Sun sextile or trine Composite Uranus, you can be more open and honest with one another. You can feel like you don't judge one another as much, and this allows you to be true to yourselves and be an individual in the relationship so you don't get lost in it. With Composite Sun square or opposite Composite Uranus, this can be an unsettling relationship, chaotic at times, and it may not be very healthy for either of you. These aspects require something to ground the two of you together, otherwise you can be left perpetually spinning.

Composite Sun to Composite Neptune

With Composite Sun conjunct Composite Neptune, you can be very compassionate, understanding, and feel you have a soul connection with one another, or you can give in to illusion and delusion and not see the reality of the relationship. You need to make sure you're being realistic about one another and not wearing rose-colored glasses. With Composite Sun sextile or trine Composite Neptune, this can increase your understanding of one another subconsciously, and help you to view one another favorably. With Composite Sun square or opposite Composite Neptune, you can have a hard time sifting through the fog that hangs over the relationship and see one another realistically. There can even be outright lies and secrets, or one of you may make too many sacrifices to "save" the other. You need a dose of healthy realism, and to not get lost in one another.

Composite Sun to Composite Pluto

With Composite Sun conjunct Composite Pluto, this is a relationship that can change each of you or your lives in big ways. The connection between you can be strong, powerful, intense, consuming at times, so you have to avoid getting sucked into the relationship and forsaking everything else. You also need to watch for struggling over power and control. With Composite Sun sextile or trine Composite Pluto, the relationship can be powerful without consuming you, and it can help you change and grow as a person. With Composite Sun square or opposite Composite Pluto, the struggle over power and control can be constant. You may have too much strife, play too many games, manipulate one another, or bring out the darkest parts of one another. A complete and total transformation may be required to have any chance of survival.

Composite Moon

In the composite chart, the Composite Moon shows the impact of the relationship emotionally, what you need to feel secure in the relationship, and how you're able to express your emotions with one another.

Composite Moon in the 1st House

With the Composite Moon in the 1st house, emotions can be very important in this relationship, and it's what ties you together. You can each feel that you can express your emotions openly and freely with one another, and have an understanding of how you each emote. The downside is you can get overwhelmed by emotion, caught up in it, and you can easily be subjective about one another and the relationship instead of objective. You can also be missing logic and reason at times, so you have to work on not letting the emotions control everything.

Composite Moon in the 2nd House

With the Composite Moon in the 2nd house, you can have an emotional understanding of one another's beliefs, and the tie between your with your beliefs can provide some stability for the relationship. This relationship, whether personal or professional, can have a calming, grounding influence. With this house ruling money, this can be an especially good position for a business relationship/partnership, and you can both be driven to accumulate wealth to make you feel more secure. In a personal relationship, neither of you may rock the boat very much, but when you do have issues connecting emotionally, it can seem like it just doesn't go away, and you have to work on being more flexible.

Composite Moon in the 3rd House

With the Composite Moon in the 3rd house, you can express your emotions more clearly and effectively with one another than with almost any other person. Your minds and hearts can meet up easily, and though at times, you may let reason take over for emotions or emotions take over for reason, so balance is important. You'll likely have long conversations and talk about everything with one another. Open dialogue can feel like the key to maintaining the relationship. This can be a good placement for siblings, friends, or a teacher-student.

Composite Moon in the 4th House

With the Composite Moon in the 4th house, this is the house the Moon naturally rules, so it's at home here. As a result, you may have an easier time managing the emotions of one another and the relationship. With the 4th house and the Moon ruling the home, family, and internal foundation, this can be an excellent position for a family relationship, to build a family or home together, or to create a strong foundation together. You can either feel more secure with one another, and more emotional and shaky.

Composite Moon in the 5th House

With the Composite Moon in the 5th house, you can express what you're feeling in a lighter, more playful way, and try not to take one another or the relationship too seriously. This makes it a good position for a friendship, or for a business relationship focused on creative ventures. In a romantic relationship, you can have fun together and make each other feel good, but you may try to avoid any of the serious stuff, so you have to force yourselves to take some things more seriously together. This can be an excellent position for having children since the Moon rules family and the 5th house rules children.

Composite Moon in the 6th House

With the Composite Moon in the 6th house, you may struggle to maintain a relationship where one of you isn't doing all of the heavy lifting, and this can lead to emotional problems within the relationship. You may be tempted to keep any ill feelings you have to yourself until it builds up into something too big, or you nitpick one another too much and are overly critical. Since the 6th house rules work, a professional relationship can have a better chance with this placement. In a personal relationship, you need to not poke the relationship to death, demand unrealistic perfection, and try to be more practical.

Composite Moon in the 7th House

With the Composite Moon in the 7th house, this is the house of relationships, so this can be a good placement for virtually any relationship, personal or professional. You each can focus on the relationship a great deal, feeling more secure and confident when you feel the relationship is solid and strong. You can work extra hard to make sure you're each putting in your fair share of work to maintain the relationship, but you also need to make sure the relationship doesn't become an emotional crutch for either of you.

Composite Moon in the 8th House

With the Composite Moon in the 8th house, this can make the emotions of the relationship run much deeper. You may feel like you each bring out the deepest, darkest emotions and issues you have, and it can cause the relationship to feel unsettling and cause more emotional extremes. There is great potential for the relationship to help each of you grow and transform, but you have to deal with the stuff the relationship dredges up for you. This can be a very serious relationship, no matter how casual you want it to be. With the 8th house ruling shared resources and other people's money, this can be an easier position for a professional relationship.

Composite Moon in the 9th House

With the Composite Moon in the 9th house, this relationship can have a much lighter feeling to it, and you each seem more optimistic and happy-go-lucky together than when you're apart. You can expand your lives and have new experiences together that help to create a bond, but you do have to work on strengthening that bond since this house loves freedom and hates strings. This is an easier position for a friendship because of that, but you can still make it work as a romantic relationship if you give each other enough space to not feel stifled.

Composite Moon in the 10th House

With the Composite Moon in the 10th house, you can both be more practical and responsible with the relationship and one another. This house takes responsible and duty seriously. You can achieve a lot more together than you feel you can apart, so this is an excellent position for a professional relationship, and you can have a lot of success. In a personal relationship, while you can find commitment easier, you may need to work on opening up more emotionally. This house has a tendency to keep messy emotions out of everything, but that can't be allowed in a personal relationship.

Composite Moon in the 11th House

With the Composite Moon in the 11th house, you can feel you connect through similar ideals, causes, and dreams. You can feel like friends, first and foremost, no matter what the nature of the relationship is. There can be a camaraderie between you that makes it easy, but you can also have issues with emotional detachment with this placement, so you want to make sure that in a personal relationship, you're opening up about your feelings and not ignoring what you're feeling. You can each feel more like your true selves in this relationship, able to embrace what's quirky and different about one another.

Composite Moon in the 12th House

With the Composite Moon in the 12th house, you can have a hard time expressing your emotions with one another. The 12th house is the house of the hidden, and hides the energy of whatever is in it. So if the Composite Moon is here, you can have difficulty being open emotionally. One of you may also do a lot more for the other, almost like a doormat or a sacrificial lamb, so that needs to be avoided. Time alone for just the two of you can be important to help you feel secure about the relationship, and you'll likely be very uncomfortable in the spotlight together.

Composite Moon Aspects

Composite Moon to Composite Sun

With Composite Sun conjunct the Composite Moon, your masculine and feminine energies can sync up in an easy way, along with your wants and needs. They may seem to be the same in this relationship. With Composite Sun sextile or trine the Composite Moon, this gives compatible energy and helps you to get along well. It can help to smooth over some of the difficulties of having a hard aspect between your natal Suns and Moons. With Composite Sun square or opposite Composite Moon, it can be difficult for you to get along. Tension can be a constant in the relationship, and you can find it difficult to sync up your wants and needs, so you have to work on creating balance.

Composite Moon to Composite Mercury

With Composite Moon conjunct Composite Mercury, your mind and emotions seem to merge together in this relationships, and you can say what you feel and mean what you say. You can express your emotions more easily, but sometimes logic can overtake emotions and emotions can overtake logic, so balance is required. With Composite Moon sextile or trine Composite Mercury, you can be more open in this relationship with your thoughts and feelings, and may feel that you have a natural understanding of one another. With Composite Moon square or opposite Composite Mercury, communicating openly and clearly can be difficult, and you can have a hard time expressing what you feel and feel understood by the other person. This can lead to arguments and upset. You need to work harder to have open lines of communication and expression.

Composite Moon to Composite Venus

With Composite Moon conjunct Composite Venus, you can have loving, affectionate feelings toward one another, no matter what the relationship. You can feel good with one another and in the relationship. With Composite Moon, sextile or trine Composite Venus, you can enjoy one another's company, find each other pleasant, and find the relationship to be easier. With Composite Moon square or opposite Composite Venus, you can still enjoy one another's company and be pleasant, but you may be lazier with one another or with the relationship, and have stubbornness become an issue at times.

Composite Moon to Composite Mars

With Composite Moon conjunct Composite Mars, the feelings you have for one another and within the relationship may be much stronger than you're used to. There can be a tremendous amount of emotional energy that drives the two of you together, but it can also drive a wedge between you and push you apart if you don't work together. With Composite Moon sextile or trine Composite Mars, it can be easier for the two of you to go in the same direction, to want compatible things, and to have more emotional energy, but use it in a positive way. With Composite Moon square or opposite Composite Mars, there can be an overabundance of emotional energy, and this can lead to constant arguments and conflict in the relationship. You may each be too subjective, and need to have greater emotional understanding.

Composite Moon to Composite Jupiter

With Composite Moon conjunct Composite Jupiter, you can enjoy being with one another and genuinely like each other. You can feel better emotionally with one another and by being in this relationship/partnership, and you can feel happier and more joyful. With Composite Moon sextile or trine Composite Jupiter, you can get along more easily, have new experiences together, and encourage one another in life. With Composite Moon square or opposite Composite Jupiter, you can still get along well and enjoy one another's company, but you can be lazy together and need to keep yourselves busy.

Composite Moon to Composite Saturn

With Composite Moon conjunct Composite Saturn, this relationship may feel constricting and limiting emotionally. One or both of you may feel that you can't express what you feel for one reason or another. One or both of you may feel you have too much responsibility in this relationship, which can overwhelm emotionally. This aspect can help you to maintain stability and commitment, but you have to allow one another to freely feel. With Composite Moon sextile or trine Composite Saturn, this can be a stable relationship emotionally, and you each may be more practical and responsible. With Composite Moon square or opposite Composite Saturn, it can be difficult for you to be on the same page emotionally. One or both of you may be distant and cut off emotionally. The conjunction, square, and opposition can be especially difficult when this is a family relationship, especially with an elder/child relationship.

Composite Moon to Composite Uranus

With Composite Moon conjunct Composite Uranus, this can be an unstable relationship emotionally. You can each change with the wind, and it can be difficult for you to keep up with each other. It can be an exciting relationship, but you have to be able to quickly adapt to the erratic nature of it to survive. With Composite Moon sextile or trine Composite Uranus, this can be a relationship that allows each of you to be yourselves and to express yourselves emotionally in whatever way you need to. With Composite Moon square or trine Composite Uranus, you can have a great deal of challenges with the erratic emotions in this relationship. Things can be too unstable to handle, and you may have a hard time connecting emotionally, with one or both of you being quite cold. Some warmth and stability is required.

Composite Moon to Composite Neptune

With Composite Moon conjunct Composite Neptune, the connection between you can have a strong spiritual component, and you may feel like this is a soul connection. There can be an element of subconscious understanding of one another emotionally, but you need to watch for illusions and delusions, especially with what you interpret one another to be feeling. With Composite Moon sextile or trine Composite Neptune, you can be understanding, compassionate, and have a subtle emotional connection that allows you to be on a similar wavelength. With Composite Moon square or opposite Composite Neptune, being delusional about one another or the relationship can be a challenge, and you can be unrealistic and easily deceived by one another emotionally. You need to be more realistic and see what's really there.

Composite Moon to Composite Pluto

With Composite Moon conjunct Composite Pluto, the emotions between you can be intense, which can make for a strong connection but also one that is challenging. The intensity can make loving feelings more powerful and difficult feelings more blood-boiling, so some moderation is required to keep you from going to emotional extremes. With Composite Moon sextile or trine Composite Pluto, you can help one another to explore your emotional depths, and feel a strong emotional connection between you, but not one that's overwhelmingly so. With Composite Moon square or opposite Composite Pluto, the intensity of emotions can be off the charts, and it can be extremely difficult to get them under control. One or both of you may be manipulating, controlling, and you can bring out the darkest emotions in one another. It's required for each of you to not go to those dark places or get sucked into negative emotions with one another. Find some light.

Composite Mercury

In the composite chart, composite Mercury shows how you communicate with one another, your ability to express yourselves within the relationship, and how you can understand one another.

Composite Mercury in the 1st House

With Composite Mercury in the 1st house, your ability to express yourselves and communicate openly with one another can be strong. You can feel better able to communicate with one another than with other people, and conversation can be a strong tie that helps you get along. In a romantic relationship, you have to make sure you're making an attempt to keep passion strong, otherwise the relationship can lose sparks quickly. This can be a great position for virtually any other type of relationship though.

Composite Mercury in the 2nd House

With Composite Mercury in the 2nd house, this can be a good placement for a business relationship, and you can focus on the plans and ways you can create wealth and accumulate values together. In a personal relationship, you can take your time getting your points across, and you may be more stubborn about your viewpoints with one another, so you need to make sure you're being open about your differences with your beliefs and opinions. You may not be quick to get into fights, but can get stuck on them when you do, so try not to hold on to grudges with one another.

Composite Mercury in the 3rd House

With Composite Mercury in the 3rd house, this is a house naturally ruled by Mercury, so communication can be very easy between the two of you, and you can more comfortably express yourselves and feel you're being understood. This can be a beneficial placement for any type of relationship. You can feel you're understood by one another better than with other people, and it can be easier and more natural for you to talk things over and open up.

Composite Mercury in the 4th House

With Composite Mercury in the 4th house, you can express your feelings with one another more freely and openly, and find that you can understand what you're both trying to express even when you're not saying the right words. Talking openly about your feelings can be an important way that you connect. You may have a hard time separating logic from emotion with one another though, and need to watch for being subjective about the relationship and each other, lacking the objectivity you need to see when things aren't going great.

Composite Mercury in the 5th House

With Composite Mercury in the 5th house, you can enjoy expressing yourselves with one another, and your communication can be pleasant, joyful, and fun. You can focus on lighter subjects and topics with one another, not wanting to be too serious, and you can make each other laugh. The danger is that you don't take the relationship or each other seriously enough when you need to. This can be a good placement for a relationship focused on being creative, or between a parent-child.

Composite Mercury in the 6th House

With Composite Mercury in the 6th house, this is the house of work and is one of the houses naturally ruled by Mercury, so this can be a good placement for a work relationship, though it may be best for an employee-employer relationship rather than an equal partnership. In a personal relationship, you may have the tendency to nitpick with one another, and need to make sure you're not getting lost in the little daily details and losing sight of the entire relationship.

Composite Mercury in the 7th House

With Composite Mercury in the 7th house, this is the house of relationships, so this can be a good placement for communicating openly in any relationship. You can give and take equally, and you each try to listen as much as you talk. You can feel you understand one another well, and you can get along quite well. The only problem may be that you each try to avoid confrontation with one another, and so you can refrain from saying things that are bothering you but need to be addressed, so don't hold it in.

Composite Mercury in the 8th House

With Composite Mercury in the 8th house, you can open up about serious subjects and issues with one another, and talk about the things you hold deep inside of yourselves. You can dig into one another to gain more understanding of each other than you may have with anyone else. Communications between you can be intense, rarely light, and you do have to watch for having some epic fights. When you don't see eye-to-eye, you each may try to dominate and control the conversation, but you need to be more open.

Composite Mercury in the 9th House

With Composite Mercury in the 9th house, you can have light-hearted communication about subjects that interest you and expand your minds with one another. This can be excellent for a relationship based on study and learning. You can enjoy expressing yourselves with one another, and can focus on the positives of the relationship, but you may have a hard time focusing on more serious stuff, so you have to make sure you're not trying to avoid that on purpose.

Composite Mercury in the 10th House

With Composite Mercury in the 10th house, you can communicate with one another about practical matters and try to say what needs to be said, but not too much more than that. You can avoid getting into fights if they don't seem to serve any kind of purpose, and you can keep emotions out of it, but need to work on being more open, if it's a personal relationship. This can be excellent for a business relationship since this is the house of career, and together you can map out a course of action for your common goals that can lead to success.

Composite Mercury in the 11th House

With Composite Mercury in the 11th house, you can be open to what you each think, and allow one another to express yourselves without feeling like you have to be a certain way. You can talk about your hopes and dreams together, and may be a little idealistic about the relationship, but you can get along and understand each other so well that you feel the relationship can endure. This can be an excellent position for a friendship since the 11th house rules your friendships.

Composite Mercury in the 12th House

With Composite Mercury in the 12th house, you can open up with one another about the things you may normally not talk about, which can create a strong bond between you. On the other hand, you can keep more secrets from each other and not feel like you can be open with each other. You may even volley between the two. You may also find that one of you divulges a tremendous amount, and the other helps to deal and understand, but doesn't open up as much. There can be a great deal of subconscious understanding between you.

Composite Mercury Aspects

Composite Mercury to Composite Sun

With Composite Sun conjunct Composite Mercury, this can bring a lot of mental energy into the relationship, and you can be very engaging with one another, open about everything, and constantly expressing yourselves with one another. You may feel that your minds are on the same page. Because of how closely the Sun and Mercury are to one another in transit, they cannot be any other major aspect in the composite chart.

Composite Mercury to Composite Moon

With Composite Moon conjunct Composite Mercury, your mind and emotions seem to merge together in this relationships, and you can say what you feel and mean what you say. You can express your emotions more easily, but sometimes logic can overtake emotions and emotions can overtake logic, so balance is required. With Composite Moon sextile or trine Composite Mercury, you can be more open in this relationship with your thoughts and feelings, and may feel that you have a natural understanding of one another. With Composite Moon square or opposite Composite Mercury, communicating openly and clearly can be difficult, and you can have a hard time expressing what you feel and feel understood by the other person. This can lead to arguments and upset. You need to work harder to have open lines of communication and expression.

Composite Mercury to Composite Venus

With Composite Mercury conjunct Composite Venus, it can be quite easy for you to communicate in a pleasant way and get along well. You may not give in to harsh words with one another, and try to be more compromising, balanced, and fair in your communications with one another. With Composite Mercury sextile Composite Venus, you can communicate well and enjoy communicating with one another, allowing ideas to flow in a pleasant way. Because of the way Mercury and Venus move in relation to one another, they cannot be any other aspect.

Composite Mercury to Composite Mars

With Composite Mercury conjunct Composite Mars, there can be an abundance of mental energy in this relationship, and words fly between. It can be positive in that you each express yourselves openly, but it can be negative in that you can argue a lot since you each feel strongly about your ideas, opinions, and positions with one another, so an open mind is required. With Composite Mercury sextile or trine Composite Mars, the flow of expression between you can be healthy, and you can share whatever you want with one another. With Composite Mercury square or opposite Composite Mars, it can be difficult for you to see eye-to-eye, and you can get into a lot of fights because of that. You each stick to your ideas and opinions strongly, and don't want to budge for the other. Remember that compromise and agreeing to disagree isn't a bad thing.

Composite Mercury to Composite Jupiter

With Composite Mercury conjunct Composite Jupiter, you can have a lot of ideas with one another, and you may seem more optimistic and big-thinking in this relationship. You may enjoy talking with one another in a way that you don't with anyone else, and you can open up one another's minds to different ways of thinking and viewing the world.

With Composite Mercury sextile or trine Composite Jupiter, you can find it easy to get along with one another, and your conversations can be easy to have. With Composite Mercury square or opposite Composite Jupiter, you can still find it easier to get along, but you may be mentally lazy with one another or in the relationship, and look at things a little too positively.

Composite Mercury to Composite Saturn

With Composite Mercury conjunct Composite Saturn, communication may be difficult in this relationship. One or both of you may feel that you can't open up completely, and this inhibits free communication. You have to work on opening up about your thoughts and ideas in a way that's responsible, mature, and disciplined. With Composite Mercury sextile or trine Composite Saturn, communication between you can be calm, measured, and focused on what's important without any of the filler. With Composite Mercury square or opposite Composite Saturn, communication can be extremely limited or completely cut off, and you don't know how to talk to one another. You may feel judged by the other person, and hold yourself back from speaking. More openness is required.

Composite Mercury to Composite Uranus

With Composite Mercury conjunct Composite Uranus, this can be a relationship that opens your mind and challenges your thoughts and opinions, which can be quite positive. On the negative side, communication between you can be erratic at times, and you need more stability. With Composite Mercury sextile or trine Composite Uranus, you can each be open to the different ideas that you come up with together, and you can think outside of the box together. With Composite Mercury square or opposite Composite Uranus, your ideas may pit you against one another, and when you don't agree, you can push back against each other hard. You may find it difficult to get on the same page.

Composite Mercury to Composite Neptune

With Composite Mercury conjunct Composite Neptune, you can be very sensitive to one another and have a subconscious understanding of what the other person is thinking, but you can also be delusional about the relationship and believe you're hearing from one another what you want, not what is actually being said. Try not to read into situations too much. With Composite Mercury sextile or trine Composite Neptune, compassion can be increased, and you can find ways to communicate with one another beyond words. With Composite Mercury square or opposite Composite Neptune, clear communication can be difficult in this relationship. You may have a hard time understanding one another, and may even purposefully deceive one another, and need to be forthright.

