

Interpreting Relationships Q&A

Q: I have had several encounters with men that have Uranus opposite my Venus. Unfortunately in my age group Uranus is in Sag and my Venus is in Gemini. Is there anyway to experience a long lasting relationship with this aspect in synastry? I also have this aspect with the love of my life who I unfortunately met when we were both in committed relationships with others. I know this is a very unstable aspect and I can't seem to escape it.

A: With Uranus, you need to find an outlet for the energy that is positive and healthy instead of giving in to the erratic nature of Uranus. So you need to make sure there is some spice in the relationship, that things get shaken up regularly but in good ways, and that you're trying new things together. Wanna escape it? Go for a big age difference! (LOL)

Q: How can I show my son that I'm not the enemy?

A: This will be more focusing on your son and his chart rather than yours. I've mentioned Black Moon Lilith tends to be in play with difficult relationships with the mother, and your son has Mean Lilith on the 3rd house cusp (communications and mindset) and True Lilith widely conjunct the 4th house cusp (family). This may be a communication issue between you. Meanwhile his Venus is in Gemini (communications) conjunct the 12th house cusp, which hides energy. So he may not be very open about what he really thinks, and his Mercury (communications) is in Aries and his 10th house (so he probably has little patience at times and just wants others to get to the point, so perhaps be more direct). Ultimately this is a very complex question though (you may want to get a reading with an astrologer so you can really peel the layers).

Q: How to predict the timing of the first meeting and the marriage?

A: You can track transits and progressions involving the 5th house of love, 7th house of committed relationships, and planet of love, Venus. (this will be covered in the transits class)

Q: How to confirm totally that a chart has a love marriage or an arranged marriage?

A: Not really a way to tell that based solely on the natal chart. There may be indicators of a lack of love in an arranged marriage (but not every arranged marriage lacks love ultimately, so it's hard to say).

Q: How to say a person is cheating or been cheating in a relationship?

A: Cheating will be addressed in the bonus mini class, but from a natal perspective; it's not always clear if someone is cheating or not in a specific relationship though. There will usually be Uranus or Neptune transits involved (but having a Uranus or Neptune transit by itself doesn't automatically mean someone is cheating).

Q: How to say that a person is having a soulmate connection with the other person?

A: (I outlined this in the first email!) Neptune and the Lunar Nodes are the ones in play for a soul connection, in synastry and in composite.