Composite Mercury to Composite Pluto

With Composite Mercury conjunct Composite Pluto, this can be a relationship that challenges you to grow and evolve mentally, but it can also be one full of power struggles in your communications and over ideas. One of you may dominate the other in conversations, and equal communication is required. With Composite Mercury sextile or trine Composite Pluto, you can have great understanding between you, and you can learn a lot about yourselves in this relationship. With Composite Mercury square or opposite Composite Pluto, you can get into it over your thoughts and opinions, and need to allow one another to have differing opinions, otherwise you don't ever allow one another to have room mentally in the relationship.

Composite Venus

Venus is the planet of love and relationships, so she can be one of the most important planets in the composite chart. She shows how you can be affectionate, how you express your loving feelings, and where you can find it easy in the relationship.

Composite Venus in the 1st House

With Composite Venus in the 1st house, the relationship can be of central importance to each of you, and you can show one another affection and love more than with others. You can be open about how you feel about the relationship, and you can genuinely like one another. You can find it easy to get along, and you can feel good about yourselves with each other and in this relationship. This can be a good placement for virtually any type of relationship because you can like each other as people.

Composite Venus in the 2nd House

With Composite Venus in the 2nd house, you can feel this relationship is more stable than others you've had or have in your life. Neither of you can feel the need to rock the boat, and you can feel more confident and secure with one another. If in a romantic relationship, you can put more emphasis on passion and a physical connection, as well as loyalty. This can be a good position for a business relationship focused on making money, and you can find it easy to accumulate wealth together.

Composite Venus in the 3rd House

With Composite Venus in the 3rd house, you can enjoy communicating openly with one another and expressing yourselves within the relationship. You may take a more analytical, logical approach to the relationship, which can be an issue in a romantic relationship if you're not making sure you have an emotional connection. Talking with one another about your relationship can be important, and you can find it easier to understand one another intellectually. You can appreciate variety within the relationship, and may be more sociable together.

Composite Venus in the 4th House

With Composite Venus in the 4th house, you can enjoy opening up with one another emotionally, and find it easier to connect emotionally. Feelings can be an important part of your relationship, and even a relationship that isn't personal can have a lot of emotions invested in it. This can be an excellent position to build a family or for a family relationship since the 4th house rules the home and family. You may feel you have a solid foundation for the relationship.

Composite Venus in the 5th House

With Composite Venus in the 5th house, you can enjoy focusing on the things you love most together. You can come together over common hobbies and interests, and do these things together (maybe you even met this way). You can be creative together, inspired by one another, and want to have fun together. You can be more affectionate with one another, which can be good for a personal relationship, and a romantic relationship can have extra romance and sparks. Just make sure you're taking it seriously when you need to be.

Composite Venus in the 6th House

With Composite Venus in the 6th house, you can be more practical with one another and about your relationship. You may not be outwardly affectionate with one another, or at least not excessively affectionate, but you can focus on the ways you can improve the relationship and try to make it better constantly. This can be good if you don't take it too far and demand perfection. With the 6th house ruling work, this can be a good position for a work relationship, and you can work well together, and may have met through your jobs.

Composite Venus in the 7th House

With Composite Venus in the 7th house, this is one of the houses Venus naturally rules and is the house of committed relationships, so this is a great placement for virtually any relationship. You can get along well, you can enjoy each other's company, and you can show affection more easily. You may try to get along so much that you avoid fights though, so try not to do that and hash it out when you need to so you don't have an resentments.

Composite Venus in the 8th House

With Composite Venus in the 8th house, you can have an intense connection, and a romantic relationship can be extremely passionate physically and emotionally. It can be difficult to have a casual relationship with this placement, and you take the relationship very seriously. Sometimes you can be a little obsessed with one another with this position, and need to make sure you're not getting lost in the relationship. You may find it easier to balance the power in the relationship between you, but you can also enjoy fighting a little too much sometimes.

Composite Venus in the 9th House

With Composite Venus in the 9th house, you can enjoy having new experiences together. You can feel bolder and more adventurous in the relationship, and you can take risks and do things that expand your lives in new ways. This placement can be great for a friendship, and you get along well, but in a romantic relationship, you will likely require a great deal of space so you don't feel like you're suffocating one another. You may find it easier to give that to each other though. One of you may take on the role of teacher and the other, student.

Composite Venus in the 10th House

With Composite Venus in the 10th house, you can be more traditional with this relationship, whatever it may be, and with your roles within the relationship. You can be more mature and responsible with one another, and you can take the relationship seriously. You may be more outwardly affectionate with one another, and can be seen as an ideal relationship. This can be excellent for a business relationship since this house rules the career, and you can find it easier to achieve your goals together, and may have met through your careers.

Composite Venus in the 11th House

With Composite Venus in the 11th house, you can get along as friends very well, no matter what type of relationship it is. You can have a good understanding of one another and allow each other to be who you are and embrace your differences within the relationship. You can focus on your hopes and dreams together, and find it easier to make progress to achieve your hopes and dreams together. You may have an unusual relationship or setup, or you may seem like an unusual pairing.

Composite Venus in the 12th House

With Composite Venus in the 12th house, you may have a hard time showing affection and love for one another. You may hold back on what you feel for each other, keeping it to yourselves and not feeling comfortable expressing it for some reason. You can have a secret relationship or partnership for one reason or another. When you stick together, you can be affectionate when other people aren't around, behind closed doors, just the two of you. You can find it easier to open up about old wounds and issues, and you may feel you have a soul connection.

Composite Venus Aspects

Composite Venus to Composite Sun

With Composite Sun conjunct Composite Venus, this can increase the love and affection between you. You can show how you feel more openly, and you can find one another to be pleasant and accommodating. Conflict may be difficult at times though, so you need to compromise without compromising your beliefs. Because of how closely the Sun and Venus are to one another in transit, they cannot be any other major aspect in the composite chart.

Composite Venus to Composite Moon

With Composite Moon conjunct Composite Venus, you can have loving, affectionate feelings toward one another, no matter what the relationship. You can feel good with one another and in the relationship. With Composite Moon, sextile or trine Composite Venus, you can enjoy one another's company, find each other pleasant, and find the relationship to be easier. With Composite Moon square or opposite Composite Venus, you can still enjoy one another's company and be pleasant, but you may be lazier with one another or with the relationship, and have stubbornness become an issue at times.

Composite Venus to Composite Mercury

With Composite Mercury conjunct Composite Venus, it can be quite easy for you to communicate in a pleasant way and get along well. You may not give in to harsh words with one another, and try to be more compromising, balanced, and fair in your communications with one another. With Composite Mercury sextile Composite Venus, you can communicate well and enjoy communicating with one another, allowing ideas to flow in a pleasant way. Because of the way Mercury and Venus move in relation to one another, they cannot be any other aspect.

Composite Venus to Composite Mars

With Composite Venus conjunct Composite Mars, the passions in this relationship can be strong. In a sexual relationship, this can lead to a strong attraction between you. In a platonic relationship, you can find that you have a lot of energy between you that needs to be channelled into something, otherwise you can get into a lot of fights. With Composite Venus sextile or trine Composite Mars, there's a more pleasing attraction between the two of you in a romantic relationship, and any relationship can have more harmony and balance. With Composite Venus square or opposite Composite Mars, the sexual chemistry can be very high in a romantic relationship, and there's a lot of energy involved no matter what type of relationship this is, but this can lead to some instability. Ground yourselves and the relationship.

Composite Venus to Composite Jupiter

With Composite Venus conjunct Composite Jupiter, the loving feelings between you can be strong, and you can greatly enjoy one another's company. In a personal relationship, you can almost be one another's good luck charm, and in a professional relationship, you can have many opportunities for success together. With Composite Venus sextile or trine Composite Jupiter, you can get along more easily, enjoy being with one another, and are more optimistic together. With Composite Venus square or opposite Composite Jupiter, you can still get along fairly well, but you may be lazy in the relationship, and if problems arise, you may feel that you don't need to deal with them, so you have to force yourselves to take action when required.

Composite Venus to Composite Saturn

With Composite Venus conjunct Composite Saturn, you can stick together and feel quite committed to one another, but the ability to express your feelings and show affection may be limited in a personal relationship. You have to work on allowing one another to be more expressive with your feelings. This can be a better position in a professional relationship, and you can work hard together toward a common goal. With Composite Venus sextile or trine Composite Saturn, this can ring stability to the relationship, and you each can be more mature, responsible, and measured. With Composite Venus square or opposite Composite Saturn, the relationship can feel very constricting and limit each of you in some way. You may feel a distance between you, and outward expressions of love can be nonexistent if you don't put a conscious effort in.

Composite Venus to Composite Uranus

With Composite Venus conjunct Composite Uranus, the relationship can be thrilling at times but unstable. In a romantic relationship, you can come together very fast but the relationship can fall apart just as fast without something to ground and stabilize it. A personal relationship may be erratic, and a professional one may be full of ups and downs, so all relationships require grounding. With Composite Venus sextile or trine Composite Uranus, you can find the relationship and one another to be very interesting, and you each can feel you can show your affections openly. You may show your feelings in new, different ways. With Composite Venus square or opposite Composite Uranus, the relationship can be highly erratic and unstable. It can be uncomfortable to one or both of you, and while there can be a strong attraction in a romantic relationship, the energy is so erratic that it's hard to pin down.

Composite Venus to Composite Neptune

With Composite Venus conjunct Composite Neptune, you can be very sweet to one another and have a perfect view of the relationship, but have difficulties seeing the reality of it. You can feel a strong soul attraction to one another, but it can also be a mask for deception. With Composite Venus sextile or trine Composite Neptune, you can find one another charming and passionate, and you can be more sensitive with one another. With Composite Venus square or opposite Composite Neptune, there can be a certain degree of deception going on, and it may not even be on purpose. You may not be realistic with one another, and see what you want to see instead of what's really there. Reality needs to set in.

Composite Venus to Composite Pluto

With Composite Venus conjunct Composite Pluto, you can feel a strong link between the two of you, like you're two magnets that are connected. The relationship can help you to transform and evolve, or it can consume you and become an obsession (even both sometimes). You need to not cling to one another. With Composite Venus sextile or trine Composite Pluto, the relationship can be serious and intense, but not overly so, and you can help one another to grow. With Composite Venus square or opposite Composite Pluto, the struggles over power and control within the relationship and of the relationship and one another can be difficult to control. You may manipulate one another, have secrets, tell lies, and you need to avoid giving in to your dark sides with one another. Don't go to that lowest place.

Composite Mars

In the composite chart, composite Mars can show where you're driven together and in the relationship. Mars is the planet of energy and drive, so his location can bring a lot of energy that can be good or bad.

Composite Mars in the 1st House

With Composite Mars in the 1st house, you can have more energy and drive together than you do apart. You can both focus a lot on the relationship and each other, but you may have too much energy at times, and you can have a lot of arguments with each of you wanting to have things your own way. Learning to compromise can be very important with this placement so you're not trying to be overpowering with one another.

Composite Mars in the 2nd House

With Composite Mars in the 2nd house, you can take your time with one another, and you may not feel the need to rush with each other. Once you do something together, you can stick with it and have more staying power. This is the house of money, so this placement is good for a business relationship built around making money. You can earn more money together than apart, but you can also spend more money and use up more resources, so you need to exercise moderation.

Composite Mars in the 3rd House

With Composite Mars in the 3rd house, mental expression is important for this relationship. You each want to express your thoughts, opinions, ideas, and talk things over with one another, but you may get into arguments over what you say and think more. You need to make sure you're allowing one another to express yourselves and not try to force your ideas and opinions on one another. Freedom of expression is required.

Composite Mars in the 4th House

With Composite Mars in the 4th house, emotional expression is important for this relationship. You each want to express your emotions, what you feel about situations, and how you feel within the relationship. This can cause more arguments when you don't understand one another emotionally, or when you're being too subjective. This can be a good placement for a family relationship, though there may be more arguing.

Composite Mars in the 5th House

With Composite Mars in the 5th house, creative expression and joy is important for this relationship. You can come together to have more fun than with others, but you can focus too much on your own ego needs and drives that you're not as considerate of one another as you need to be, especially in a personal relationship. You need to help one another fulfill both of your needs. This can be a great placement for a friendship.

Composite Mars in the 6th House

With Composite Mars in the 6th house, you can be driven to focus on daily life and routine together, so in a personal relationship, you can be more practical with one another. This may be a better placement for a business relationship, though you may have one person putting in more work than the other which can cause arguments. If you can both focus on your work together, you can get a lot done.

Composite Mars in the 7th House

With Composite Mars in the 7th house, the relationship can be more important to you and you can put a lot of energy into the relationship. You can be more willing to make compromises with one another, and work to meet in the middle, but if you don't feel the other is being fair, that can cause a rift. In general, this can be a good placement for any serious relationship/partnership since this is the house of committed relationships.

Composite Mars in the 8th House

With Composite Mars in the 8th house, there can be more struggling over power and control between you. You may try to dominate one another, and have to work on treating each other with more respect. This relationship can serve to help you each transform, grow, and gain more understanding of yourselves, but it can be intense and all-consuming at times, which can be difficult to handle and feel overwhelming.

Composite Mars in the 9th House

With Composite Mars in the 9th house, you can feel driven to expand your lives and have new experiences together, and this can be a good placement for travelling or learning together. You can debate over beliefs and outlooks, and you try to keep things light, but you may fight over your beliefs at times, so you have to remain open. If you have the same beliefs, this can be a strong link between you.

Composite Mars in the 10th House

With Composite Mars in the 10th house, you can be driven to achieve status and success together. This can be an excellent placement for a professional relationship because of this, and you can achieve more together than apart. In a personal relationship, you may focus more on how you're perceived by others and the way you look together, and need to work on having just as much energy for a real connection.

Composite Mars in the 11th House

With Composite Mars in the 11th house, you can come together with common ideals and views of the world, and this helps you get along well. If you don't see things the same way, you can have a harder time getting along, but can still be more open. This can be a great placement for a friendship, as well as for a partnership focused on charitable ventures and making an impact on the world on a large scale.

Composite Mars in the 12th House

With Composite Mars in the 12th house, subconscious motivations can be more of an issue in this relationship, and you can have to work on trying to resolve those internal issues you each have before you can have a good pairing. You may feel less driven and focused together on external matters, and instead focus more on intangibles. You may feel that there is a spiritual connection between you that's difficult to explain.

Composite Mars Aspects

Composite Mars to Composite Sun

With Composite Sun conjunct Composite Mars, this can bring a lot of energy and drive into the relationship. You may want to express yourselves fully, but this can lead to arguments and conflict if you're not careful with how you do that. There can be a lot of passion in this relationship that needs an outlet. With Composite Sun sextile or trine Composite Mars, you can spend time together doing things that you mutually enjoy, and you can accomplish a great deal, so this aspect can be beneficial for a professional relationship. With Composite Sun square or opposite Composite Mars, there can be a tremendous amount of energy between you, and it can be difficult to grasp and control. You can get into a lot of fights, and need to work on allowing one another to express yourselves and find a constructive outlet for the energy.

Composite Mars to Composite Moon

With Composite Moon conjunct Composite Mars, the feelings you have for one another and within the relationship may be much stronger than you're used to. There can be a tremendous amount of emotional energy that drives the two of you together, but it can also drive a wedge between you and push you apart if you don't work together. With Composite Moon sextile or trine Composite Mars, it can be easier for the two of you to go in the same direction, to want compatible things, and to have more emotional energy, but use it in a positive way. With Composite Moon square or opposite Composite Mars, there can be an overabundance of emotional energy, and this can lead to constant arguments and conflict in the relationship. You may each be too subjective, and need to have greater emotional understanding.

Composite Mars to Composite Mercury

With Composite Mercury conjunct Composite Mars, there can be an abundance of mental energy in this relationship, and words fly between. It can be positive in that you each express yourselves openly, but it can be negative in that you can argue a lot since you each feel strongly about your ideas, opinions, and positions with one another, so an open mind is required. With Composite Mercury sextile or trine Composite Mars, the flow of expression between you can be healthy, and you can share whatever you want with one another. With Composite Mercury square or opposite Composite Mars, it can be difficult for you to see eye-to-eye, and you can get into a lot of fights because of that. You each stick to your ideas and opinions strongly, and don't want to budge for the other. Remember that compromise and agreeing to disagree isn't a bad thing.

Composite Mars to Composite Venus

With Composite Venus conjunct Composite Mars, the passions in this relationship can be strong. In a sexual relationship, this can lead to a strong attraction between you. In a platonic relationship, you can find that you have a lot of energy between you that needs to be channelled into something, otherwise you can get into a lot of fights. With Composite Venus sextile or trine Composite Mars, there's a more pleasing attraction between the two of you in a romantic relationship, and any relationship can have more harmony and balance. With Composite Venus square or opposite Composite Mars, the sexual chemistry can be very high in a romantic relationship, and there's a lot of energy involved no matter what type of relationship this is, but this can lead to some instability. Ground yourselves and the relationship.

Composite Mars to Composite Jupiter

With Composite Mars conjunct Composite Jupiter, there can be an abundance of energy between you and in the relationship. You can feel more driven together and more energized to do things. In a personal relationship, you can push one another and get further together. In a professional relationship, you can work well together and find opportunities for success that you wouldn't find alone. With Composite Mars sextile or trine Composite Jupiter, you can help one another to achieve your goals and have the experiences that you want to have in life. With Composite Mars square or opposite Composite Jupiter, you can still have good energy between you for what you want, but you need to make sure you're on the same page, going in the same direction, and focused on a common goal.

Composite Mars to Composite Saturn

With Composite Mars conjunct Composite Saturn, the relationship may be lacking energy, or you can feel you lack energy and drive with one another. This can lead to frustrations, but you may try to hold it in and that only leads to bursting later. You need to be more disciplined and in control of yourselves with one another and within the relationship. With Composite Mars sextile or trine Composite Saturn, you can be cautious in your approach, make more plans, and take more time to do things, wanting to be sure of yourselves together and when working on the relationship. This can be stabilizing energy, but you still need to allow one another to be open. With Composite Mars square or opposite Composite Saturn, you may feel like you just can't work together whatsoever, personally or professionally. You may each want different things, and you have difficulty getting on the same page or agreeing on the direction to go in. If you don't have that, it's difficult to get along.

Composite Mars to Composite Uranus

With Composite Mars conjunct Composite Uranus, this relationship can be quite unexpected, which can be exciting but also unstable. You can each stick to your own beliefs and ideas strongly, and may push back against one another if you don't agree in a rebellious way, so you need to be more open. With Composite Mars sextile or trine Composite Uranus, there can be a lot of changes in the relationship and of yourself, and it can be in a healthy way. With Composite Mars square or opposite Composite Uranus, the erratic energy between you can be too much to handle, and stability is desperately needed. You may feel like you're constantly fighting, and find it exhausting.

Composite Mars to Composite Neptune

With Composite Mars conjunct Composite Neptune, you can be very compassionate and understanding of one another, but there can also be some delusion, and you need to be more realistic about one another and the relationship. You can be driven by spiritual goals together, and can grow together spiritually if you have common spiritual beliefs. With Composite Mars sextile or trine Composite Neptune, you can have a strong soul connection between you and engage in your fantasies together as long as you're seeing the relationship realistically. With Composite Mars square or opposite Composite Neptune, the relationship can be draining on one of both of you, like it's sucking the life out of you at times. One of you may be quite sacrificing, which the other takes advantage of. You each need to maintain your own identity, otherwise you can lose it.

Composite Mars to Composite Pluto

With Composite Mars conjunct Composite Pluto, there can be strong energy and drive in this relationship with one another, and when you have a common goal to focus on, together, you can get through anything to achieve it. The issue is that you may struggle over power and control at times, and feel that it's very personal when you do. Try to be more balanced and equal. With Composite Mars sextile or trine Composite Pluto, you can grow in the relationship, and the extra energy can be easier to manage. With Composite Mars square or opposite Composite Pluto, the struggles over power and control between you can lead to some prolific fighting, and you can have such intense battles that are difficult to overcome. You can feel threatened by one another constantly, and that makes you stand your ground against each other. You need to stand down and not see one another and an enemy.

Composite Jupiter

In the composite chart, composite Jupiter can show where you have an easier time together, and where being together is beneficial for your lives. Jupiter is the planet of expansion and is a beneficial planet, so his placement can show where you can have more opportunities together.

Composite Jupiter in the 1st House

With Composite Jupiter in the 1st house, you can greatly enjoy this relationship/partnership, and you can feel good when you're together. You may each have more opportunities together than apart, and you can work together to expand your lives in new ways and have new experiences. You can have a more optimistic outlook together, and you can open up doors together than may not open alone.

Composite Jupiter in the 2nd House

With Composite Jupiter in the 2nd house, you can create more wealth and accumulate more resources together. This is obviously beneficial for a business relationship, and you can have more opportunities financially and more resources available to you. In a personal relationship, you can feel more stable with one another, and financial stability can help you to feel more comfortable with one another.

Composite Jupiter in the 3rd House

With Composite Jupiter in the 3rd house, you can be open and expressive with one another, enjoy talking things over with each other, and feel that you come together intellectually. This can help you to come up with great ideas, great plans, and have a positive outlook together. You can help each other to feel more at ease mentally. You can be more sociable together than you are apart, and enjoy being busy together.

Composite Jupiter in the 4th House

With Composite Jupiter in the 4th house, you can feel more comfortable with each other emotionally, and help each other to feel better when you're feeling insecure or upset. It can be easy to comfort one another, and you may understand each other better others. This can be an excellent position for a family relationship, and to build a family together as you enjoy doing so together and can build a solid foundation for your life together.

Composite Jupiter in the 5th House

With Composite Jupiter in the 5th house, you can enjoy your time spent doing the things you love, and you can have more opportunities to spend time on your hobbies together. You can express yourselves creatively with one another and it can flow more easily. With the 5th house ruling children, this can be a good position for a parent/child relationship or for having children together, something you'd enjoy doing together.

Composite Jupiter in the 6th House

With Composite Jupiter in the 6th house, this can be excellent for a work relationship, and you create more work opportunities together. In a personal relationship, you can do well with daily life together, and this is good for a partnership focused on health (like you and a personal trainer or dietician or doctor), but can also be good for a romantic relationship. Jupiter here can help mitigate some of the inequality associated with this house, and while one of you may do more, the other can show appropriate appreciation for it.

Composite Jupiter in the 7th House

With Composite Jupiter in the 7th house, this is the house of relationships, so this is one of the best placements you can have for any relationship. You can genuinely like one another, who you are in the relationship, and the relationship itself. You can treat each other as equals, and you can make compromises and keep the peace. You can find commitment easier in a personal relationship, and you can enjoy the time you spend together one-on-one.

Composite Jupiter in the 8th House

With Composite Jupiter in the 8th house, you can find it easier to deal with the serious aspects of the relationship, and deal with serious matters together. The darker side to this house can be somewhat muted with Jupiter here, and you can be less prone to struggling over power and control. You can help to transform one another and deal with deeply-held issues that you'd normally keep buried.

Composite Jupiter in the 9th House

With Composite Jupiter in the 9th house, this is the house Jupiter naturally rules, so expansion and growth can be more natural for you together, and you can find it easier to be bolder and take risks together. You can have more opportunities for travel, learning, and growth in general. You can be more optimistic together than apart, and you can find more opportunities for big ideas with one another.

Composite Jupiter in the 10th House

With Composite Jupiter in the 10th house, the relationship/partnership can bring more opportunities for success, achievement, and status for each of you, whether it's a personal or business relationship. You can feel that you hit a high point in the relationship, or that the relationship itself is one of the better ones you've had. You can find it easier to balance being practical and being optimistic about the relationship, and find it easier to be responsible.

Composite Jupiter in the 11th House

With Composite Jupiter in the 11th house, there can be a strong friendship between you, no matter what type of relationship/partnership it is. You can have a wide network that you develop together, personally or professionally, and you can have a larger impact on the world together than you can apart. You can embrace what's different about one another, and you may be more experimental together, open to trying things that are unconventional.

Composite Jupiter in the 12th House

With Composite Jupiter in the 12th house, you can find that subconscious issues and motivations, baggage and karma seem to be easier in this pairing, and they don't cause as many issues as they normally do. You can have opportunities to let go and move on from the past, and you can explore your inner worlds together. Your spirituality and intuition can strengthen together, and you can have have spiritual opportunities.

Composite Jupiter Aspects

Composite Jupiter to Composite Sun

With Composite Sun conjunct Composite Jupiter, this can bring very beneficial energy into the relationship, and you can genuinely like one another and enjoy being in this relationship. You can have more opportunities presented to you together than apart, and expand your lives in new ways together. With Composite Sun sextile or trine Composite Jupiter, you can enjoy your time together, and get along fairly easily. This aspect can bring easy energy that helps you get along. With Composite Sun square or opposite Composite Jupiter, this isn't necessarily negative since Jupiter is a happy planet, and you can still get along well and enjoy one another's company. You just may be lazier together, or irresponsible at times, so you need to be more considerate.

Composite Jupiter to Composite Moon

With Composite Moon conjunct Composite Jupiter, you can enjoy being with one another and genuinely like each other. You can feel better emotionally with one another and by being in this relationship/partnership, and you can feel happier and more joyful. With Composite Moon sextile or trine Composite Jupiter, you can get along more easily, have new experiences together, and encourage one another in life. With Composite Moon square or opposite Composite Jupiter, you can still get along well and enjoy one another's company, but you can be lazy together and need to keep yourselves busy.

Composite Jupiter to Composite Mercury

With Composite Mercury conjunct Composite Jupiter, you can have a lot of ideas with one another, and you may seem more optimistic and big-thinking in this relationship. You may enjoy talking with one another in a way that you don't with anyone else, and you can open up one another's minds to different ways of thinking and viewing the world. With Composite Mercury sextile or trine Composite Jupiter, you can find it easy to get along with one another, and your conversations can be easy to have. With Composite Mercury square or opposite Composite Jupiter, you can still find it easier to get along, but you may be mentally lazy with one another or in the relationship, and look at things a little too positively.

Composite Jupiter to Composite Venus

With Composite Venus conjunct Composite Jupiter, the loving feelings between you can be strong, and you can greatly enjoy one another's company. In a personal relationship, you can almost be one another's good luck charm, and in a professional relationship, you can have many opportunities for success together. With Composite Venus sextile or trine Composite Jupiter, you can get along more easily, enjoy being with one another, and are more optimistic together. With Composite Venus square or opposite Composite Jupiter, you can still get along fairly well, but you may be lazy in the relationship, and if problems arise, you may feel that you don't need to deal with them, so you have to force yourselves to take action when required.

Composite Jupiter to Composite Mars

With Composite Mars conjunct Composite Jupiter, there can be an abundance of energy between you and in the relationship. You can feel more driven together and more energized to do things. In a personal relationship, you can push one another and get further together. In a professional relationship, you can work well together and find opportunities for success that you wouldn't find alone. With Composite Mars sextile or trine Composite Jupiter, you can help one another to achieve your goals and have the experiences that you want to have in life. With Composite Mars square or opposite Composite Jupiter, you can still have good energy between you for what you want, but you need to make sure you're on the same page, going in the same direction, and focused on a common goal.

Composite Jupiter to Composite Saturn

With Composite Jupiter conjunct Composite Saturn, balance is required in order for this relationship to work. You must strike a balance between expansion and limitation, optimistic and pessimism, recklessness and cautiousness. If you can find the middle ground, this can be a strong relationship that works and lasts. With Composite Jupiter sextile or trine Composite Saturn, finding that balance can be easier between you, and you try to strike the right notes in the relationship. With Composite Jupiter square or opposite Composite Saturn, striking that balance can be much more difficult, and you can be too expansive and reckless or too cautious and restricted.

Composite Jupiter to Composite Uranus

With Composite Jupiter conjunct Composite Uranus, there can be a lot of space in the relationship for each of you to do your own thing and be true to who you are as individuals, but it may be too much space if you're not careful. You can easily float away from one another, so try to maintain a connection. This can be a beneficial aspect for you both, and you can have more success together. With Composite Jupiter sextile or trine Composite Uranus, you can be who you are and not have to wear a mask, have the freedom you desire without avoiding the other person, and feel at ease with new experiences together. With Composite Jupiter square or opposite Composite Uranus, the desire for space can keep the two of you from ever staying together. There can also be an abundance of erratic energy that makes the relationship too unstable.

Composite Jupiter to Composite Neptune

With Composite Jupiter conjunct Composite Neptune, there can be a strong spiritual connection between you, and you can look at one another or the relationship as your ideal, but you need to be realistic about it, otherwise this can be a deceiving relationship. With Composite Jupiter sextile or trine Composite Neptune, you can be compassionate and understanding with one another, and you can feel that you protect each other or are protected in the relationship. With Composite Jupiter square or opposite Composite Neptune, you can be way too unrealistic about each other and the relationship. You can see what's not there, feel what isn't real, and misinterpret situations. You need to work hard to see reality.

Composite Jupiter to Composite Pluto

With Composite Jupiter conjunct Composite Pluto, you can feel stronger together than apart, more powerful, and seem like you can conquer anything together. This can be a powerful aspect to have, but it can also lead to an abundance of power struggles and control issues if you're not careful. With Composite Jupiter sextile or trine Composite Pluto, you can transform in the relationship, understand each other and yourselves better, and find more opportunities for change and growth. With Composite Jupiter square or opposite Composite Pluto, there can be too much fighting between you, too much struggling over power and control, and you can get stuck in the dark side of the relationship. There can be an abundance of dark energy in the relationship if you don't let the light in.

Composite Saturn

Saturn can be a difficult planet, ruling restrictions and limitations and where we need to be responsible, so his placement in the composite chart can show areas of difficulty in the relationship.

Composite Saturn in the 1st House

With Composite Saturn in the 1st house, this can be a relationship that feels very limiting and restricting for the both of you. You may feel you have more responsibilities within the relationship, and it can be overwhelming. You have to be completely and totally mature and responsible in this relationship in order of it to work, otherwise you can have too many difficulties. If you can do that, this can be a relationship that endures.

Composite Saturn in the 2nd House

With Composite Saturn in the 2nd house, you can feel you have more limited resources and wealth in this relationship for some reason. In a personal relationship, you may struggle to handle finances properly together, and you need to be more fiscally responsible. In a business relationship, this can go either way, and it can make it more difficult for you to be financially successful together, but it can also make you work harder and create more wealth for you down the road together.

Composite Saturn in the 3rd House

With Composite Saturn in the 3rd house, communication can be difficult, and you may not feel like you can be completely open with one another or have difficulty understanding each other. You have to focus on opening the lines of communication, and allowing one another to express yourself fully. Continually working on improving your communication may be required, and without it, you just can't see eye-to-eye.

Composite Saturn in the 4th House

With Composite Saturn in the 4th house, this can be difficult in a personal relationship where you live together, or in a family relationship since this house rules the home and family. You can find it difficult to create the kind of life together that you envision, and may have different ideas of what that means. You need to be on the same page if building a life together. If a family relationship, you need to work on not being judgmental of one another.

Composite Saturn in the 5th House

With Composite Saturn in the 5th house, you can have a hard time expressing the love you may feel for one another, if this is a personal relationship. In a business relationship, you can take things more seriously together but may lack creativity. This can be a difficult position for a parent-child relationship since this house rules children; the parent may be distant, or the child rebellious until they get older. If this pairing is trying to have children together, there can be delays and difficulties.

Composite Saturn in the 6th House

With Composite Saturn in the 6th house, you each may feel that there is a tremendous amount of work that has to be done on a daily basis for the relationship. You may nitpick the partnership to death, making it difficult to survive, so you have to avoid that. In a professional relationship, this house does rule work, so you can find it more difficult to work together or find that you have greater focus and discipline together.

Composite Saturn in the 7th House

With Composite Saturn in the 7th house, this is the house of relationships and so it can go either way. Saturn can help to strengthen your relationship placed here, and help the relationship endure. But he can also make it more difficult for you to treat each other with respect, create disharmony, and make you feel unbalanced together if you're not focused on the same things and both taking an equal share of the responsibilities in the relationship.

Composite Saturn in the 8th House

With Composite Saturn in the 8th house, you may struggle over control of the relationship and over one another. You may not say anything though, which can lead to resentments, and you each may bottle up any bad feelings you have until you explode. You have to make a conscious effort to understand one another deeply, and to transform yourselves and the relationship together to help you grow.

Composite Saturn in the 9th House

With Composite Saturn in the 9th house, you may find that you're not as optimistic together or about the relationship, and you try to be more realistic. This may make you feel less joy in the relationship though, and you can feel quite restricted and limited, unable to expand your lives together or have enough space within the relationship to do your own thing. You need to find a balance between optimism and realism, expansion and limitation.

Composite Saturn in the 10th House

With Composite Saturn in the 10th house, this is the house Saturn naturally rules, so it can be a little easier than the other placements. You do have to work on pure Saturn energy together though, and make sure you're being responsible, disciplined, and ambitious together. You can help one another reach a common goal, and you can see the direction you're going in together if you stay on the same path.

Composite Saturn in the 11th House

With Composite Saturn in the 11th house, you may feel that this relationship doesn't allow you to be your quirky self as much, give you much independence, or help you to achieve your dreams. You may feel you need to be more realistic about your dreams because of this pairing. You may also feel that you have less friends or spend less time around other people, and have to make an effort to not cut yourself off from others.

Composite Saturn in the 12th House

With Composite Saturn in the 12th house, the old issues and baggage that each of you has can be a bigger issue in this relationship. You may feel that it overwhelms you together, or you don't want to deal with it at all. If you can work together, you can help each other to move on from past issues, but you have to avoid leading to your own undoing, which may seem like more of a possibility with this person.

Composite Saturn Aspects

Composite Saturn to Composite Sun

With Composite Sun conjunct Composite Saturn, this is a relationship that can feel limiting and restricting, that comes with more responsibilities and duties, but this aspect can also work to keep you together and strongly committed to one another. This may be a bad thing if you're not good for one another, but it can be a good thing if you are good for one another so you stay together through the rough patches. With Composite Sun sextile or trine Composite Saturn, you can be more mature and responsible in the relationship, and this can be a very stable relationship. The conjunction, sextile or trine can all be beneficial for business relationships. With Composite Sun square or opposite Composite Saturn, you each may find that the relationship is too limiting and restricting, suffocating you. The responsibilities may overwhelm you, or you're each too afraid to take steps necessary. These aspects can lead to a lot of conflict, so you have to manage the weight of the relationship.

Composite Saturn to Composite Moon

With Composite Moon conjunct Composite Saturn, this relationship may feel constricting and limiting emotionally. One or both of you may feel that you can't express what you feel for one reason or another. One or both of you may feel you have too much responsibility in this relationship, which can overwhelm emotionally. This aspect can help you to maintain stability and commitment, but you have to allow one another to freely feel. With Composite Moon sextile or trine Composite Saturn, this can be a stable relationship emotionally, and you each may be more practical and responsible. With Composite Moon square or opposite Composite Saturn, it can be difficult for you to be on the same page emotionally. One or both of you may be distant and cut off emotionally. The conjunction, square, and opposition can be especially difficult when this is a family relationship, especially with an elder/child relationship.

Composite Saturn to Composite Mercury

With Composite Mercury conjunct Composite Saturn, communication may be difficult in this relationship. One or both of you may feel that you can't open up completely, and this inhibits free communication. You have to work on opening up about your thoughts and ideas in a way that's responsible, mature, and disciplined. With Composite Mercury sextile or trine Composite Saturn, communication between you can be calm, measured, and focused on what's important without any of the filler. With Composite Mercury square or opposite Composite Saturn, communication can be extremely limited or completely cut off, and you don't know how to talk to one another. You may feel judged by the other person, and hold yourself back from speaking. More openness is required.

Composite Saturn to Composite Venus

With Composite Venus conjunct Composite Saturn, you can stick together and feel quite committed to one another, but the ability to express your feelings and show affection may be limited in a personal relationship. You have to work on allowing one another to be more expressive with your feelings. This can be a better position in a professional relationship, and you can work hard together toward a common goal. With Composite Venus sextile or trine Composite Saturn, this can ring stability to the relationship, and you each can be more mature, responsible, and measured. With Composite Venus square or opposite Composite Saturn, the relationship can feel very constricting and limit each of you in some way. You may feel a distance between you, and outward expressions of love can be nonexistent if you don't put a conscious effort in.

Composite Saturn to Composite Mars

With Composite Mars conjunct Composite Saturn, the relationship may be lacking energy, or you can feel you lack energy and drive with one another. This can lead to frustrations, but you may try to hold it in and that only leads to bursting later. You need to be more disciplined and in control of yourselves with one another and within the relationship. With Composite Mars sextile or trine Composite Saturn, you can be cautious in your approach, make more plans, and take more time to do things, wanting to be sure of yourselves together and when working on the relationship. This can be stabilizing energy, but you still need to allow one another to be open. With Composite Mars square or opposite Composite Saturn, you may feel like you just can't work together whatsoever, personally or professionally. You may each want different things, and you have difficulty getting on the same page or agreeing on the direction to go in. If you don't have that, it's difficult to get along.

Composite Saturn to Composite Jupiter

With Composite Jupiter conjunct Composite Saturn, balance is required in order for this relationship to work. You must strike a balance between expansion and limitation, optimistic and pessimism, recklessness and cautiousness. If you can find the middle ground, this can be a strong relationship that works and lasts. With Composite Jupiter sextile or trine Composite Saturn, finding that balance can be easier between you, and you try to strike the right notes in the relationship. With Composite Jupiter square or opposite Composite Saturn, striking that balance can be much more difficult, and you can be too expansive and reckless or too cautious and restricted.

Composite Saturn to Composite Uranus

With Composite Saturn conjunct Composite Uranus, it can be difficult for you to balance stability and change together, and you can find the relationship to be too stable and boring or too erratic and unpredictable. This can lead to a lot of fighting if you don't try to use both energies. With Composite Saturn sextile or trine Composite Uranus, you can balance them more easily, and this can help you to stay together through whatever comes, making changes when required and being cautious when required. With Composite Saturn square or opposite Uranus, this can lead to too much instability in the relationship, or make it so that things never change at all. You can get stuck one way or the other, and need to find that balance.

Composite Saturn to Composite Neptune

With Composite Saturn conjunct Composite Neptune, you need to combine practical energy with whimsy, the tangible and the spiritual, the real with the imagined, and this can be difficult to do. In the best of cases, you can help one another to make your fantasies reality. With Composite Saturn sextile or trine Composite Neptune, you can find it easier to balance the two opposing energies. With Composite Saturn square or opposite Composite Neptune, it's more difficult to balance the two, and you can be overly unrealistic or overly fearful, too cautious and constantly worried about one another or in the relationship. You have to not go to extremes.

Composite Saturn to Composite Pluto

With Composite Saturn conjunct Composite Pluto, this can show that you have to go through a trial in order to stay together, or that you're constantly battling against the messes of life and it tests you together. It can help you to become more bonded, or it can drive you apart. If you become more bonded, it can be a hard bond to break, which may be a bad thing if the relationship isn't healthy. With Composite Saturn sextile or trine Composite Pluto, you can stick together through difficult times, support one another, and transform through what you go through together. With Composite Saturn square or opposite Composite Pluto, it can be difficult for you to stay together when the going gets tough, and you may not feel much of a bond to one another.

Composite Uranus

Uranus is the planet of change and the unexpected, and in the composite chart, he can show where you need to have constant change in the relationship, where things may not go quite the way you expect or are outright unstable, and where you need to be more flexible.

Composite Uranus in the 1st House

With Composite Uranus in the 1st house, this can be a relationship that requires you to be on your heels constantly. You can experience a lot of changes and instability in the relationship and with the other person involved. If you can adapt and enjoy the change, you can get through it, but if you want stability, this may not be the relationship you get that from. You also need to allow one another to fully express yourselves. You may seem different in this relationship than in others.

Composite Uranus in the 2nd House

With Composite Uranus in the 2nd house, there can be some instability when it comes to your finances and resources together. In a personal relationship, you need to make sure you're saving and being responsible, otherwise you may find you're not in a good position all of the time. In a business relationship, this can be an excellent position for a business partnership that makes money in bursts, by commission, or in a sporadic way, as well as one focused on technology or the internet.

Composite Uranus in the 3rd House

With Composite Uranus in the 3rd house, you can find that communication between you is different than how it is with others. This can be a good thing if you're on the same page, or a bad thing if you're not. You may need to communicate in a way with one another that you don't have to with anyone else. This is a good position for learning together, especially focusing on subjects that are unconventional or futuristic.

Composite Uranus in the 4th House

With Composite Uranus in the 4th house, this can bring some instability in the home if you live together, and you may find you move more than most people, are constantly redecorating, remodeling, or renovating, or that you prefer to live under different circumstances than most (like in a tiny house or communal living). If this is a family relationship, you may have ups and downs until you allow one another to be yourselves.

Composite Uranus in the 5th House

With Composite Uranus in the 5th house, this can make a love relationship more exciting, but in a romantic relationship, it can come and go quickly. In a personal relationship, you need to have fun together doing things that are unconventional. This can be a good placement for a friendship that gives you each space. This house rules children, so a parent-child relationship may see one of you being extra rebellious, especially if you feel you can't be yourselves.

Composite Uranus in the 6th House

With Composite Uranus in the 6th house, daily life can seem unstable in this pairing, and you need to avoid a normal schedule or routine and change things up constantly. This house rules work, so it can be good for a work relationship that allows you to largely work on your own, that focuses on technology or the internet, or that is forward-thinking. You may have bursts of unexpected stresses in this partnership.

Composite Uranus in the 7th House

With Composite Uranus in the 7th house, this is the house ruling relationships, so this can bring instability into the relationship itself, and you may view one another as erratic. You may need to have this relationship be unconventional in some way, like a long-distance relationship or open relationship, in order for it to survive romantically. Even a professional relationship may need some sort of unconventional setup to work.

Composite Uranus in the 8th House

With Composite Uranus in the 8th house, you can experience sudden, unexpected transformations in this relationship, and find that you grow in different ways than you would've thought. In a sexual relationship, you can be more experimental with one another. In a business relationship, you may need to have an unusual way of working together. In a personal relationship, you need to avoid sudden bouts of rage.

Composite Uranus in the 9th House

With Composite Uranus in the 9th house, you can expand and explore together in ways that you wouldn't normally alone or with others. You can be more open to individuality and eccentricities. The issue with this placement is that you may have a hard time sticking together as you give each other a little too much space. Travel together, learn together, laugh together, and be positive together.

Composite Uranus in the 10th House

With Composite Uranus in the 10th house, this can present a challenge since the 10th house rules stability and Uranus rules instability. Striking a balance is key with this position, and you need to be unconventionally stable and traditionally changeable (if that makes sense!). This house rules career, so in a business relationship, you may experience ups and downs together. This can be a good placement for working in technology or the internet together, or inventing and paving a different path together.

Composite Uranus in the 11th House

With Composite Uranus in the 11th house, this is the house Uranus naturally rules, so change can be something that feels more naturally-occurring in this relationship. You can find sudden insights together, make sudden progress with your dreams together, expand your networks together, and make a difference together. You can allow each other to be yourselves, and think more about your future.

Composite Uranus in the 12th House

With Composite Uranus in the 12th house, issues from the past can suddenly and unexpectedly become problems within the relationship. You can have sudden insights into subconscious issues, but you can also suddenly undo the relationship because of them. Try taking an unconventional approach to the relationship issues that come about. Sudden and unexpected endings may be normal in this partnership.

Composite Uranus Aspects

Composite Uranus to Composite Sun

With Composite Sun conjunct Composite Uranus, this is a relationship that likely never has a dull moment, and change is constant. You can't resist the force of change that this relationship brings, otherwise you can feel out of control. You may seem like an unconventional pairing, or the relationship itself may be unconventional in some way. With Composite Sun sextile or trine Composite Uranus, you can be more open and honest with one another. You can feel like you don't judge one another as much, and this allows you to be true to yourselves and be an individual in the relationship so you don't get lost in it. With Composite Sun square or opposite Composite Uranus, this can be an unsettling relationship, chaotic at times, and it may not be very healthy for either of you. These aspects require something to ground the two of you together, otherwise you can be left perpetually spinning.

Composite Uranus to Composite Moon

With Composite Moon conjunct Composite Uranus, this can be an unstable relationship emotionally. You can each change with the wind, and it can be difficult for you to keep up with each other. It can be an exciting relationship, but you have to be able to quickly adapt to the erratic nature of it to survive. With Composite Moon sextile or trine Composite Uranus, this can be a relationship that allows each of you to be yourselves and to express yourselves emotionally in whatever way you need to. With Composite Moon square or trine Composite Uranus, you can have a great deal of challenges with the erratic emotions in this relationship. Things can be too unstable to handle, and you may have a hard time connecting emotionally, with one or both of you being quite cold. Some warmth and stability is required.

Composite Uranus to Composite Mercury

With Composite Mercury conjunct Composite Uranus, this can be a relationship that opens your mind and challenges your thoughts and opinions, which can be quite positive. On the negative side, communication between you can be erratic at times, and you need more stability. With Composite Mercury sextile or trine Composite Uranus, you can each be open to the different ideas that you come up with together, and you can think outside of the box together. With Composite Mercury square or opposite Composite Uranus, your ideas may pit you against one another, and when you don't agree, you can push back against each other hard. You may find it difficult to get on the same page.

Composite Uranus to Composite Venus

With Composite Venus conjunct Composite Uranus, the relationship can be thrilling at times but unstable. In a romantic relationship, you can come together very fast but the relationship can fall apart just as fast without something to ground and stabilize it. A personal relationship may be erratic, and a professional one may be full of ups and downs, so all relationships require grounding. With Composite Venus sextile or trine Composite Uranus, you can find the relationship and one another to be very interesting, and you each can feel you can show your affections openly. You may show your feelings in new, different ways. With Composite Venus square or opposite Composite Uranus, the relationship can be highly erratic and unstable. It can be uncomfortable to one or both of you, and while there can be a strong attraction in a romantic relationship, the energy is so erratic that it's hard to pin down.

Composite Uranus to Composite Mars

With Composite Mars conjunct Composite Uranus, this relationship can be quite unexpected, which can be exciting but also unstable. You can each stick to your own beliefs and ideas strongly, and may push back against one another if you don't agree in a rebellious way, so you need to be more open. With Composite Mars sextile or trine Composite Uranus, there can be a lot of changes in the relationship and of yourself, and it can be in a healthy way. With Composite Mars square or opposite Composite Uranus, the erratic energy between you can be too much to handle, and stability is desperately needed. You may feel like you're constantly fighting, and find it exhausting.

Composite Uranus to Composite Jupiter

With Composite Jupiter conjunct Composite Uranus, there can be a lot of space in the relationship for each of you to do your own thing and be true to who you are as individuals, but it may be too much space if you're not careful. You can easily float away from one another, so try to maintain a connection. This can be a beneficial aspect for you both, and you can have more success together. With Composite Jupiter sextile or trine Composite Uranus, you can be who you are and not have to wear a mask, have the freedom you desire without avoiding the other person, and feel at ease with new experiences together. With Composite Jupiter square or opposite Composite Uranus, the desire for space can keep the two of you from ever staying together. There can also be an abundance of erratic energy that makes the relationship too unstable.

Composite Uranus to Composite Saturn

With Composite Saturn conjunct Composite Uranus, it can be difficult for you to balance stability and change together, and you can find the relationship to be too stable and boring or too erratic and unpredictable. This can lead to a lot of fighting if you don't try to use both energies. With Composite Saturn sextile or trine Composite Uranus, you can balance them more easily, and this can help you to stay together through whatever comes, making changes when required and being cautious when required. With Composite Saturn square or opposite Uranus, this can lead to too much instability in the relationship, or make it so that things never change at all. You can get stuck one way or the other, and need to find that balance.

Uranus, Neptune, and Pluto are slow-moving generational planets, and so their aspects to one another usually aren't as important unless there is a major age difference.

Composite Neptune

In the composite chart, Neptune can show areas where you'll have a hard time being realistic together and in the relationship, and where you can have difficulties figuring out solutions to issues.

Composite Neptune in the 1st House

With Composite Neptune in the 1st house, there can be great difficulties with seeing one another as you truly are and not as you want each other to be. There can also be a great deal of fogginess in the relationship, and you can struggle to be realistic. You may feel that there is a soul connection between you, but that may just be a feeling and not reality. You need to be understanding of one another and try to be more realistic.

Composite Neptune in the 2nd House

With Composite Neptune in the 2nd house, you can have difficulties dealing with finances and your resources together. In a personal relationship, you may find you have trouble holding on to your resources while together. In a business relationship, neither of you may be very good with money, which can tempt you to get outside help, but you have to be careful you aren't deceived. It can be good if you work together in a spiritual or artistic business.

Composite Neptune in the 3rd House

With Composite Neptune in the 3rd house, you can struggle to understand one another intellectually, and you seem to be in a fog when you try to communicate with one another. You may imagine you're each saying things that you aren't saying. You have to work hard to see the logic in the relationship. You can develop an unspoken understanding between the two of you, but you need to be gentle with your words with one another.

Composite Neptune in the 4th House

With Composite Neptune in the 4th house, it can be difficult for you to create a life together, if this is a romantic relationship. You may be unsure of how you want to lay the groundwork together. In a family relationship, one of you may be more distant, and it can be hard to come together. Emotions can be important in this relationship, and you need to develop emotional understanding and compassion.

Composite Neptune in the 5th House

With Composite Neptune in the 5th house, this can make you feel you have a soul connection in a personal relationship, and especially in a romantic relationship. You can be more creative and inspired with one another, and can enjoy spending time being artistic, helping others, or using your imagination. In a parent-child relationship, one of you may be more distant, and you have a hard time connecting.

Composite Neptune in the 6th House

With Composite Neptune in the 6th house, daily life may be difficult to grasp with the two of you. You can miss appointments and mess up your schedules with one another, which can bring difficulties in personal and professional relationships. In a business relationship, you need to make sure you're not deceiving one another or being deceived by someone else. This can be a good position if you both work in the arts or a spiritual practice.

Composite Neptune in the 7th House

With Composite Neptune in the 7th house, you may not see the relationship as it is actually is. You can see it how you want to see it, and you have to work on being more realistic. It may be difficult for you to grasp balance together, but you can work hard to get along well and treat each other with respect. You may not be aware when the other person is having an issue though, so you need to be more open.

Composite Neptune in the 8th House

With Composite Neptune in the 8th house, it may be difficult for each of you to see when things need to change in the relationship until it's too far gone, or you may see what needs to be changed but be unable to figure out how to do that. Deception can be an issue with this position, so you have to make sure you're seeing things as they are. There may be difficulties with sharing your resources with Neptune here.

Composite Neptune in the 9th House

With Composite Neptune in the 9th house, you can give each other a lot of freedom to roam, but it may be too much freedom, and you slowly float away from one another and can barely feel it. You have to work to make sure you don't drift apart. Expanding your lives together may be difficult to do. Differing beliefs can be something that causes you to drift apart, or it can be something that makes you more understanding of one another.

Composite Neptune in the 10th House

With Composite Neptune in the 10th house, you may have difficulty building a foundation and striving toward common goals together. In a personal relationship, you may see the relationship as an ideal, but it may not be reality. In a business relationship, you need to find a way to work together in an unconscious way, not let yourselves be deceived or to deceive one another, and can focus on spiritual or artistic work.

Composite Neptune in the 11th House

With Composite Neptune in the 11th house, you may have a hard time focusing on your dreams together, a fog in the way and obstructing your view. You can be overly idealistic with one another, and you can view the relationship with rose-colored glasses if you're not careful. This position can be excellent for a partnership that focuses on helping others and being compassionate and charitable.

Composite Neptune in the 12th House

With Composite Neptune in the 12th house, this is the house naturally ruled by Neptune, so Neptune can be somewhat easier here. You can be more compassionate and understanding with one another, and share the hidden together, but you can also have a hard time letting go or moving on from the past together. Come together spiritually and be gentle and giving with one another.

Composite Neptune Aspects

Composite Neptune to Composite Sun

With Composite Sun conjunct Composite Neptune, you can be very compassionate, understanding, and feel you have a soul connection with one another, or you can give in to illusion and delusion and not see the reality of the relationship. You need to make sure you're being realistic about one another and not wearing rose-colored glasses. With Composite Sun sextile or trine Composite Neptune, this can increase your understanding of one another subconsciously, and help you to view one another favorably. With Composite Sun square or opposite Composite Neptune, you can have a hard time sifting through the fog that hangs over the relationship and see one another realistically. There can even be outright lies and secrets, or one of you may make too many sacrifices to "save" the other. You need a dose of healthy realism, and to not get lost in one another.

Composite Neptune to Composite Moon

With Composite Moon conjunct Composite Neptune, the connection between you can have a strong spiritual component, and you may feel like this is a soul connection. There can be an element of subconscious understanding of one another emotionally, but you need to watch for illusions and delusions, especially with what you interpret one another to be feeling. With Composite Moon sextile or trine Composite Neptune, you can be understanding, compassionate, and have a subtle emotional connection that allows you to be on a similar wavelength. With Composite Moon square or opposite Composite Neptune, being delusional about one another or the relationship can be a challenge, and you can be unrealistic and easily deceived by one another emotionally. You need to be more realistic and see what's really there.

Composite Neptune to Composite Mercury

With Composite Mercury conjunct Composite Neptune, you can be very sensitive to one another and have a subconscious understanding of what the other person is thinking, but you can also be delusional about the relationship and believe you're hearing from one another what you want, not what is actually being said. Try not to read into situations too much. With Composite Mercury sextile or trine Composite Neptune, compassion can be increased, and you can find ways to communicate with one another beyond words. With Composite Mercury square or opposite Composite Neptune, clear communication can be difficult in this relationship. You may have a hard time understanding one another, and may even purposefully deceive one another, and need to be forthright.

Composite Neptune to Composite Venus

With Composite Venus conjunct Composite Neptune, you can be very sweet to one another and have a perfect view of the relationship, but have difficulties seeing the reality of it. You can feel a strong soul attraction to one another, but it can also be a mask for deception. With Composite Venus sextile or trine Composite Neptune, you can find one another charming and passionate, and you can be more sensitive with one another. With Composite Venus square or opposite Composite Neptune, there can be a certain degree of deception going on, and it may not even be on purpose. You may not be realistic with one another, and see what you want to see instead of what's really there. Reality needs to set in.

Composite Neptune to Composite Mars

With Composite Mars conjunct Composite Neptune, you can be very compassionate and understanding of one another, but there can also be some delusion, and you need to be more realistic about one another and the relationship. You can be driven by spiritual goals together, and can grow together spiritually if you have common spiritual beliefs. With Composite Mars sextile or trine Composite Neptune, you can have a strong soul connection between you and engage in your fantasies together as long as you're seeing the relationship realistically. With Composite Mars square or opposite Composite Neptune, the relationship can be draining on one of both of you, like it's sucking the life out of you at times. One of you may be quite sacrificing, which the other takes advantage of. You each need to maintain your own identity, otherwise you can lose it.

Composite Neptune to Composite Jupiter

With Composite Jupiter conjunct Composite Neptune, there can be a strong spiritual connection between you, and you can look at one another or the relationship as your ideal, but you need to be realistic about it, otherwise this can be a deceiving relationship. With Composite Jupiter sextile or trine Composite Neptune, you can be compassionate and understanding with one another, and you can feel that you protect each other or are protected in the relationship. With Composite Jupiter square or opposite Composite Neptune, you can be way too unrealistic about each other and the relationship. You can see what's not there, feel what isn't real, and misinterpret situations. You need to work hard to see reality.

Composite Neptune to Composite Saturn

With Composite Saturn conjunct Composite Neptune, you need to combine practical energy with whimsy, the tangible and the spiritual, the real with the imagined, and this can be difficult to do. In the best of cases, you can help one another to make your fantasies reality. With Composite Saturn sextile or trine Composite Neptune, you can find it easier to balance the two opposing energies. With Composite Saturn square or opposite Composite Neptune, it's more difficult to balance the two, and you can be overly unrealistic or overly fearful, too cautious and constantly worried about one another or in the relationship. You have to not go to extremes.

Uranus, Neptune, and Pluto are slow-moving generational planets, and so their aspects to one another usually aren't as important unless there is a major age difference.

Composite Pluto

In the composite chart, Pluto can show where you may struggle over power and control, have some anger issues in the relationship, and where you may need to make major transformations together.

Composite Pluto in the 1st House

With Composite Pluto in the 1st house, this may be a relationship where you're constantly struggling over power and control. You have to show one another the respect to not try to dominate one another, but this can be difficult. This relationship can also serve to deeply transform you, and you can touch on issues that are deep inside of you and you'd normally avoid. The darker sides to each of you may come out together.

Composite Pluto in the 2nd House

With Composite Pluto in the 2nd house, you may struggle over power and control of your finances or resources. In a professional relationship, you can work through the difficulties and help one another to create even bigger wealth than you'd create alone, but you have to work on not controlling one another. In a personal relationship, selfishness may be a struggle, and you need to be more considerate.

Composite Pluto in the 3rd House

With Composite Pluto in the 3rd house, you may struggle over power and control in your communications, and one of you may constantly try to dominate the conversations you have and what you focus on. You need to make sure you're hearing one another. You can make major mental transformations together, and have a different view of the world, but you can also be more pessimistic together.

Composite Pluto in the 4th House

With Composite Pluto in the 4th house, you may struggle over power and control of the foundation of the relationship, and emotions can run high between you. You can get into epic battles at times, and need to be more considerate of what each other is feeling. In a family relationship, you may have great difficulties, and one of you can be more controlling. You have the ability to create deep change in one another with this placement.

Composite Pluto in the 5th House

With Composite Pluto in the 5th house, love can be passionate and passion can be all-consuming. There can be obsession, jealousy, and clinginess in a personal relationship, especially a romantic one, and you need to allow each other to have some space, otherwise you suffocate. You can have strong creative energy between you. In a parent-child relationship, one of you may try to dominate the other, and you can change one another.

Composite Pluto in the 6th House

With Composite Pluto in the 6th house, you may struggle over power and control in your daily life together. You can fight over the little things, and you may not fight a lot, but you bottle it up until it explodes out and you have complete resentment of one another. Avoid that by being more open. In a professional relationship, one of you may have all of the power, and this can cause many problems.

Composite Pluto in the 7th House

With Composite Pluto in the 7th house, you may struggle over power and control of the relationship. You may each want to force your own ideas of how the relationship should be on the other, and you need to be more open and respectful. The relationship can serve to transform each of you, but you have to remember to treat each other with respect and equality, otherwise you just have drama.

Composite Pluto in the 8th House

With Composite Pluto in the 8th house, this is the house naturally ruled by Pluto, so Pluto can be easier here. You can focus on what needs to be transformed together, how to share, and how to manage power. Deeply-held issues can run deeper, rage can be fiery, and passion can be intense with this placement though, and you can connect in a powerfully profound way.

Composite Pluto in the 9th House

With Composite Pluto in the 9th house, you may struggle over power and control of your beliefs together. If you don't have the same beliefs, you may constantly be trying to force your beliefs on one another, but that won't work. You need to work on balancing optimism and pessimism in this pairing, and giving one another space because there may be a tendency to try to suffocate.

Composite Pluto in the 10th House

With Composite Pluto in the 10th house, you may struggle over power and control of the way you're perceived together, of the direction you're going in together, and of your common goals. In a personal relationship, you need to allow one another to pursue your own goals without interference. In a business relationship, one of you may try to take control, but you need to be respectful.

Composite Pluto in the 11th House

With Composite Pluto in the 11th house, you may struggle over power and control of your dreams together. You can dream big together, and feel you can do far more together than you can apart, making a big contribution to the world, as long as you allow one another to be yourselves. You can have more a more powerful network together, and transform the dreams you have for your future together.

Composite Pluto in the 12th House

With Composite Pluto in the 12th house, you may struggle over power and control in ways that aren't obvious. It can be in a subconscious way, and you subconsciously want to have all of the power and control. This position can show one person makes all of the sacrifices and the other person takes everything selfishly, so you need to make sure you're both giving and taking equally. You can transform in profound ways together if you can steer clear of secrets, lies, and cruelty.

Composite Pluto Aspects

Composite Pluto to Composite Sun

With Composite Sun conjunct Composite Pluto, this is a relationship that can change each of you or your lives in big ways. The connection between you can be strong, powerful, intense, consuming at times, so you have to avoid getting sucked into the relationship and forsaking everything else. You also need to watch for struggling over power and control. With Composite Sun sextile or trine Composite Pluto, the relationship can be powerful without consuming you, and it can help you change and grow as a person. With Composite Sun square or opposite Composite Pluto, the struggle over power and control can be constant. You may have too much strife, play too many games, manipulate one another, or bring out the darkest parts of one another. A complete and total transformation may be required to have any chance of survival.

Composite Pluto to Composite Moon

With Composite Moon conjunct Composite Pluto, the emotions between you can be intense, which can make for a strong connection but also one that is challenging. The intensity can make loving feelings more powerful and difficult feelings more blood-boiling, so some moderation is required to keep you from going to emotional extremes. With Composite Moon sextile or trine Composite Pluto, you can help one another to explore your emotional depths, and feel a strong emotional connection between you, but not one that's overwhelmingly so. With Composite Moon square or opposite Composite Pluto, the intensity of emotions can be off the charts, and it can be extremely difficult to get them under control. One or both of you may be manipulating, controlling, and you can bring out the darkest emotions in one another. It's required for each of you to not go to those dark places or get sucked into negative emotions with one another. Find some light.

Composite Pluto to Composite Mercury

With Composite Mercury conjunct Composite Pluto, this can be a relationship that challenges you to grow and evolve mentally, but it can also be one full of power struggles in your communications and over ideas. One of you may dominate the other in conversations, and equal communication is required. With Composite Mercury sextile or trine Composite Pluto, you can have great understanding between you, and you can learn a lot about yourselves in this relationship. With Composite Mercury square or opposite Composite Pluto, you can get into it over your thoughts and opinions, and need to allow one another to have differing opinions, otherwise you don't ever allow one another to have room mentally in the relationship.

Composite Pluto to Composite Venus

With Composite Venus conjunct Composite Pluto, you can feel a strong link between the two of you, like you're two magnets that are connected. The relationship can help you to transform and evolve, or it can consume you and become an obsession (even both sometimes). You need to not cling to one another. With Composite Venus sextile or trine Composite Pluto, the relationship can be serious and intense, but not overly so, and you can help one another to grow. With Composite Venus square or opposite Composite Pluto, the struggles over power and control within the relationship and of the relationship and one another can be difficult to control. You may manipulate one another, have secrets, tell lies, and you need to avoid giving in to your dark sides with one another. Don't go to that lowest place.

Composite Pluto to Composite Mars

With Composite Mars conjunct Composite Pluto, there can be strong energy and drive in this relationship with one another, and when you have a common goal to focus on, together, you can get through anything to achieve it. The issue is that you may struggle over power and control at times, and feel that it's very personal when you do. Try to be more balanced and equal. With Composite Mars sextile or trine Composite Pluto, you can grow in the relationship, and the extra energy can be easier to manage. With Composite Mars square or opposite Composite Pluto, the struggles over power and control between you can lead to some prolific fighting, and you can have such intense battles that are difficult to overcome. You can feel threatened by one another constantly, and that makes you stand your ground against each other. You need to stand down and not see one another and an enemy.

Composite Pluto to Composite Jupiter

With Composite Jupiter conjunct Composite Pluto, you can feel stronger together than apart, more powerful, and seem like you can conquer anything together. This can be a powerful aspect to have, but it can also lead to an abundance of power struggles and control issues if you're not careful. With Composite Jupiter sextile or trine Composite Pluto, you can transform in the relationship, understand each other and yourselves better, and find more opportunities for change and growth. With Composite Jupiter square or opposite Composite Pluto, there can be too much fighting between you, too much struggling over power and control, and you can get stuck in the dark side of the relationship. There can be an abundance of dark energy in the relationship if you don't let the light in.

Composite Pluto to Composite Saturn

With Composite Saturn conjunct Composite Pluto, this can show that you have to go through a trial in order to stay together, or that you're constantly battling against the messes of life and it tests you together. It can help you to become more bonded, or it can drive you apart. If you become more bonded, it can be a hard bond to break, which may be a bad thing if the relationship isn't healthy. With Composite Saturn sextile or trine Composite Pluto, you can stick together through difficult times, support one another, and transform through what you go through together. With Composite Saturn square or opposite Composite Pluto, it can be difficult for you to stay together when the going gets tough, and you may not feel much of a bond to one another.

Uranus, Neptune, and Pluto are slow-moving generational planets, and so their aspects to one another usually aren't as important unless there is a major age difference.

The Composite 1st House

While the 1st house rules the self in a natal chart, the composite 1st house rules the relationship itself and your outward identity together. It shows how people view your relationship, and how you come across together.

Composite 1st House in the Signs

Composite 1st House in Aries

Aries is an energetic sign, so the composite 1st house in Aries can make you two come across as an energetic couple. You may do a lot together, constantly on the go, and make be more active together than apart (depending on your natal charts). You may also seem more impulsive and have a hard time when fighting, and this can spill out publicly, so working on controlling that can be important. The crux of the fighting may be found with the areas of life ruled by the house the composite Mars is located in the composite chart.

Composite 1st House in Taurus

You can come across as more grounded, stable pairing with the composite 1st house in Taurus, and this can help you to stick together through a lot (whether this is a personal or professional coupling). You may be seen as being in it for the long haul together, but this placement can also make things a little boring at times, so you need to make sure you don't let that happen (especially in personal relationships). This can be an excellent position for a business relationship since Taurus naturally governs money.

Composite 1st House in Gemini

Gemini is the sign of the mind, so with the composite 1st house in Gemini, it may seem like a meeting of the minds. Mental connection can be important between the two of you, and may seem like a strong bond. You can be an active pair, and constantly want things to do and a variety of things to do. But you can also get scattered and may be prone to anxiousness more together than apart (depending on natal placements). Some grounding energy can be helpful, though your adaptability can be an asset.

Composite 1st House in Cancer

Cancer is the sign of emotions, so with the composite 1st house in Cancer, the emotional connection between you can seem most important, and you may come across as deeply understanding one another emotionally. You can be a nurturing, supportive pair, and can create something with a solid foundation together. As Cancer rules family, this can be a good placement for family members or someone you want to create a family with. You may need to make sure you don't get swept up in emotions together and lack objectivity.

Composite 1st House in Leo

Leo is a fun sign, so with the composite 1st house in Leo, you can be a pair who has a lot of fun together. It can be a great placement for personal love (romantic, friends, family) relationships since Leo is affectionate and wants a personal connection. Professionally, this may be a helpful placement if you're pursuing a creative endeavor together. The downside with Leo is stubborn pride, so when you fight, you may get stuck in your trenches and feel especially wounded by any insults.

Composite 1st House in Virgo

Virgo is the sign of work, so having the composite 1st house in Virgo can be helpful for professional pairings, but you have to resist the urge to be overly critical of each other's work. Being overly critical can be an issue in personal relationships as well with this placement, and you need to not pick each other apart. You can come across as a quiet, respectable pair, and if you can avoid the criticism, you get more done together than apart (depending on natal placements).

Composite 1st House in Libra

Libra is the sign of relationships, so having the composite 1st house in Libra is the most natural position for a relationship of any kind (even enemies!). You can come across really well together, and seem good together, whether personal or professional. You may seem like a charming couple, diplomatic and aware of your surroundings, and avoid fights as much as you can, preferring compromise. But this can lead to problems and resentment if you're not being open with one another, and indecision can also be an issue.

Composite 1st House in Scorpio

With the composite 1st house in Scorpio, you may seem like an intense, strong pairing, more formidable together than apart (depending on natal placements). This can help keep you together, but can also lead to emotional intensity, rage, and hostility at times, and you have to avoid trying to control one another. Passion can run high in personal relationships, and this can lead to all sorts of problems if not properly used. This can be a transformative relationship, but that can be for better or worse.

Composite 1st House in Sagittarius

Sagittarius is a fun-loving sign in search of adventure, so having the composite 1st house in Sagittarius can make you come across as an adventurous pairing. You may travel a lot together, and can be more open to new experiences together. The downside to Sagittarius with relationships is this is the commitment-phobic sign, so commitment may be more difficult to find with this placement, whether personal or professional. If you can give each other a lot of space, that can be a good thing, and you may prefer to not make anything official.

Composite 1st House in Capricorn

Composite 1st house in Capricorn can be excellent for business and professional relationships since Capricorn rules career/goals and ambitions, so you can accomplish a great deal together, perhaps hit greater highs and more successes together than apart. You can come across as a responsible, stable pairing and stick together for the long-term. In personal relationships, you may encourage each other to go for your ultimate goals, but you do need to watch to make sure you don't have too much emotional distance.

Composite 1st House in Aquarius

With Aquarius being the unconventional sign, having the composite 1st house in Aquarius can mean you come across as an interesting, oddball pairing. With Aquarius ruling friendships, this can be a great placement for a friendship; in personal and professional relationships, you may seem to have a foundation of friendship. Together, you may be more open to change, and may experience more changes together (usually in the areas of life ruled by the house the composite Uranus is located). You may need to work on emotional connection and stability.

Composite 1st House in Pisces

You can come across as a highly compassionate, helpful pairing with the composite 1st house in Pisces. You may have great emotional understanding, but can get a little lost and scattered at times. You may be more easily taken advantage of together than apart, and healthy, solid, boundaries can be incredibly important. You may see the best in one another, but need to make sure you're not ignoring real problems. It may be hard for you to act together, so this placement may not be ideal for professional partnerships.

Transit Planets in the Composite 1st House

Transit Sun in the Composite 1st House

When the transit Sun is in the composite 1st house, this can help bring your attention to the relationship itself, and you may try to focus on how you come together, how you're perceived, and how you present yourselves to the world. You may see highlighted any issues that need attention at the moment, and you may be more willing to take action together and make improvements.

Transit Moon in the Composite 1st House

When the transit Moon is in the composite 1st house, this brings your emotional focus to the relationship itself, and you may be more emotional together. You can express what you feel in the relationship with one another, and you can work on being more nurturing and supportive of one another and of the relationship itself. You may be more outwardly emotional together and look to strengthen your emotional connection.

Transit Mercury in the Composite 1st House

When transit Mercury is in the composite 1st house, this can bring mental focus to your relationship itself. You may want to talk things over with each other more, work on open communication and honesty, and can analyze things together. You can come up with ideas and plans together, and work on a variety of tasks. You may seem more expressive in the relationship.

Transit Venus in the Composite 1st House

When transit Venus is in the composite 1st house, this can make it easier for you to express love and affection for one another in a personal relationship. In a professional relationship, you may get along better and negotiate better deals and compromises. You may have more pleasant energy in the relationship and in dealings with each other, and want to focus on balance.

Transit Mars in the Composite 1st House

When transit Mars is in the composite 1st house, this can give lots of energy to the relationship, and it may feel extremely important to the two of you to focus on the relationship and make time for one another in whatever way you interact. If you have trouble getting along, you may fight more, and can be more impatient with one another. You need to direct the energy to something productive together.

Transit Jupiter in the Composite 1st House

When transit Jupiter is in the composite 1st house, this can help bring some positive energy to the relationship. You may focus on the good together, and be more optimistic about your relationship. You may work to expand the relationship and give one another more space, so if there are hard aspects occurring, this may help push you apart. If there are positive aspects, you can simply respect each other's need for some freedom.

Transit Saturn in the Composite 1st House

When transit Saturn is in the composite 1st house, this may bring restrictive energy into the relationship, and you may feel the weight of responsibilities together much heavier. Any issues in the relationship can multiply, become worse and feel worse, and you have to work on resolving them, otherwise this can cause long-term problems. If you can work through issues, you can forge stronger commitment to the relationship.

Transit Uranus in the Composite 1st House

When transit Uranus is in the composite 1st house, this may bring lots of changes in your relationship, and the two of you can crave that change. You may make changes yourselves, or experience changes brought on externally. Whatever it is, the way your relationship is at the start of Uranus in the composite 1st house is not likely the way it will be at the end, for better or worse.

Transit Neptune in the Composite 1st House

When transit Neptune is in the composite 1st house, this can make you more compassionate and sensitive with one another, helping you to be in tune with one another's needs. But you may also lack reality when dealing with issues, and may not see when things are really that bad, or may not see how bad things actually are. You can also be more vulnerable together to deception and manipulation from others.

Transit Pluto in the Composite 1st House

When transit Pluto is in the composite 1st house, this can bring out more power struggles and control issues if there are lingering, deeply-held issues that need to be brought out. A transformation is likely needed in the relationship, and if that is done, then you can find more power and control together, and feel strengthened in the relationship. You may come across as more powerful together as well.

The Composite 2nd House

The 2nd house in the natal chart governs your finances, how you make money and your approach to money, as well as your values and security. The composite 2nd house can show what you value in the relationship, how you approach money together, and how secure you are in the relationship together.

Composite 2nd House in the Signs

Composite 2nd House in Aries

With the composite 2nd house in Aries, you may derive a lot of confidence from the relationship when things are stable and secure, especially financially and materialistically. You can put a lot of energy into acquiring things of value together, but you may also squander more things of value together. Being disciplined financially or with what you have of value together (physical or otherwise) can be important.

Composite 2nd House in Taurus

With the composite 2nd house in Taurus, you may find that you can acquire things of value and financial security more easily together, but splurging on unnecessary stuff can also be a problem. There may be too much emphasis on having things of value in order to feel good about the relationship, and that may need to be worked on. This can be a good placement for a professional relationship focused on making money.

Composite 2nd House in Gemini

With the composite 2nd house in Gemini, you may take an analytical, intellectual approach to creating stability and security in the relationship, as well as to how you acquire things of value and what you do with them. You can be more flexible financially together, and adapt to financial situations more quickly and easily. You may also be more financially anxious, and need to make sure you're following good plans and advice.

Composite 2nd House in Cancer

With the composite 2nd house in Cancer, you may focus on financial stability and security together so you can feel emotionally stable and secure. The more you feel you have together, the more stable and secure you can be. Yet because Cancer is governed by the Moon, you may find that your finances together can go through ebbs and flows. What you value together may also impact your emotional stability.

Composite 2nd House in Leo

With the composite 2nd house in Leo, your values and finances may be extremely important when it comes to security and stability in your relationship. The better your finances, the more you have of value together, the better you can feel about the relationship, but this can lead to being too focused on “stuff” at times. You may like to spoil each other, but need to make sure you don't go overboard.

Composite 2nd House in Virgo

With the composite 2nd house in Virgo, you can be very frugal together financially and with what you acquire. You may not want to splurge on too much together, and when you do, it may be for a practical reason. Having solid finances together as well as solid values can be important to avoid stress and worry, otherwise you may seem much more stressed about money together than apart (depending on natal placements), and that stress can affect the health of the relationship.

Composite 2nd House in Libra

With the composite 2nd house in Libra, this can be helpful for respecting each other's financial positions as well as your individual values. Having balance, respect, and fairness financially and with your values can help you feel more stable and secure together. There may be struggles with financial indecision at times though. You may try to be as fair with one another as possible when it comes to what is each of yours individually.

Composite 2nd House in Scorpio

With the composite 2nd house in Scorpio, you may be able to acquire a lot of value and financially together, and this can be a good professional placement, but you do need to be mindful of not trying to control one another through your money and resources. One of you may be in control of the finances, or even dominate with your values, but this can lead to issues down the road. There may need to be a transformation of your values together.

Composite 2nd House in Sagittarius

With the composite 2nd house in Sagittarius, you can be very giving together, and you can take risks financially or to acquire more of value together than apart (depending on natal placements). This can lead to bigger windfalls, but it can also lead to bigger downfalls, so some caution and homework may be needed. You can factor in the big picture when it comes to financial plans, and you can be much more open-minded together with your values and ethics.

Composite 2nd House in Capricorn

With the composite 2nd house in Capricorn, you may be more cautious financially and with acquiring things of value together. This can help you to build more together than apart (depending on natal placements). You can make plans together for the long-term, and can stick with them and act responsibly. You may be more traditional with your values together. The more you accomplish together, the more secure you may feel in the relationship.

Composite 2nd House in Aquarius

With the composite 2nd house in Aquarius, the two of you may take your own approach to finances and things of value. You may experience some sudden changes in your financial status together, for better or worse. You may feel less connection to material things, tangible objects. Your values can undergo changes together, and you can be more open to unconventional values.

Composite 2nd House in Pisces

With the composite 2nd house in Pisces, your finances may not be too important together, or at least not a central focus on the relationship, or you may struggle with actually getting focused on your finances together. Your values can also be a lot more fluid together, and the two of you can be so open to others that you're prone to being swindled, to spending more than planned, or one of you may take advantage of the other. Some financial boundaries can be very important for you.

Transit Planets in the Composite 2nd House

Transit Sun in the Composite 2nd House

When the transit Sun is in the composite 2nd house, this can shine a light on any financial matters in the relationship. You may work on improving security and stability together, and can give more attention to the things that are causing chaos and uncertainty. You may take things slowly together, not wanting to rush into anything, and can stick to what you start together once you get moving.

Transit Moon in the Composite 2nd House

When the transit Moon is in the composite 2nd house, this can bring grounding energy to your emotions in the relationship, and you may not want to deal with anything too emotional together. You can be more sensual in a romantic relationship, and want more physical contact. In a professional relationship, you may be more emotionally focused on money. In general, you may feel like you want to keep things calm together.

Transit Mercury in the Composite 2nd House

When transit Mercury is in the composite 2nd house, you can focus on financial plans together, and come up with ideas to improve security and stability. You may talk more about money, or about your values. You can take your time with making decisions together or committing to any plans together, and can take the slow, steady approach to coming up with ideas and plans.

Transit Venus in the Composite 2nd House

When transit Venus is in the composite 2nd house, you may find it easier to deal with finances in the relationship, though you may also splurge more too. You may try to get more grounded together, and can be much more sensual in a romantic relationship. Stubbornness can increase though, and you may get stuck in positions if you're not willing to adjust, so try to stay open.

Transit Mars in the Composite 2nd House

When transit Mars is in the composite 2nd house, there can be lots of energy and drive to deal with your finances. If a personal relationship, this may be how it impacts one another, or it may be to splurge on one another. In a professional relationship, you can work on making more together, and it can be a good time for that, though you can also spend more. Confidence can be high, and you can take your time with taking action on anything.

Transit Jupiter in the Composite 2nd House

When transit Jupiter is in the composite 2nd house, this can bring excellent financial energy to the relationship, and you may make more money together (even in personal relationships). This can also be a good time to ground the relationship, to bring more stability and security to the relationship, and this can happen more easily and effortlessly. But it can expand on existing money troubles, if any exist, as well as stubbornness.

Transit Saturn in the Composite 2nd House

When transit Saturn is in the composite 2nd house, this can bring restrictive energy financially, and you may make less together or have more responsibilities to spend money on. It may feel like there is less than there actually is though, so you may just need to save more together. There may be financial issues that need to be worked on in the relationship so you can work on money together fairly.

Transit Uranus in the Composite 2nd House

When transit Uranus is in the composite 2nd house, this can bring unstable energy financially to the relationship. Big bursts of money can come, and then dry spells can follow. You may need to change your approach to dealing with money together, and come up with unconventional ways of improving the security and stability of the relationship. This can help ground some of the energy.

Transit Neptune in the Composite 2nd House

When transit Neptune is in the composite 2nd house, this can make it more difficult to put your finger on financial troubles that may occur, and you may be more prone to being taken advantage of together financially, so caution needs to be exercising. You can focus on grounding your spiritual connection though, and can be more sentimental about the physical and material.

Transit Pluto in the Composite 2nd House

When transit Pluto is in the composite 2nd house, this can bring out major struggles over power and control financially if there are any deeply-held issues around money for either of you. If what brings safety, security, and stability to the relationship something that shouldn't or that isn't right in some way, then the rug can get pulled out from under the relationship. You can transform and build things back up, or may walk away.

The Composite 3rd House

The composite 3rd house can show how you are together in your immediate environment and what you focus on together day-to-day. This is a house of communication, so it can also reflect how you communicate in the relationship, and what you can think about together.

Composite 3rd House in the Signs

Composite 3rd House in Aries

With the composite 3rd house in Aries, this can increase communication and expression in the relationship, but you may say things without thinking to one another and this can cause some fights. You can be a very active pair, always with something to do, and want to be active within your community or immediate environment. You may focus together on ways you can take charge and make ideas reality.

Composite 3rd House in Taurus

With the composite 3rd house in Taurus, communication may take longer between the two of you to get through, and you may take time to understand each other. Once you come to a consensus on something, you can stick by it together. You may find it easier to express yourselves in the relationship by involving your senses (through music, the arts, etc.). You may focus together on your values and security.

Composite 3rd House in Gemini

With the composite 3rd house in Gemini, this can naturally stimulate easy communication between you (unless Saturn, Uranus, Neptune, or Pluto are in this house or conjunct Mercury). You can be a pair that is quick on your feet and easily adaptable to whatever is flung at you on a daily basis. At times, you may get ahead of yourselves, so you may need to keep control over your energy. You may focus together on ideas and expression.

Composite 3rd House in Cancer

With the composite 3rd house in Cancer, expression can be focused on emotions, and you each may want to express what you feel openly. You may be guided in your daily life together by what moves you emotionally. You can work on being emotionally understanding of one another, but also need to make sure that emotions don't overtake logic in the relationships. You may focus together on building something from the ground up.

Composite 3rd House in Leo

With the composite 3rd house in Leo, you may not want to focus on too much seriousness together, and can seem like a fun-loving, gregarious pair. But you may get into some serious fights, and can have a hard time letting go of hurts. You can be a very creative pair, and can come up with creative solutions to day-to-day problems. You may focus together on creation in any way.

Composite 3rd House in Virgo

With the composite 3rd house in Virgo, you may not be super outspoken with one another, worried about the reaction of the other, and there can be some insecurity to address. You can be highly analytical, reasonably, logical, and practical together, and take that approach to your daily life and plans. You may focus together on getting things done, and tend to the little things and details.

Composite 3rd House in Libra

With the composite 3rd house in Libra, you can seem like a charming pair. You may avoid fighting with each other as much as possible, but this can lead to some imbalance. Compromise may be the name of the game for the two of you. If your immediate environment is peaceful and calm, this can improve your ability to communicate and connect in your daily life. You may focus together on ways to keep the peace.

Composite 3rd House in Scorpio

With the composite 3rd house in Scorpio, communication can be intense between the two of you. You may clash heads routinely, and can try to dominate one another with your ideas and opinions, or the pair of you may be that way together against the outside world. You can be a dominating pair in your daily lives and exert control over your immediate environment. You may focus together on ways to transform minds.

Composite 3rd House in Sagittarius

With the composite 3rd house in Sagittarius, you can be a pair that is quite optimistic, focused on the positives together. Your view may be wider together than apart (depending on other placements), and you can expand your daily lives and immediate environment, and open your minds. You may find communications to be light and fun between you. You may focus together on the big picture.

Composite 3rd House in Capricorn

With the composite 3rd house in Capricorn, you may not be super open with one another, and prefer to communicate when you each have something important to say or contribute. There is likely little small talk between you, and you may not seem like you communicate all that much, but you do try to with the important stuff. You may have more responsibilities in your immediate environment. You may focus together on your goals and long-term plans.

Composite 3rd House in Aquarius

With the composite 3rd house in Aquarius, the two of you can be much more open to new and different ways of thinking and viewing situations and the world together than you are apart (depending on natal placements). You can take unconventional approaches to daily life, perhaps avoiding routines and standard structure, and may prefer unusual immediate environments. You may focus together on pushing boundaries.

Composite 3rd House in Pisces

With the composite 3rd house in Pisces, there can be some struggle with proper communications between you. You need to be really comfortable with one another before you can truly open up, and you may prefer doing so when you're alone together with no one else around. Intuition can be strong in your communications, and you can sense what each other are thinking over time. You may focus together on the subtle energies around you.

Transit Planets in the Composite 3rd House

Transit Sun in the Composite 3rd House

When the transit Sun is in the composite 3rd house, this can bring attention to communication in your relationship. You may communicate with one another a lot more, and can talk about a variety of things. You may be more expressive together to others as well, and can come across as more analytical and logical, and learn new things together or share knowledge together with others.

Transit Moon in the Composite 3rd House

When the transit Moon is in the composite 3rd house, this can make it important for you to communicate what you're feeling together. It can be easier for you to express what you're feeling, and to feel understood. Understanding each other may seem more important as well. You can be more honest, and say what you mean. You may be more emotional in your immediate environment together.

Transit Mercury in the Composite 3rd House

When transit Mercury is in the composite 3rd house, this can greatly increase mental energy in the relationship so the two of you can come up with more ideas, work on more plans, and have more communications. You may keep busy on a variety of projects and ventures, and can get bored more easily. There may be a scattered quality to your time spent together at times though.

Transit Venus in the Composite 3rd House

When transit Venus is in the composite 3rd house, this can make communications between the two of you go more smoothly. You can be much more open to compromise together, and try to keep your exchanges pleasant and diplomatic. You can behave this way with others together as well. You may try to find ways to keep the peace in your relationship, and restore some balance.

Transit Mars in the Composite 3rd House

When transit Mars is in the composite 3rd house, this can bring lots of energy for communication, and you each may be more opinionated. You can defend your ideas and plans together strongly, and you can feel energized to pursue the ideas and plans you have together. You may be driven to take an idea and make it a reality. When you fight, you might fight worse.

Transit Jupiter in the Composite 3rd House

When transit Jupiter is in the composite 3rd house, this can make communication easier for the two of you. You can let ideas and plans flow, and can open up communication more freely. You can be more honest, and you can focus on the positives in your relationship. You can keep busy together, especially with smaller projects and tasks, and make improvements in your immediate environment.

Transit Saturn in the Composite 3rd House

When transit Saturn is in the composite 3rd house, this can make communication more difficult for the two of you. You may hold back on what you're thinking, and not want to freely share ideas or opinions. You may feel stifled in the relationship, misunderstood or unheard. You likely need to work on communication issues in the relationship, and be more respectful of one another's thoughts.

Transit Uranus in the Composite 3rd House

When transit Uranus is in the composite 3rd house, this can make you come up with wild new ideas together, willing to think outside of the box for solutions and plans. You can make changes with the way you communicate with one another, and you can make changes with the way you interact with your immediate environment. You may need to keep from being impulsive together at times.

Transit Neptune in the Composite 3rd House

When transit Neptune is in the composite 3rd house, this can make you more charismatic in your communications with one another, and you can have greater intuitive intelligence, and just sense what the other means. But top-line communication may be a struggle at times, and you may have more misunderstandings if your spiritual connection isn't strong and you're not grounded.

Transit Pluto in the Composite 3rd House

When transit Pluto is in the composite 3rd house, this can make your communications more intense. You can dig deeper into subjects and projects together, and can get stuck on ideas of interest. You may get into bigger fights though, and can also be more dominating in communication with others. People can take the ideas and plans you come up with more seriously.

The Composite 4th House

In the natal chart, the 4th house is the house of home, family, foundations, and emotions. This isn't too different in the composite chart, and the composite 4th house can show how we connect emotionally (as well as the composite Moon), what we build together from the ground up, and what the base of our connection is (since this is the bottom of the chart).

Composite 4th House in the Signs

Composite 4th House in Aries

With the composite 4th house in Aries, you may be a pair that is particularly active in your families (or your own family if you are related or have children). The two of you can dive in and try to take things over, and family can be very important to you, but you may overdo it sometimes. Emotional connection can also be something you feel is important and work on. The base of your connection may be to take action.

Composite 4th House in Taurus

With the composite 4th house in Taurus, the physical may be important for emotional security and connection. You may want to spoil each other, buy extravagant gifts, and if you live together, maintain a home that is beautiful and luxurious. It can take time to forge real emotional connection, but it can last a long time once done. The base of your connection may be to create security and stability.

Composite 4th House in Gemini

With the composite 4th house in Gemini, the two of you may be on the go a lot, and if living together, may not want to be in the same space for too long, needing to be moving constantly. If you do live together, you may actually move many times together, and you can be more flexible and adaptable at home and with family. It may be important for you to emotionally express yourselves openly. The base of your connection may be mental.

Composite 4th House in Cancer

With the composite 4th house in Cancer, you may be more protective of one another than usual, and want to protect your connection with one another. If you live together or have a very personal relationship, you may guard it against others. You may want to keep things traditional together in some way. Emotional connection between you can be strong, and this can serve as a strong base.

Composite 4th House in Leo

With the composite 4th house in Leo, having fun and being affectionate can help improve your emotional connection. You may spoil each other, and can be very loyal to one another once committed. Both of you may demand a lot of attention though, especially at home (if living together; or if family), and you may be more comfortable getting attention from others as a pair. The base of your connection may be fun and affectionate.

Composite 4th House in Virgo

With the composite 4th house in Virgo, if you live together, you can maintain a home that is well-kept, and have a relationship with lots of structure and order. The structure and order can come into any relationship though, and this can serve as the base of the connection at first. Over time, your emotional connection can be less analytical and emotionless and more earthy and grounded.

Composite 4th House in Libra

With the composite 4th house in Libra, you likely need a lot of peace and harmony and balance together in order to maintain a solid emotional connection. You may express emotions more openly when you're one-on-one, and when you feel you respect each other. There may need to be an equal give-and-take emotionally, and this can help solidify your connection and be the base for it.

Composite 4th House in Scorpio

With the composite 4th house in Scorpio, there can be some extreme emotions within the relationship at times, and this can lead to fights and struggles for power/control emotionally. You desire a strong emotional connection with one another, but it can get easy to lose perspective as a result and get a little obsessive. If the extreme emotions can be balanced and controlled, there is possibility for emotional transformation in this connection.

Composite 4th House in Sagittarius

With the composite 4th house in Sagittarius, you may want more space from one another emotionally than you would think, especially in a personal relationship. This doesn't necessarily mean you don't want to be around each other or don't have strong ties; you can, you just need to not smother each other emotionally. Together, you can be more emotionally positive, and the base of your connection can be to expand.

Composite 4th House in Capricorn

With the composite 4th house in Capricorn, you may feel more emotionally responsible for one another in the relationship (even to a degree in a professional one). You can be more traditional, mature, and cautious together, and may have to work on forging a balance between internal and external focus. The base of your connection together may be to create a solid internal and external foundation.

Composite 4th House in Aquarius

With the composite 4th house in Aquarius, if you live together, you likely don't want a home life that is normal or conventional at all. In a romantic relationship, you may opt not to sleep in the same bedroom (or just not live together at all!), and it's alright. If you're family, you may have an unusual relationship. Emotional connection may be difficult to come by, and that has to be worked on in personal relationships, though there can be a base of mutual respect.

Composite 4th House in Pisces

With the composite 4th house in Pisces, a strong emotional connection can be incredibly important for the two of you, otherwise it may be difficult for you to come and stay together. Yet there also needs to be some healthy emotional boundaries, otherwise your emotions may bleed together and you have no clue which are yours and which are theirs. Once you can do that, you can be very compassionate and understanding emotionally with one another.

Transit Planets in the Composite 4th House

Transit Sun in the Composite 4th House

When the transit Sun is in the composite 4th house, this can bring more attention to the foundation of your relationship, and expose any cracks that need to be fixed. If you live together, you may focus more on issues at home and try to make improvements. You may spend more time with family together, or work on getting back to the roots of the relationship, what brought you together in the first place.

Transit Moon in the Composite 4th House

When the transit Moon is in the composite 4th house, this can bring more emotional focus to the foundation of the relationship, and securing the foundation can help to ground you emotionally in the relationship. You may want to share emotionally, and give and get emotional support and comfort. If you live together, you may want to make your home feel more comfortable and nurturing.

Transit Mercury in the Composite 4th House

When transit Mercury is in the composite 4th house, this can make it easier for you to express what you're feeling, and you can open up emotionally with one another. You can be a little less subjective and try to understand each other better. You can work on ideas and plans to strengthen the relationship, or for something from the ground up. If you live together, there can be more communications and activity.

Transit Venus in the Composite 4th House

When transit Venus is in the composite 4th house, this can make it easier for you to get along emotionally, and you may feel calmer and more grounded emotionally together. You can feel good about the relationship, and this can make you both more affectionate in a personal relationship. You can improve the foundation of the relationship, and if you live together, you might spruce up your living space.

Transit Mars in the Composite 4th House

When transit Mars is in the composite 4th house, this can give lots of energy and drive to what you feel together, and to the foundation of the relationship. You may work on something from the ground up together, or feel that something bottoms out in the relationship now, and things can move upward over the next year. If you live together, you may work on renovations, remodel, or move.

Transit Jupiter in the Composite 4th House

When transit Jupiter is in the composite 4th house, this can make it much easier for you to get along emotionally, and you can feel the foundation for your relationship is solid. You can start something together that culminates over a long period of time, and can spend more time with one another family. If you live together, you can give each other more space, or move to a better place.

Transit Saturn in the Composite 4th House

When transit Saturn is in the composite 4th house, you may feel like you're emotionally restricted in the relationship. You may not be as expressive with one another, and hold back what you're feeling. If there are internal issues at the core of the relationship that need to be worked on, you may absolutely have to now, otherwise you may experience things falling apart. If you live together, you may have more responsibilities or feel the other is infringing on your space.

Transit Uranus in the Composite 4th House

When transit Uranus is in the composite 4th house, what the relationship needs to have a solid foundation may change, and you may take a more unconventional approach to the relationship. You may be more open to trying out the unconventional together, and you can give each other more comfort and support in different ways. If you live together, you might decide to make changes at home quickly and impulsively.

Transit Neptune in the Composite 4th House

When transit Neptune is in the composite 4th house, a deep spiritual and emotional connection can be forged, but you may need to make sure the relationship is grounded first, otherwise you may struggle with openly expressing emotions and understanding each other. The foundation of your spiritual connection can be worked on, and you can improve the instincts you have together.

Transit Pluto in the Composite 4th House

When transit Pluto is in the composite 4th house, if there are any issues at the core of the relationship, those can be brought out and demand your attention. A transformation likely needs to occur at the root of the relationship in order to make it through, otherwise the relationship may bottom out. Emotions can run much stronger, and there can be a greater need for support. If you live together, you may struggle more over power and control if deeply-held issues persist.

The Composite 5th House

The 5th house is the house of love, so the composite 5th house can show how we express affection, what we love and take pleasure in together. This house can bring creative energy into our relationships and allow us to express creatively together. The 5th house also rules children, so they can be impacted by the composite 5th house with someone you have children with.

Composite 5th House in the Signs

Composite 5th House in Aries

With the composite 5th house in Aries, you may have a great deal of energy and drive to focus on the things that you love together. If you have children, you can give lots of attention to them. You may want to make as much time as you can for enjoyment and play, but you may find that you want to go play on your own sometimes, and not always together. The two of you may enjoy being physically active together.

Composite 5th House in Taurus

With the composite 5th house in Taurus, you may enjoy spending time lounging and being lazy together. You may be a pair that likes just doing nothing. You can enjoy being sensual with one another, and can prefer fine wine and rich food and swanky hotels and beautiful locations. You may be more affectionate with one another, and if you have children together, you can be extra affectionate with them, though also at times more rigid.

Composite 5th House in Gemini

With the composite 5th house in Gemini, you may enjoy mentally stimulating projects and ventures together. You can pick each other's brains, share information and knowledge, and you can be interested in a variety of subjects together. You may express affection verbally, and you can enjoy keeping busy with lots to do together. If you have children together, they may be highly intellectual, or together you may put more emphasis on their education.

Composite 5th House in Cancer

With the composite 5th house in Cancer, you may enjoy doing things you find comforting. You may prefer spending time at home together, or in places that you both find to be very comfortable. You may also enjoy spending time with one another's family. If you have children together, you can be very nurturing and supportive of them emotionally, and they can be more important to the security of your relationship.

Composite 5th House in Leo

With the composite 5th house in Leo, you can enjoy focusing on creative pursuits together, and can be a highly creative pair. You can be very affectionate with one another in a personal relationship. In a romantic relationship, romance can be big and grand, sometimes a little too much. If you have children together, you can be very doting with them and give them lots of attention.

Composite 5th House in Virgo

With the composite 5th house in Virgo, you may prefer to do things together that are quiet and not too flashy. In a personal relationship, it may be difficult for you to express affection with one another, especially if one is picking the other apart. There may be a lot of focus on the day-to-day and the smaller projects and tasks that need to be done. If you have children together, you may need to watch for being too critical.

Composite 5th House in Libra

With the composite 5th house in Libra, you can take pleasure in spending time together one-on-one. If in a romantic relationship, you may also enjoy spending time with other couples. You can both strive to give equal amounts of time to have fun together and responsibilities together. You may be more affectionate with one another if you feel the relationship is balanced. If you have children together, you can work to be understanding and fair.

Composite 5th House in Scorpio

With the composite 5th house in Scorpio, you may enjoy digging into mysteries together and uncovering what's below the surface. Intimacy can be intense in romantic relationships, and you may get a little obsessed with one another at times and need some healthy space. Jealousy and possessiveness may also need to be worked on. If you have children together, you can be fiercely protective of them but also need to not get obsessive.

Composite 5th House in Sagittarius

With the composite 5th house in Sagittarius, you can enjoy going on grand adventures together, and may do things with one another that you wouldn't with someone else for fun (hopefully nothing illegal!). You may want to travel together and explore new places, and expand your minds and lives. If you have children together, you may give them plenty of space to be themselves.

Composite 5th House in Capricorn

With the composite 5th house in Capricorn, you may have a hard time letting loose together, and have to work on being more affectionate and taking time for fun. You may focus a little too much on your responsibilities together. You can be very practical with your approach to love, and you can take commitment seriously in personal relationships. If you have children together, you may embark wisdom but need to not be too demanding.

Composite 5th House in Aquarius

With the composite 5th house in Aquarius, you can enjoy doing things that are unusual and outside of the box together, and can experiment.

You can push each other outside of your comfort zones and try out what's new and different. You can express affection in unusual ways, and may not be too outwardly affectionate in personal relationships. If you have children together, you can encourage them to be independent individuals.

Composite 5th House in Pisces

With the composite 5th house in Pisces, you can enjoy creative ventures and the arts together. You may take pleasure in helping other people together as well. You may be more affectionate with one another in a personal relationship when you're alone and no one is watching. You can be incredibly generous with each other, and make big sacrifices for the relationship, but may need to be careful of sacrificing too much. If you have children together, you can also be quite sacrificing for them.

Transit Planets in the Composite 5th House

Transit Sun in the Composite 5th House

When the transit Sun is in the composite 5th house, this can help you to focus on bringing some fun into the relationship and enjoying one another's company. You may want to do something creative together, and can focus on the positives. You may seem more gregarious together to others, and can enjoy getting attention from one another and from others. If you have children together, they can get a lot more of your attention together.

Transit Moon in the Composite 5th House

When the transit Moon is in the composite 5th house, you may be more emotionally expressive, but in a more positive way. You may want to take more time to enjoy yourselves and have fun, and this can help ground you together emotionally. You can be more affectionate in personal relationships, and more romantic in romantic relationships. If you have children together, you can be more supportive of them together.

Transit Mercury in the Composite 5th House

When transit Mercury is in the composite 5th house, this can make for more enjoyable communications, and you may tell each other more stories, or focus on creative ideas and ventures. You may not want to focus on anything too serious together, and just give time to things that are fun or creative. If you have children together, you may talk about them together more or talk with them together more.

Transit Venus in the Composite 5th House

When transit Venus is in the composite 5th house, this can help you get along much better, and you can enjoy being with one another, especially in personal relationships. You can be a lot more affectionate and romantic together, and it can be a good period to go on a trip together. In a professional relationship, you can enjoy getting attention together. If you have children together, you may enjoy spending more time with them together.

Transit Mars in the Composite 5th House

When transit Mars is in the composite 5th house, this can increase the romance in a romantic relationship, and it can be a good time to get away together. It can increase affection in personal relationships, and you may want to do something fun together. It can increase creative energy in professional relationships, and you can come up with creative approaches to projects. If you have children together, you may give more energy to them.

Transit Jupiter in the Composite 5th House

When transit Jupiter is in the composite 5th house, this can help make the relationship more fun, enjoyable, and pleasant. You can be more romantic, creative, and affectionate with one another, and can expand on romance or creative projects. It's a good time for love, as well as having children. If you have children together, you may see them have more opportunities presented to them.

Transit Saturn in the Composite 5th House

When transit Saturn is in the composite 5th house, this can make love, affection, and creativity more challenging. You may have trouble expressing good feelings for one another in the relationship, and can feel stifled. There may be love or creative issues that need to be addressed, and you may need to work on giving one another attention. If you have children together, there may be more responsibilities to take on together or issues to deal with.

Transit Uranus in the Composite 5th House

When transit Uranus is in the composite 5th house, the way you express love and affection may change, and you may approach love and affection together in new, unconventional ways. You may go through periods of great romance and love and periods where you can't stand each other. There can be more impulsive energy in the relationship. If you have children together, they may be more rebellious.

Transit Neptune in the Composite 5th House

When transit Neptune is in the composite 5th house, love and affection and creativity can come through a spiritual connection, and the more spiritually connected you feel, the better the love and affection and creativity can be. But you may also not be realistic about the relationship at times, and may need to watch for infidelity in a romantic relationship. If you have children together, you may feel you have less time with them together.

Transit Pluto in the Composite 5th House

When transit Pluto is in the composite 5th house, romance can be intense and passionate in romantic relationships, and affection can be taken seriously in personal relationships, and creativity can be empowering and transforming in professional relationships. A transformation may need to be had with how you express affection with one another. If you have children together, your relationship together with them may transform.

The Composite 6th House

The 6th house rules your work life, daily life, and health in the natal chart, so in the composite chart, the 6th house can show how you approach daily life and the mundane together, how you work together (whether professionally or personally), and the general health of the relationship.

Composite 6th House in the Signs

Composite 6th House in Aries

With the composite 6th house in Aries, you can put a lot of energy together into the little things, the day-to-day, and getting things done. You may need lots of activity together in your daily lives, otherwise you may have difficulty with one another and can snap more easily. When something comes up in the relationship, you can take initiative together to work on it and try to make improvements.

Composite 6th House in Taurus

With the composite 6th house in Taurus, you can take your time together with tending to the little things and the day-to-day tasks and chores or work projects. You may move slowly together, and it can be difficult for you both to move together, but once you get going together, you can keep at it to the end with whatever you're doing. This can be the same approach with issues that arise in the relationship.

Composite 6th House in Gemini

With the composite 6th house in Gemini, you can keep busy in your daily lives together, needing a variety of focuses. You may create short plans together, and come up with new ideas together, and you can work on open communication in your daily lives together. When issues arise in the relationship, you may want to talk things out and take a logical, rational approach to dealing with them.

Composite 6th House in Cancer

With the composite 6th house in Cancer, you can focus on comfort and emotional support in your daily lives together. Once you emotionally support one another on a daily basis, in little ways and with the little things, that can help improve your relationship. A strong foundation for your relationship to start with can help to get you through any difficulties together, but without that, there can be instability.

Composite 6th House in Leo

With the composite 6th house in Leo, you can focus on having more fun in your daily lives together. You may not want to spend too much time focusing on things you find boring together, and instead can try to have more enjoyment on a daily basis. Once you do work on something together, you can be very dedicated and loyal to it. When issues arise in the relationship, you may try to lighten things up or take a trip together.

Composite 6th House in Virgo

With the composite 6th house in Virgo, you can focus on the little things together, and be especially good at tending to the details of your lives and your relationship. This may cause some picking apart to occur though, so that has to be managed. You can be very practical together with your approach to your daily lives and relationship, and try to be practical when issues arise.

Composite 6th House in Libra

With the composite 6th house in Libra, you can focus on trying to make your daily lives as harmonious and balanced as possible together. If there is instability in your daily lives, this can be a problem for the relationship and your connection may waver. There may be struggles with indecision as a result, and a lacking of anything beyond the superficial. When issues arise in the relationship, you may try to be fair to one another and offer give and take.

Composite 6th House in Scorpio

With the composite 6th house in Scorpio, your focus on daily matters can be quite intense together. You can get a little obsessive with the little things that come up in your relationship, and you may need to work on giving each other some space in your daily lives so you don't suffocate one another. When issues arise in the relationship, making a transformation, however big or small, may be required.

Composite 6th House in Sagittarius

With the composite 6th house in Sagittarius, you can give each other a lot of space in your daily lives, and enjoy expanding your daily lives in small ways. You can branch out a little more together, and learning, teaching, or travel can be good for the health of your relationship. You may not want to focus too much on the mundane or whatever you find boring together, so that may be something that has to be worked on.

Composite 6th House in Capricorn

With the composite 6th house in Capricorn, you can be incredibly disciplined together when you're focused on small projects, tasks, chores, and the mundane. You can get a lot done together with a practical approach, and make great strides. You may have a lot of responsibilities together in your daily lives, and take them very seriously. When issues arise in the relationship, you may feel restricted in the relationship and need to find space.

Composite 6th House in Aquarius

With the composite 6th house in Aquarius, you may want to have a daily life that is interesting and keeps you on your toes together. You may get bored easily when you're not trying new things together, or experimenting with little things, in little ways. You may want more independence in your daily life from one another, or take a different, unusual, unconventional approach to deal with issues that come up.

Composite 6th House in Pisces

With the composite 6th house in Pisces, you can focus together on doing things in your daily lives that you feel have some meaning, or that you're both emotionally connected to. If that is lacking, then you may struggle with connecting in your daily lives. Sacrifice may be a part of your daily lives, and that may be your automatic reaction when issues arise in the relationship, but this may cause further issues and stress for both of you. Boundaries may work better.

Transit Planets in the 6th House

Transit Sun in the Composite 6th House

When the transit Sun is in the composite 6th house, you may give more attention to the daily workings of the relationship. In personal relationships, you may pay closer attention to the little things with one another. In a professional relationship, you may get more smaller projects, tasks, and chores done, though it may be one-sided and one of you get more done than the other.

Transit Moon in the Composite 6th House

When the transit Moon is in the composite 6th house, you may be a little emotionally picky in the relationship, and can be a little judgy with one another. You may feel stressed out about something together or in the relationship, and need to work on this. You can feel better emotionally when paying attention to the little things and getting little things out of the way. You may want to focus on the health of the relationship right now.

Transit Mercury in the Composite 6th House

When transit Mercury is in the composite 6th house, you can focus on paying close attention to what each of you say, and try to understand one another. You may overthink at times with one another or in the relationship, and need to not get lost in the details of everything. You may take a more practical approach to any ideas or plans, and can be practical with how you deal with the health of the relationship.

Transit Venus in the Composite 6th House

When transit Venus is in the composite 6th house, you may feel good about the health of the relationship right now, and more grounded together. You can enjoy spending time working on the little things and being productive together. You might make improvements to your daily life or routine together, and you can express affection for one another in small ways in personal relationships.

Transit Mars in the Composite 6th House

When transit Mars is in the composite 6th house, this can give a lot of energy for daily life in your relationship, and you can work on smaller tasks and projects together. You can pay closer attention to the details in your relationship, and this can help you figure out the little things that need to be worked on, though it can also make you pick the relationship apart, so try to refrain from that.

Transit Jupiter in the Composite 6th House

When transit Jupiter is in the composite 6th house, this can help you give one another more space in your daily lives or in your routine together, and you can enjoy focusing on the little things. You can make small improvements here and there to strengthen the health of your relationship, and you can be practical in the ways in which you make improvements so they last.

Transit Saturn in the Composite 6th House

When transit Saturn is in the composite 6th house, you may feel more restricted and stifled in your daily lives or routines together, and may have extra responsibilities. They may be small but numerous, and they can weigh heavily on your relationship. Issues in the relationship can become more obvious, and they must be worked on to improve the health of the relationship, otherwise it may not survive.

Transit Uranus in the Composite 6th House

When transit Uranus is in the composite 6th house, your daily lives or routines together can undergo major changes, and you can take unconventional approaches to dealing with the little things and getting smaller tasks and projects done. You can shake things up in small ways, and you may not want too much structure and order in your lives together, leaving room for a little independence.

Transit Neptune in the Composite 6th House

When transit Neptune is in the composite 6th house, you may focus on having a solid spiritual connection in your daily lives or in mundane ways, and can be more practical with spiritual energy together. You may need to work on the health of your spiritual connection, and try to make it stronger. It may be difficult to figure out when issues are present though, and that spiritual connection can be important.

Transit Pluto in the Composite 6th House

When transit Pluto is in the composite 6th house, there may be important transformations made in your daily lives or routines together, and if the structure and order you haven't isn't positive, that can be torn down and replaced. If in a professional relationship, you may want to focus on work together that you're both passionate about. You may fight over power and control over little things, but it can build up over time if you don't address it.

The Composite 7th House

The 7th house is the house of relationships and others in the natal chart, so in the composite chart, the composite 7th house governs how you are as a couple, how much you're focused on the relationship, how you move together as one, and the other people that you interact with together.

Composite 7th House in the Signs

Composite 7th House in Aries

With the composite 7th house in Aries, you may be a pairing that interacts with others with a lot of energy, and the people in your life may have a lot of energy and drive with the two of you. It may be difficult for you to see together when you're being impulsive and argumentative, but you may see that in others. You may be extra focused on commitment together, but you may also fight a lot more with one another.

Composite 7th House in Taurus

With the composite 7th house in Taurus, you may be a pairing that interacts with others with great calm, or the people in your life may seem like calming forces. While the external face of the relationship may be intense, there can be an ease with commitment, and this can help buoy the partnership. It may be difficult for you to see together when you're being stubborn and stuck, yet you may encounter others who are that way with the two of you.

Composite 7th House in Gemini

With the composite 7th house in Gemini, you may be a pairing that interacts with others with logic and intellect, analyzing people's behaviors and reasoning. You can be intellectually stimulating for other people, and may do a lot of analyzing of your own relationship too. It may be difficult for you to see together when you're being scattered and unfocused, but you may be around others who are.

Composite 7th House in Cancer

With the composite 7th house in Cancer, you may be a pairing that interacts with others with emotional sensitivity, and can connect with others emotionally as a pair. The people in your life may bring more emotion to the two of you, and you may have to deal with emotional situations together. It may be difficult for you to see together when you need to connect more emotionally in healthy ways and have greater objectivity about the relationship.

Composite 7th House in Leo

With the composite 7th house in Leo, you may be a pairing that interacts with others with friendliness, and you can seem like a gregarious pair. You can be super creative as a pair, and you may encounter lots of creative types together. You can be very loyal to the relationship, and take the commitment seriously once you're in it. It may be difficult for you to see together when you're being dramatic, and you may encounter more dramatic people.

Composite 7th House in Virgo

With the composite 7th house in Virgo, you may be a pairing that interacts with others with a practical attitude, and you can be more critical of the people around you as a pair. Others may be more critical of you as a pair as well, and may struggle with seeing you together as you truly are. It may be difficult for you to see together when you are too stuck in the details or being too picky, and may have lots of picky people around you.

Composite 7th House in Libra

With the composite 7th house in Libra, you may be a pairing that interacts with others in a balanced, compromising way, and may try to turn up the charm around others together. You may use charm as a way to get people on your side, and you can win a lot of debates. It may be difficult for you to see together when you're vacillating or being too superficial, but it may annoy you when you're around others who are.

Composite 7th House in Scorpio

With the composite 7th house in Scorpio, you may be a pairing that interacts with others in a probing way, wanting to get to the heart of people and situations together. You can take commitment to one another very seriously, and may attract more powerful people to you as a pair. The relationship may serve as a way to transform you. It may be difficult for you to see together when you're too stuck on something and need to get space.

Composite 7th House in Sagittarius

With the composite 7th house in Sagittarius, you may be a pairing that interacts with others in a gregarious way, being very open-minded as a pair. You can enjoy being on the go together, and you can be surrounded by people who are well-read, travel, and can teach you something together. It may be difficult for you to see together when you're stuck on certain beliefs or pushing for too much space, and you may see this in others around you.

Composite 7th House in Capricorn

With the composite 7th house in Capricorn, you may be a pairing that interacts with others in a mature, responsible way, and you may seem like a pair that can handle hard work and responsibilities. You can be more ambitious together than apart, and you can be very committed to the relationship. You may attract more ambitious people to you as a pair. It may be difficult for you to see together when you need to get some space.

Composite 7th House in Aquarius

With the composite 7th house in Aquarius, you may be a pairing that interacts with others in an unusual way, and there may be something about your relationship that is unusual, or the people that you attract together may be highly unusual, unconventional, independent types. You may be more open to change together. It may be difficult for you to see together when you're not connecting enough emotionally, and you may encounter more distant people.

Composite 7th House in Pisces

With the composite 7th house in Pisces, you may be a pairing that interacts with others with great compassion and empathy, or you may seem together like you're very fluid and scattered. You may attract people to you together that are in need of assistance, that are artistic types, or that are difficult to understand. You may be more willing to make sacrifices together, but this can be challenging for the relationship itself. It may be difficult for you to see together when you need to find roots.

Transit Planets in the Composite 7th House

Transit Sun in the Composite 7th House

When the transit Sun is in the composite 7th house, this can shine a light on how you come together as one, and how you move and work together. You may bring more attention to the people in your life as well, and you may work together to deal with someone else. You may give more attention to operating together and cohesively rather than trying to push individual ideas.

Transit Moon in the Composite 7th House

When the transit Moon is in the composite 7th house, this can help bring emotional focus to coming together as one, and you can feel more emotionally secure in the relationship when you are working together. You may want to restore balance to something in the relationship, and this can help you to keep the peace, as well as deal with other people outside of the relationship together in a nurturing, supportive way.

Transit Mercury in the Composite 7th House

When transit Mercury is in the composite 7th house, this can help you to focus on the mental connection in the relationship, and you may share more ideas and plans with one another. You may want to move together with the same mind and outlook, and approach situations the same way. You may be more engaging with others together, and keep busy in your everyday lives.

Transit Venus in the Composite 7th House

When transit Venus is in the composite 7th house, this can help you to get along better, and you may find it easier to make compromises, keep the peace, and come together as one. You may also find it easier to deal with other people together, and you can be good at negotiating and mediating together. You may seem more charming to others, and can be more affectionate one-on-one.

Transit Mars in the Composite 7th House

When transit Mars is in the composite 7th house, this can bring extra energy and drive to commitment to one another and to the relationship itself, and you may want more one-on-one time together. You can work on balance and peace, and you can have more energy together for dealing with other people. You may seem more driven and energized together, and take action.

Transit Jupiter in the Composite 7th House

When transit Jupiter is in the composite 7th house, this can help strengthen your commitment to the relationship, and you can feel good together. You may be presented with more opportunities to do things together, and can expand your relationship and lives. You may also meet more new people together, and can seem more gregarious and fun-loving and open to others.

Transit Saturn in the Composite 7th House

When transit Saturn is in the composite 7th house, this can bring challenges in the relationship, and you may feel stifled by the relationship itself in some way. You may be limited in the amount of one-on-one time you get together, and you may experience a difficulty that tests your commitment to one another. If you can make it through, you can become more committed to one another.

Transit Uranus in the Composite 7th House

When transit Uranus is in the composite 7th house, this can bring changes to the way you operate together, and you can create changes within the structure of the relationship itself. You may also meet new people together who are different from who you normally engage with, and you can be open to pushing outside of the comfort zone of the relationship and try the unconventional.

Transit Neptune in the Composite 7th House

When transit Neptune is in the composite 7th house, this can bring more compassion and empathy into the relationship, but you may also have a hard time seeing the relationship realistically. If there are issues, your view of them may be clouded. Strengthening your spiritual connection can help. You may be much more helpful of others together, and make sacrifices for other people.

Transit Pluto in the Composite 7th House

When transit Pluto is in the composite 7th house, this can make the relationship more intense and powerful, and your connection can grow stronger if you can get through the power struggles. This is not just from within the relationship, but from others as well who may want to control the two of you. If you can assert your power, you can be seen as more powerful by others, and you may encounter more powerful people together.

The Composite 8th House

The 8th house rules our shared resources, so in the composite chart, the composite 8th house shows how we use what we have together and share with one another. This house also governs intimacy and sex, so it can also show how we connect on a physical level in romantic partnerships (in a way that may be different from individually in the natal chart).

Composite 8th House in the Signs

Composite 8th House in Aries

With the composite 8th house in Aries, you may believe that you together know exactly how to use the resources you have, and you may be a little impulsive with how you use them as a pair. If you're not careful, you can burn through it all quickly, so managing the energy is needed. There may be strong physical desire for one another in a romantic relationship, but you may struggle to keep it going and lose interest quickly, so you have to work on maintaining the spark.

Composite 8th House in Taurus

With the composite 8th house in Taurus, you may hold on to what you have together for a long time, taking your time with making decisions about what to do with your resources, and waiting until you're confident. You may want to devote resources to things that you feel are of value or will increase security in the relationship. In a romantic relationship, physical intimacy may be more of a slow burn, and it may be delayed.

Composite 8th House in Gemini

With the composite 8th house in Gemini, you may come up with plenty of ideas for what you should do with the resources you have together, and you may be a little scattered as a result. Information and knowledge can be powerful, so you can do your homework first before making decisions to avoid being impulsive and scattered. In a romantic relationship, physical intimacy may need to come after a mental connection is built.

Composite 8th House in Cancer

With the composite 8th house in Cancer, you may use the resources you have together to create a solid foundation for your relationship and lives together, and to build solid emotional security. You may focus your resources more on your families, and think more about your legacies. You each may bring something important into the pairing from your families. In a romantic relationship, physical intimacy may need to come after emotional intimacy.

Composite 8th House in Leo

With the composite 8th house in Leo, you may want to use the resources you have to splurge on luxury, so this may need to be quelled. You may also use your resources together to be extra generous and give more to others, wanting to be as helpful as you can. You may garner attention for how you use your resources together, or come up with creative ideas. In a romantic relationship, physical intimacy may be taken with a light-hearted approach and not so serious.

Composite 8th House in Virgo

With the composite 8th house in Virgo, you may use the resources you have together in practical ways, and can be very cautious and detailed with how you'll use them. You may be super savers together, or you may not put too much emphasis on spending and using what you have, giving more attention to the little things. In a romantic relationship, physical intimacy may come after you have each affirmed your feelings.

Composite 8th House in Libra

With the composite 8th house in Libra, you may use the resources you have together when you come to a mutual agreement. This can cause a stalemate at times though, and you may become impulsive or indecisive. There does need to be some balance and respect when it comes to how and when and who uses the resources you have together. In a romantic relationship, physical intimacy may be more considerate and give-and-take.

Composite 8th House in Scorpio

With the composite 8th house in Scorpio, you may use the resources you have together to take more power and control in life. You can focus on using resources to set yourselves up for the long-term, and you can share everything with one another. In a romantic relationship, physical intimacy may be intense and passionate, but there can also be jealousy and possessiveness once entered into that needs to be addressed.

Composite 8th House in Sagittarius

With the composite 8th house in Sagittarius, you may use the resources you have together to pursue opportunities and expand your lives together. You may have a hard time being careful with your resources together though, and can take big risks that may not be smart, so caution may need to be learned. In a romantic relationship, physical intimacy may be light and without strings for a little while.

Composite 8th House in Capricorn

With the composite 8th house in Capricorn, you may use the resources you have together to pursue your goals and make things happen together. You can be ambitious with your resources, but still try to use them in smart ways. You might do homework and craft long-term plans for how best to use your resources, and act in disciplined manners. In a romantic relationship, physical intimacy may be taken seriously, but you may lack some emotional connection at times.

Composite 8th House in Aquarius

With the composite 8th house in Aquarius, you may use the resources you have together to pursue your dreams, and you may go about using them in unusual, unconventional ways. This can be fine if you do your homework first and don't jump into anything that is too far out there, otherwise you may squander what you have. In a romantic relationship, physical intimacy may be a little distant, experimental, or may come after a foundation of friendship has been built.

Composite 8th House in Pisces

With the composite 8th house in Pisces, you may use the resources you have together to help others, and may give away too much of what you have, not keeping enough for yourselves. You may have difficulty sticking to a plan or budget together, and resources can slip through your fingers as a result, so you have to work on being more focused together. In a romantic relationship, physical intimacy may be focused on spiritual connection.

Transit Planets in the Composite 8th House

Transit Sun in the Composite 8th House

When the transit Sun is in the composite 8th house, you may pay more attention to how you use your resources together. You may focus on sharing more with one another what you have, and making the relationship more resourceful. In a romantic relationship, you may feel more passionate and intense, and work on a stronger bond of intimacy. There may be focus on something that is deeply-held within the relationship, or a transformation you want to make.

Transit Moon in the Composite 8th House

When the transit Moon is in the composite 8th house, the deeply-held emotions the two of you have may come out, and you may need to deal with something serious together. You may need to use some resources you have or share with one another, and you may be more prone to fighting for control over something. In a romantic relationship, you may desire strong emotional bonds.

Transit Mercury in the Composite 8th House

When transit Mercury is in the composite 8th house, you may focus on something intensely together, something you need to know more about or get to the heart of. You can take a serious approach together to anything you do, and you can focus on plans for transformations or stir up something deeply-held. In a romantic relationship, you can talk over things that you've been holding back.

Transit Venus in the Composite 8th House

When transit Venus is in the composite 8th house, you may enjoy strengthening the bonds of intimacy in your relationship together. You may focus on digging deeper into something together, and you can enjoy focusing on serious matters. In a romantic relationship, the passion between you can increase, and you can strengthen the bonds of intimacy that you have together.

Transit Mars in the Composite 8th House

When transit Mars is in the composite 8th house, if there is something that you need to dig deeper into together, you can have plenty of energy and drive to do so. You may feel stronger together, and you can strengthen the will that you have together. In a romantic relationship, you can be strong physical passion between you, but you may also have more hostility at times.

Transit Jupiter in the Composite 8th House

When transit Jupiter is in the composite 8th house, you may enjoy being intimate with one another, and can feel your emotional bonds grow stronger. You can share everything together, and you can make great use of any resources that you have. you can focus on your legacy together. In a romantic relationship, physical passion can be strong, but not overly serious.

Transit Saturn in the Composite 8th House

When transit Saturn is in the composite 8th house, you may struggle with your emotional bonds and intimacy in the relationship. it may be difficult for you to share with one another, and you may have a hard time using resources that you have or finding any new resources together. In a romantic relationship, physical passion may wane, and you may need to work on deeply-held issues in order to overcome.

Transit Uranus in the Composite 8th House

When transit Uranus is in the composite 8th house, you may change the way in which you approach intimacy in the relationship. You may explore new ways of using the resources that you have, and can take an unconventional approach to sharing. In a romantic relationship, you can be more experimental with physical passion together, and can find new ways to improve intimacy.

Transit Neptune in the Composite 8th House

When transit Neptune is in the composite 8th house, you may focus on spiritual Intimacy in the relationship. A strong spiritual connection can help you to feel that your bonds are unbreakable, and this can help you grow closer. Without a strong spiritual connection, you may not feel as committed. In a romantic relationship, that connection is even more important, and without it you may lack passion.

Transit Pluto in the Composite 8th House

When transit Pluto is in the composite 8th house, you may be more intense with whatever you focus on together. You can do research into anything you need to know more about together, and you can get to the core of any issues and come up with solutions together. You may struggle over control at times, and you may need to work on any deeply-held issues that you have.

The Composite 9th House

The 9th house governs expansion, exploration, and experiencing life, so in the composite chart, the composite 9th house can show how we expand, explore, and experience life together. The composite 9th house can show how we share our wisdom as a pairing with the world, and how we find meaning.

Composite 9th House in the Signs

Composite 9th House in Aries

With the composite 9th house in Aries, you can take the initiative together with exploration, and enjoy expansive pursuits and ventures. You may give lots of energy to sharing knowledge and wisdom, and might put extra emphasis on finding the meaning behind all life experiences. You can enjoy traveling together, and exploring beliefs or bringing your beliefs together to other people in the world.

Composite 9th House in Taurus

With the composite 9th house in Taurus, you can prefer expansive pursuits that are slow and steady, not wanting to rush into any kind of expansion or exploration. Once you do start together, you can keep going, and may go on very long trips, take very long periods of study, or take a long time to teach. Your values together may impact your beliefs together. You may carefully and cautiously pursue opportunities together.

Composite 9th House in Gemini

With the composite 9th house in Gemini, you may come up with lots of ideas for ways to expand your lives together, or for new experiences you want to have together. You may be interested in a variety of experiences, and work to take your knowledge and turn it into wisdom you can share together. You may be a little scattered at times with expansion or opportunities, and need to stick to plan.

Composite 9th House in Cancer

With the composite 9th house in Cancer, you may feel at home with expansion and exploration together, and find some degree of emotional comfort in it. If you live together or are family, you may give each other a lot of space, and demand more freedom. Travel, expansion, and new experiences may bring emotional security to the relationship. There may also be a focus to explore more at home.

Composite 9th House in Leo

With the composite 9th house in Leo, you may enjoy expanding and exploring together, and this can be a hobby together. You can travel for fun, learn for fun, and teach for fun together. If you have children together, you can focus on imparting as much wisdom as you can to them. You may want to expand or explore in ways that will be a little splashy or that can get you attention together.

Composite 9th House in Virgo

With the composite 9th house in Virgo, you may be more cautious about expanding and exploring together, and can do a lot of homework and take care of the little things first. You may want to expand and explore in your daily lives, and doing so can help the health of your relationship. You can focus on the little things when it comes to expanding and experiencing life together.

Composite 9th House in Libra

With the composite 9th house in Libra, you may want to use your relationship as a way of expanding and exploring your lives together. You can compromise in order to expand, and explore when you feel balanced together and everything is calm in your relationship. You may use charm and diplomacy to share your wisdom together, and can see many sides to differing beliefs.

Composite 9th House in Scorpio

With the composite 9th house in Scorpio, you may share the knowledge you have together with others freely, and feel that expanding and exploring can be an intimate experience for the two of you. You may expand and explore more together when you have solid intimacy in the relationship, and you can be passionate about the beliefs that you share.

Expansion, exploration, teaching, and beliefs can be used to transform the relationship.

Composite 9th House in Sagittarius

With the composite 9th house in Sagittarius, you may put more emphasis on expansion and exploration together, and want to pursue lots of opportunities and forge strong beliefs together. You can give more time to travel, to learning and teaching, and you can feel good about the relationship when you're sharing wisdom. You may be adventurous together, and want to have new experiences together.

Composite 9th House in Capricorn

With the composite 9th house in Capricorn, you may be more disciplined together when it comes to expansion and exploration, and may not like to expand or explore too much at all. You may put together long-term plans before taking action, and you can use expansion and exploration as a way to make progress with your goals and ambitions together. You may take your beliefs more seriously.

Composite 9th House in Aquarius

With the composite 9th house in Aquarius, you may focus on unconventional ways of expanding and exploring together, and want to go to unusual places, or try different ways to expand. You can come up with new ways of pursuing opportunities together, and you can use expansion as a way to enact changes in your relationship, or use changes to create expansion. You can be more altruistic together.

Composite 9th House in Pisces

With the composite 9th house in Pisces, your beliefs together may be very important for you, and you may be a very spiritual or religious pairing. This can be used to expand your lives together. You may not travel too much together unless it's for spiritual/religious reasons, or around water. You can be very giving together, and can freely share your wisdom, but may need some boundaries to avoid being taken advantage of.

Transit Planets in the Composite 9th House

Transit Sun in the Composite 9th House

When the transit Sun is in the composite 9th house, you may focus on the good things in your relationship, and may work on expanding a new ways and exploring new things together. You may feel more adventurous together, and you can learn new things together or share with them that you have together with others. You may be more optimistic in general with one another.

Transit Moon in the Composite 9th House

When the transit Moon is in the composite 9th house, you can feel much lighter and positive about one another and the relationship. You may want to do something new and exciting to bring some fresh air into the relationship. You may want to go on a mini adventure together, and you can feel a little wiser and a little less intense about the relationship.

Transit Mercury in the Composite 9th House

When transit Mercury is in the composite 9th house, you may be able to merge the big picture with the small details in your relationship. You can come up with big ideas together, and you can be optimistic about your chances. When engaging with others, you can be more gregarious together and people can enjoy your positive outlook and approach.

Transit Venus in the Composite 9th House

When transit Venus is in the composite 9th house, you may enjoy being adventurous together, and may want to try new things and explore new places. You can work on expanding your relationship and the experiences that you have together, and you can feel more open to new ways of doing things and approaching situations with a better attitude.

Transit Mars in the Composite 9th House

When transit Mars is in the composite 9th house, you may have extra energy and drive to expand your relationship in new ways and do new things together. You may at times want more space and freedom from one another though, so there may be times when you don't want to spend as much time together. If you could give each other adequate space, then it doesn't have to threaten your commitment to one another.

Transit Jupiter in the Composite 9th House

When transit Jupiter is in the composite 9th house, you may so great about the relationship when you are going on adventures together and exploring new places. You may want to have new experiences together, and you can expand your lives and take advantage of opportunities. You may give each other more space, but you can still remain committed to one another without feeling stifled.

Transit Saturn in the Composite 9th House

When transit Saturn is in the composite 9th house, you may feel restricted and limited in the relationship. It may feel like there are less opportunities for the both of you and general, or it may feel like the relationship has so many responsibilities and is holding you back in general. You may not feel open to new experiences together and you may need to work on improving the space that you give each other.

Transit Uranus in the Composite 9th House

When transit Uranus is in the composite 9th house, you may find new and unusual ways of going on adventures and expanding your relationship. You can both be more open to new beliefs and new approaches to life together, and you may learn new things and share wisdom with others in new ways. You make focus on finding new ways of having space in the relationship.

Transit Neptune in the Composite 9th House

When transit Neptune is in the composite 9th house, your spiritual beliefs may be more important to the two of you together, and it made me feel more important for you to be on the same page spiritually. If you have the same beliefs, this can strengthen your relationship and you can move together intuitively. you may struggle if you don't have the same beliefs, and may feel a drifting apart.

Transit Pluto in the Composite 9th House

When transit Pluto is in the composite 9th house, you can take a serious approach to expanding your lives and relationship having new experiences, and you can find it easier to dig deeper into serious matters. The beliefs that you share you can become more passionate about together. You may feel that expansion can lead to positive transformations in the relationship.

The Composite 10th House

The 10th house rules your goals, ambitions, direction, and public life in the natal chart, so in the composite chart, the composite 10th house can show how you present yourselves as a pair, how you step out into the world together (your public life), and what you work toward together.

Composite 10th House in the Signs

Composite 10th House in Aries

With the composite 10th house in Aries, you may try to present yourselves as a pair who are full of energy and drive to get things done, succeed with whatever you put effort into, and take initiative with what you do together. There can be a great deal of energy focused on goals and the external, but it may not be easy to achieve without some balance between the internal and external facets of the relationship.

Composite 10th House in Taurus

With the composite 10th house in Taurus, you may try to present yourselves as a pair who are calm, reliable, and dependable, and others may see you as a pair they can be counted on. There may be strong grounding energy you exude together around others. You may take time to get moving with goals you set together, and achievement may not come until intense emotional internal conflict is abated.

Composite 10th House in Gemini

With the composite 10th house in Gemini, you may try to present yourselves as a pair who are highly intellectual and logical, analyzing and full of information that can be helpful in any situation. You may focus on lots of ideas to achieve goals you set together, and can be interested in a variety of goals, but achievement may be difficult until you have a solid internal, personal connection in the relationship.

Composite 10th House in Cancer

With the composite 10th house in Cancer, you may try to present yourselves as a pair who are very nurturing, encouraging, supportive, and emotionally connected. You may be a pair who takes care of others together, and can be seen as highly parental (even if you have no children together). A solid foundation is likely necessary in the relationship in order to achieve anything you set out to do together.

Composite 10th House in Leo

With the composite 10th house in Leo, you may try to present yourselves as a pair who are flashy, gregarious, and fun. You may want to put your best face forward, and likely want others to give attention to your pairing (in whatever nature it is). If others don't acknowledge your pairing, you may struggle with being dedicated to it. You may not want others to see the alternative aspects to your pairing, and this may need to be opened up to (as it can get the attention you want).

Composite 10th House in Virgo

With the composite 10th house in Virgo, you may try to present yourselves as a pair who are highly practical, focused, and not too flashy. You may present a quiet facade, and can be a pairing that avoids the spotlight or isn't comfortable with it. You may let others see how you manage the health of the relationship. Tending to core spiritual issues and connection may need to be achieved before progress can be made externally.

Composite 10th House in Libra

With the composite 10th house in Libra, you may try to present yourselves as a pair who are charming and pleasant. You can be diplomatic in the way you handle others together when showing the public face of your relationship, and you can be seen as compromising and fair together. People may look up to your relationship (in whatever way it is). Managing individual emotional expression may be needed before success can be had with goals together.

Composite 10th House in Scorpio

With the composite 10th house in Scorpio, you may try to present yourselves as a pair who are intense and serious. Others can take you very seriously together, and believe that your pairing is serious. You may have a "power couple" facade, and can be intensely focused on your goals together. Finding calm internally, and emotionally in the relationship may help push you toward achievement of those goals.

Composite 10th House in Sagittarius

With the composite 10th house in Sagittarius, you may try to present yourselves as a pair who are gregarious and fun-loving. Others may see you as a pairing that can teach people something from your experiences together. You may try to avoid fighting in public, wanting to seem as cheery as possible. Making sure the little things aren't being ignored can help with successful work toward your goals together.

Composite 10th House in Capricorn

With the composite 10th house in Capricorn, you may try to present yourselves as a pair who are responsible and disciplined. Others may see you as a pair that can be counted on with great responsibilities, and you may be in charge together in some way. Your goals together can be an important part of your relationship (whether personal or professional), and you may need to have a solid foundation first.

Composite 10th House in Aquarius

With the composite 10th house in Aquarius, you may try to present yourselves as a pair who are unconventional and break tradition. Others may see you as rebels together, a pairing who pushes boundaries, or who are very forward-thinking. You may be very open with changes you undergo together and eccentricities that exist in your relationship. Having a solid personal connection may help with achieving unconventional goals you have together.

Composite 10th House in Pisces

With the composite 10th house in Pisces, you may try to present yourselves as a pair who are sensitive and spiritual. Others may see you as compassionate, incredibly helpful and giving. If your pairing is rooted in the arts in some way, this can be open to the world. But with Pisces, your general public face may be difficult to put your finger on, and some people may see you one way while others see you as totally different together, and no one may see your pairing as it is in reality.

Transit Planets in the Composite 10th House

Transit Sun in the Composite 10th House

When the transit Sun is in the composite 10th house, you may focus on the goals that you have together, and can work on making progress and feel like you're on the right path together. The responsibilities that you have together can also get more of your attention, and you might take on a new responsibility together. If this is a professional relationship, you may focus on success.

Transit Moon in the Composite 10th House

When the transit Moon is in the composite 10th house, you may feel more ambitious together, and can work on new goals and try to make progress with existing goals. You may struggle with the relationship if you don't feel like you were making adequate progress with whatever you're working on together. You may need to let go of adhering strictly to a plan or a checklist.

Transit Mercury in the Composite 10th House

When transit Mercury is in the composite 10th house, you may be more practical with your approach to whatever you deal with together, and you can put together long-term plans for any goals that you have together. This can be especially helpful for professional relationships. You may want to work on goals together that you feel you can accomplish quickly and easily.

Transit Venus in the Composite 10th House

When transit Venus is in the composite 10th house, you may enjoy focusing on the goals that you have together, and you can work on making progress. You can feel much more ambitious, and in a romantic relationship, you may be more affectionate if you feel you are succeeding together. You can also find it easier to deal with the responsibilities that you have together.

Transit Mars in the Composite 10th House

When transit Mars is in the composite 10th house, you can feel extra ambitious and driven to make progress with the goals you have together. You can put extra energy into getting further along your path together, and feel the need to achieve something together, especially something you started about a year ago. You may feel like you hit a high point in the relationship with something, or you may feel like you experience a long fall.

Transit Jupiter in the Composite 10th House

When transit Jupiter is in the composite 10th house, you can be presented with opportunities to achieve your goals together, and you can achieve a lot of success together. This can be especially helpful in professional relationships. You may feel like the relationship is hitting a high, and you can move forward on the same path together. You may be optimistic about what you can do together.

Transit Saturn in the Composite 10th House

When transit Saturn is in the composite 10th house, you may struggle with feeling that you're on the right path together at times, and you may feel that you experience setbacks and delays with whatever you are focused on. You may have extra responsibilities together, and this can weigh heavily on your relationship and make you question if it's too much. You need to be extra committed to one another and the relationship.

Transit Uranus in the Composite 10th House

When transit Uranus is in the composite 10th house, you can take an unconventional approach to the goals that you have together, and you can change what it is you feel you need to together. What you ultimately feel like you need together can shift, and you may experience more changes. You can also experience changes in the responsibilities that you have.

Transit Neptune in the Composite 10th House

When transit Neptune is in the composite 10th house, you may feel more compassionate with one another and can focus on your spiritual goals, but you may ultimately struggle with tangible goals that you have together. You may want to work on being more realistic with what you can achieve. You may be perceived as more charismatic together.

Transit Pluto in the Composite 10th House

When transit Pluto is in the composite 10th house, you can be more passionate about the goals that you have together, and you can commit to them intensely. You may be perceived as more serious and intense together, and you can take the path that you're on more seriously. You may need to work on a large transformation together in order to stay on the right path.

The Composite 11th House

The 11th house is the house of friendship, so the composite 11th house can show how we come together as friends in a relationship, the groups we interact with and causes you push for together. With the 11th house also ruling change and the future, it can show how change is approached and what future we envision.

Composite 11th House in the Signs

Composite 11th House in Aries

With the composite 11th house in Aries, you can lead together in the groups you participate in or with the friends you have. You can take the initiative with the changes you want to make together, and you can get excited by your future. You can feel driven together to make changes, to do things in different ways, and can also take charge when it comes to whatever causes you pursue together.

Composite 11th House in Taurus

With the composite 11th house in Taurus, you may have quieter friends together, and focus on groups where you don't have to participate too much together; or, you may be the grounding pair in your friendships and groups. You may take your time with change together, but stick with it once you get started. You may be less inclined to do anything too unconventional until you feel confident about it together.

Composite 11th House in Gemini

With the composite 11th house in Gemini, you can have a variety of friends together, can be quite sociable as a pair, and you may want mentally stimulating company. You may talk a lot about the future, your hopes and dreams together, and you can come up with lots of ideas for change, and work on gathering information and plans. You can be open to changes, but may have to work on action.

Composite 11th House in Cancer

With the composite 11th house in Cancer, you may be the nurturing pair with your friends together, and can be encouraging of others in groups. You may want to make friends and connections that have strong emotional bonds together. Friendship and respect may be a solid foundation for your relationship. You may focus on change and plans for the future you feel an emotional connection to together.

Composite 11th House in Leo

With the composite 11th house in Leo, you can be the fun-loving pair in your friendships or groups you participate in, and others can give you a lot of attention together. You may be open about the changes that you want to make and get attention for that together, and can forge connections with others through them. You may be very involved in causes together, feeling deeply personally invested.

Composite 11th House in Virgo

With the composite 11th house in Virgo, you can be the quiet, practical pair in your friendships or groups you participate in, and you may not care for flashy friendships or groups, instead focused on what's practical. You may not have a ton of friends together or participate in a lot of groups (or any!). You can take that practical approach to change and work on it methodically and carefully.

Composite 11th House in Libra

With the composite 11th house in Libra, you can be the compromising, pleasant pair in your friendships or groups you participate in, and can be easy to get along with together. You may want friends or groups that you feel are pleasant and won't throw any drama into your lives together. You may spend time with many couples/partnerships. You can focus on change when balance is achieved.

Composite 11th House in Scorpio

With the composite 11th house in Scorpio, you can be the intense pair in your friendships or groups you participate in, and others can take you seriously but can also be intimidated by you, especially in groups. Changes can help transform your relationship, and you can be passionate about your future together. You may attract powerful people to you together as friends, or powerful groups to participate in.

Composite 11th House in Sagittarius

With the composite 11th house in Sagittarius, you can be the light and gregarious pair in your friendships or groups you participate in together, and others can enjoy being around you and not feel they have to be so serious. You may have many friends together, and many prefer the casual connections to anything too intense. You can focus on changes that will expand your relationship or bring new opportunities to you together, and you can be optimistic about the future.

Composite 11th House in Capricorn

With the composite 11th house in Capricorn, you can be the mature, disciplined pair in your friendships or groups you participate in, and others can see you as responsible. You may not have a ton of friends together, or most of the ones you have may be to serve some sort of purpose. You may take a more traditional approach to change, and can make plans and act in a disciplined manner.

Composite 11th House in Aquarius

With the composite 11th house in Aquarius, you can be the unconventional pair in your friendships or groups you participate in, and others can view you as individuals who still operate as one. You can be extra focused on your causes and future, and open to changes that will help you with both. You may attract unusual friends, and you may want to keep your friendships casual and light.

Composite 11th House in Pisces

With the composite 11th house in Pisces, you can be the sensitive and compassionate pair in your friendships or groups you participate in, and others can view you as caring and giving. You may have friends that need a lot of help from you together, and may need to have some boundaries with them or with groups. You may have a hard time sticking to a plan for change, and may have better luck with trusting instincts.

Transit Planets in the Composite 11th House

Transit Sun in the Composite 11th House

When the transit Sun is in the composite 11th house, you may give more attention to the friends and groups that you deal with together, and you can meet lots of new people and feel open to different people. You can also give more attention to the causes that you're passionate about together, and think more about your future together.

Transit Moon in the Composite 11th House

When the transit Moon is in the composite 11th house, you may want to work on a change in a relationship, even just a small one. You may spend time with your friends or in a group together. You may be a little more idealistic about the relationship, and you may think about your future. You may want a little more independence from one another.

Transit Mercury in the Composite 11th House

When transit Mercury is in the composite 11th house, you may think outside of the box together, and want to focus on ideas that are totally unconventional. You can put together unusual plans and feel willing to explore new solutions. You may be more engaging with friends together, you may have a discussion about your future together.

Transit Venus in the Composite 11th House

When transit Venus is in the composite 11th house, you can enjoy working on changes together in your relationship, and you may explore new ways of showing affection for one another in a personal relationship. You may enjoy spending more time with your friends together, and you can feel good about the future that you have.

Transit Mars in the Composite 11th House

When transit is in the composite 11th house, you may be more energized to work on changes together, and you can focus on pushing outside of your comfort zone in the relationship. What drives and inspires you together may be different, and you can be especially focused on your future, and the hopes and dreams that you have together.

Transit Jupiter in the Composite 11th House

When transit Jupiter is in the composite 11th house, you can explore opportunities together and that allow you to go outside of your comfort zone, create changes in your relationship, and do new things that expand your relationship. You can meet lots of new people together, join new groups, and come up with new dreams for your future together.

Transit Saturn in the Composite 11th House

When transit Saturn is in the composite 11th house, you may feel more restricted or limited when it comes to making changes in your relationship, or with thinking about the future of your relationship. You may feel you need to be more practical and realistic, and this can make you less hopeful about the future that you have together. You may need to work on issues with change or individuality.

Transit Uranus in the Composite 11th House

When transit Uranus is in the composite 11th house, you may feel more comfortable with change and doing things in new ways together, and you may feel that you want to create as many changes as possible. You may be open to lots of new people and can meet people that are totally different from usual, or join unusual groups.

Transit Neptune in the Composite 11th House

When transit Neptune is in the composite 11th house, you can be more compassionate and understanding together with the friends you have and groups you deal with, and you may join groups together for the purpose of helping others, or encounter more friends who need your help together. You can feel spiritually connected when focused on the future.

Transit Pluto in the Composite 11th House

When transit Pluto is in the composite 11th house, you can be more intensely passionate about the dreams you share together, and you can focus on trying to make progress. You can be more open to making changes in your relationship that will transform your lives, and you can work on having more power and control individually within the relationship.

The Composite 12th House

The 12th house is the house of the hidden, the subconscious, spirituality, karma, and as the last house, it governs endings. In the composite chart, the composite 12th house can show what may be hidden in the relationship, what may play out subconsciously in the relationship, the karma of the relationship, and what needs to be let go of.

Composite 12th House in the Signs

Composite 12th House in Aries

With the composite 12th house in Aries, it may be difficult at times for you to take initiative together when needed, and instead that kicks in when you're moving together subconsciously. You can jump to action together during times of crisis when you're not consciously deciding, but outside of that, you may struggle with action. There may be karmic issues with anger that need to be addressed, and some part of the ego may need to be let go of.

Composite 12th House in Taurus

With the composite 12th house in Taurus, it may be difficult at times for you to find some calm together, to ground your energy together and not a breather when needed. You can subconsciously ground your energy together in times of crisis, but struggle outside of that. There may be karmic issues with stubbornness or discrimination that need to be worked on, and some focus on the material may need to be let go of.

Composite 12th House in Gemini

With the composite 12th house in Gemini, it may be difficult at times for you to come together mentally, and to be fully open with your ideas and opinions. You can subconsciously have a meeting of the minds (and may even feel like you can communicate telepathically at times), but this may come out in times of crisis and be difficult to find outside of that. There may be karmic issues with understanding that has to be worked on, and too much intellectual focus may need to be let go of.

Composite 12th House in Cancer

With the composite 12th house in Cancer, it may be difficult at times for you to come together emotionally, and to be fully open with your feelings with one another. You may open up subconsciously and reveal true feelings in times of crisis and heated moments, but have difficulty when really trying. There may be karmic issues with emotional instability or relating to family (you may have been family before) to be addressed, and subjectivity may need to be let go of.

Composite 12th House in Leo

With the composite 12th house in Leo, it may be difficult at times for you to show affection with one another and have an easy time together, not wanting to give too much attention. Affection may come out during times of crisis or when on the brink, but can be a struggle when consciously trying. There may be karmic issues with giving/getting attention and love in general that need to be addressed, and some drama may need to be let go of.

Composite 12th House in Virgo

With the composite 12th house in Virgo, it may be difficult at times for you to tend to day-to-day matters together, and you may struggle with figuring out when the health of your relationship is under stress at times. You may be able to move together to get things done easily in times of crisis subconsciously, but have a hard time consciously. There may be karmic issues with being overly critical that need to be addressed, and some anxiousness and insecurity may need to be let go of.

Composite 12th House in Libra

With the composite 12th house in Libra, it may be difficult at times for you to find some pleasant compromise in the relationship, and restore balance and peace together. Everything can smooth out in times of crisis so you operate in a calmer way, but this may cause a subconscious desire for more chaos. There may be karmic issues with lack of respect or commitment issues that need to be addressed, and some indecision may need to be let go of.

Composite 12th House in Scorpio

With the composite 12th house in Scorpio, it may be difficult at times for you to find the passion and intensity needed in the relationship. In times of crisis, you may subconsciously find the passion and intensity needed, and you can be very good at finding solutions to very big, pressing problems together when your backs are against the wall, but this can be a struggle to purposefully do together. There may be karmic issues with rage, violence, or war that need to be addressed, and jealousy or hatred may need to be let go of.

Composite 12th House in Sagittarius

With the composite 12th house in Sagittarius, it may be difficult at times for you to see the bright side in the relationship and not take things so seriously, expand, or explore. You can find opportunity in times of crisis, and push to expand subconsciously, but may struggle consciously. There may be karmic issues with freedom or beliefs that need to be addressed, and preachiness or some arrogance may need to be let go of.

Composite 12th House in Capricorn

With the composite 12th house in Capricorn, it may be difficult at times for you to do things in traditional ways, or be responsible for one another and others. You can step up in times of crisis together and find ways to be mature and reliable subconsciously, but have a hard time with convention and planning consciously. There may be karmic issues with authority that need to be addressed, and some ambition may need to be let go of.

Composite 12th House in Aquarius

With the composite 12th house in Aquarius, it may be difficult at times for you to do things in unconventional ways, to make changes or embrace individuality. In times of crisis, you can subconsciously create change together and make unconventional choices, but struggle to replicate that consciously. There may be karmic issues with individual expression and independence that need to be addressed, and some erratic energy may need to be let go of.

Composite 12th House in Pisces

With the composite 12th house in Pisces, it may be difficult at times for you to tap into your spiritual connection as a pair, and focus on your subconscious motivations and karma. You can have strong instincts together in times of crisis, and feel guided subconsciously, but may not have a handle on this consciously. There may be karmic issues with victimization that need to be addressed, and scattered energy may need to be let go of.

Transit Planets in the Composite 12th House

Transit Sun in the Composite 12th House

When the transit Sun is in the composite 12th house, you may not give as much attention to the relationship, and instead a light is shone on things that have been hidden to the two of you. You may want to work on subconscious issues together, and can be more giving to others. It can be a good time to clean up and clear out anything unneeded in the relationship, and let go. Something may come to an end together.

Transit Moon in the Composite 12th House

When the transit Moon is in the composite 12th house, you may want some alone time together, wanting to share feelings but only when alone and no one else is around. You may want time alone so you can recharge together, reconnect, and feel more of the spiritual and subconscious connection between you. You may focus on letting go of something and moving on together.

Transit Mercury in the Composite 12th House

When transit Mercury is in the composite 12th house, you may refrain from expressing thoughts and opinions with one another until you're alone, just the two of you, and no one else around. You may want to dig into each other's subconscious mind, and gain a better understanding of one another. A secret may come out, or some sort of information that has been hidden can become exposed.

Transit Venus in the Composite 12th House

When transit Venus is in the composite 12th house, you may enjoy being affectionate with one another when no one else around is around to pry and it's just the two of you in a personal relationship. You can focus on improving your spiritual connection, and you may work on ending something together. You may enjoy getting a rest in the relationship in some way.

Transit Mars in the Composite 12th House

When transit Mars is in the composite 12th house, you may become aware of subconscious drivers and motivators in your relationship, and this can help you gain a better understanding of one another. You may feel driven to work on old issues from the past that need to be moved on from, to clear out your lives of what's no longer needed, or to end something that began about 2 years ago.

Transit Jupiter in the Composite 12th House

When transit Jupiter is in the composite 12th house, you may have more opportunities to come together behind the scenes, behind closed doors, when no one is watching, and in a professional relationship, this can be how you make lots of progress together. You may feel a little protected by an unseen force in the relationship, and you can connect more spiritually.

Transit Saturn in the Composite 12th House

When transit Saturn is in the composite 12th house, you may feel that old issues or subconscious issues in the relationship become more of a problem, and need to be worked on, understood, and moved on from. If you keep them around and don't deal with them, they can get much worse and sever the relationship, acting to undo everything between you.

Transit Uranus in the Composite 12th House

When transit Uranus is in the composite 12th house, you may make changes together but quietly behind the scenes, with no one watching. You may want to do things in new ways and explore the unconventional together, but you don't need to be flashy about it. You can also become interested in new causes, and be more charitable with others.

Transit Neptune in the Composite 12th House

When transit Neptune is in the composite 12th house, you can explore your spiritual connection, and want to make sure that you're intuitively moving in the same direction. If your spiritual and intuitive ties are strong, this can help with your relationship. You may be more comfortable letting go of the old stuff, and want to move forward with less baggage.

Transit Pluto in the Composite 12th House

When transit Pluto is in the composite 12th house, you may feel more powerful and connected in the relationship when it's just the two of you, behind closed doors, no one to bother. You may struggle more over power and control as well, but quietly and you can hide that from others. This may come out if you're not dealing with issues properly together. If you are, then you can gain more power together in quiet ways.